$ THE REIGNING ERROR £

No one needs to be told that many parts of the world — certainly including Canada — are in the grip of serious inflationary pressures which threaten the well-being and economic future of most people.

But is there any hope that inflation can be checked? Or is it already too late and are we on a one-way road to economic collapse?

In an important new book — The Reigning Error: The Crisis of World Inflation — William Rees-Mogg, editor of The Times of London, examines in detail the inflationary threat to our social and economic structures.

DIDN'T TAKE OWN ADVICE

LONDON (UPI) — Value Today, a magazine designed to help people beat inflation, is folding after only six issues, a spokesman said today.

"Costs have gone up so much we were losing on every issue," said executive editor David Miller.

Hundreds in Province Want Viet Children

Immigration and child welfare officials in B.C. said today they have been flooded with calls from people wanting to adopt orphans from Cambodia and Vietnam.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday the federal government will take whatever steps are necessary to speed the adoption process for those children already "on-stream" for immigration to Canada.

The minister also expressed a willingness to see more children adopted in Canada and said he has urged child welfare authorities to cut through red tape to ensure homes are found quickly for any orphans who arrive here.

B.C. superintendent of child welfare J. V. Belknap said today the department has received a flurry of calls from people who heard Andras' comments and want to adopt children.

Belknap said those people should contact their local human resources department office and apply for adoption.

But he said he can give them no commitment that more Southeast Asian orphans will be available for adoption.

Both Belknap and regional director of immigration services in Vancouver Jim Pasman said the thrust of Andras' comments was to assure people waiting for chil-

★ Panic Hitting Saigon

Times News Services

SAIGON — Military officials issued shoot-to-kill orders today to prevent protests and disturbances in Saigon as up to 50,000 Communist-led forces massed 40 to 50 miles to the northwest and northeast of the capital.

Saigon's 10 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew was extended to 9 p.m.-6 a.m.

Nguyen Van Binh, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Saigon, called for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, joining growing demands that Thieu step down in the wake of battlefield losses that have cost South Vietnam three-quarters of its territory.

Police stopped a demonstration of about 200 people demanding Thieu's resignation, but no shots were fired.

City Truck Tires Slashed By Vandals

Public works officials, still assessing the extent of the damage, were reluctant today to give any preliminary estimates, but city engineer John Sansom said even though many of the tires can be repaired the bill will be substantial.

"These tires cost at least 50 bucks apiece," said Sansom.

The city has a contract with a security firm, Western Home Guard Patrol Ltd., for surveillance of the yard where up to 60 vehicles of all kinds, ranging from light pick-up trucks to earth moving equipment, are stored.

But details of the firm's patrol arrangements were not immediately available, although city officials said they understand the depot is visited frequently throughout the night.

In most cases only one tire on each unit was affected, and traffic engineer Dave Campbell said the damage appears to have been caused by small, barely perceptible nicks in the tire walls.

Units placed temporarily out of action include two smaller garbage trucks which management staff have been using every Wednesday to empty downtown litter containers; the city's only sewer cleaning pump; and two trucks used for asphalt patching of potholes.

Heavier equipment generally appeared to have been left alone, officials.

Sansom said he was the first to discover the damage, when he called at the yard about 7 a.m. to organize an early shift for road repair jobs.

"There was a truck with a flat tire which shouldn't have been, and then I started looking around and found a whole lot more."

The vehicles singled out for tire-flattening were parked over a fairly wide area, and the vandalism was apparently done in "random" fashion, said Campbell.

NO CLEAR OSCAR FAVORITES

Predicting Oscar winners will be more difficult than usual this year, according to UPI Hollywood writer Vernon Scott, because there are no clear favorites in the major categories.

Scott, whose assessment of the Oscar race is on page 29 today, says any one of Towering Inferno, Chinatown or Godfather II could be best picture. Lenny and The Conversation merely fill out the field. He says he notes that Towering Inferno has been the most popular at the box office.

The Times and CJVI will award a CP Air weekend for two in Hollywood in a drawing April 9 from among those who have correctly predicted the Oscar winners for best actor, best actress and best picture. Three consolation prizes will also be awarded.

The Academy Awards are announced April 8.

Arbitrator Appointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Peter Donald Seaton of the British Columbia Supreme Court has been appointed arbitrator in the contract dispute involving 4,000 West Coast longshoremen, Labor Minister John Munro said today.

Mr. Justice Seaton will have 60 days in which to bring in an arbitration award to resolve the dispute which led to a three-week strike by the longshoremen in 11 B.C. ports.

Mortgage Limit Jumps $11,000 for Victoria

The maximum loan limit for mortgages insured under the National Housing Act has been increased to $46,000 from $35,000 for the Victoria area.

This will have the effect of reducing the down payment needed to buy homes under NHA, said Raymond Pitt, spokesman for the Victoria branch of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The loans go out in two forms. Direct lending by the government corporation to qualified (low income) purchasers is at an interest rate of a maximum of 10 per cent.

In addition, NHA mortgages are arranged through banks, credit unions and trust companies at conventional rates of about 10.5 per cent.

"Our policy continues to be to encourage new construction with direct lending," Pitt said.

Therefore the 10 per cent money will be going to purchase new homes or condominiums. Indirect lending at 10.5 per cent is for new or existing homes.

Pitt said the higher mortgage level would create a more brisk real estate market in Victoria.

"A larger mortgage means a lower down payment which in turn means more people can afford to buy homes."

Announcement of the higher limits was made in Winnipeg by Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson.

Limits vary from city to city with the low being $40,000 and the high — Vancouver and Toronto—set at $48,000.

While the loan limit rose by $11,000 in Victoria (from $35,000) it rose only by $8,000 in Toronto and Vancouver (from $40,000).

PAIR CHARGED IN HOLDUP RASH

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

Two men, one of them an escaped convict, were charged in Victoria provincial court this morning with three of the nine armed robberies in Victoria over the past 12 days.

William Harold Mack, 26, who escaped from William Head federal prison March 16, and William Wallace Woods, 26, of 1249 Rockland, were arrested shortly after a robbery late Wednesday afternoon at Valu-Way Food Market, 101 West Burnside.

Cashier Mrs. Tang Chi-fong said a man entered the store at about 4:30 p.m.

As Mrs. Tang began to ring up the groceries, she said the man placed his hand on her arm and handed her a brown paper bag.

"There was something written on the bag but I can't read English so I wasn't sure what he wanted," said Mrs. Tang.

"Then he said 'Money' and pointed to the till . . . I understood."

She said he pointed to a gun tucked under his belt.

"I opened the till and he grabbed all the money, then ran out of the store."

About $130 was taken.

Mrs. Tang said she ran after the man but lost him around the corner.

But a woman, watching from her apartment across the street, saw the man get into a car and drive south on Qu'Appelle towards Gorge. She became suspicious and took down the licence numer. When police arrived to investigate the robbery, she gave them the number.

Minutes later, Victoria police stopped a car on Garbally, and arrested Woods. Mack was picked up shortly after.

All the money was recovered.

Mack and Woods were jointly charged with the Valu-Way armed robbery.

Mack also was charged with Tuesday's 11 a.m. armed robbery at Niagara Grocery, 579 Niagara, and the noon-hour holdup Wednesday at Hollywood Grocery, 1707 Lillian.

Victoria police said that in both incidences, a man wearing a cowboy hat and dark sunglasses handed the cashiers a bag on which was written: " I have a gun . . . give me the money."

The pair was remanded to Friday for election of trial method and plea, at which time bail for Woods will also be discussed.

Mack is not eligible for bail.

Orphan Airlift Arrives in U.S.

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — The 52 Vietnamese orphans who escaped Saigon because of a defiant pilot arrived late Wednesday night at Oakland International Airport.

They only arrived because Capt. Ken Healy defied orders by Saigon air traffic controllers not to take off.

"Just watch me," Healy said he radioed to the controllers just before gunning his craft.

Capt. William Keating, who also made the flight, explained at a news conference in Oakland: "We were instructed to hold our position by ground control. We ignored that. We taxied down the runway and took off."

Also aboard the World Airways cargo jet were half a dozen Vietnamese adults who scrambled aboard the plane at the last moment without papers.

Two of the orphans had been left at the U.S. Air Force base at Yokota, Japan, for medical treatment.

Healy, who also flew refugees from collapsing cities in mainland China during the Communist advance of the late 1940s, says Vietnam today is worse.

"I don't care if I lose my licence," Healy said. "It would be a cheap price to pay to bring these kids from danger."

The DC-8 left Saigon after a day-long hassle between local authorities and World Airways officials.

One orphanage refused to send 400 children, and World Airways said the U.S. embassy had advised the orphanage against the flight.

Adoption officials said in the U.S. that it was hoped 2,000 orphans could be airlifted from Saigon in the next 48 hours.

But a World Airways spokesman said, "We think it may be too late to bring more children out."

For flight attendant Jan Wollett it was a frustrating experience.

"There are tens of thousands of children who want to get out of Vietnam, but the government bureaucracy won't let them," she told reporters.

BATTLE NEARS PHNOM PENH

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Insurgents over-ran a government position at a dike along the capital's defence line today, pushing within five miles of the city.

Military sources said government reinforcements moved into the area but "the position was not clear."

There was heavy fighting north, northwest and south of Phnom Penh, all of it clearly heard in the capital.

Rebel troops Wednesday captured seven positions east, west and south of the besieged capital.

In a statement broadcast by the New China News Agency, Prince Norodom Sihanouk said certain countries are trying to talk the Phnom Penh government into negotiating with the rebels.

"No foreign country has the right to issue orders to the Cambodian people" the nominal leader of the rebels said from his exile in Peking.

On the defence perimeter northwest of Phnom Penh, the attackers advanced about a mile along a one-mile front before they were stopped, field reports said.

The captured positions were about six miles north of the airport and if held would give the Khmer Rouge's guns and rocket launchers new positions from which to fire on the field.

The insurgents' rockets and shells destroyed two more of the government's dwindling fleet of T-28 light bombers and damaged two civilian planes at the airport shortly after dawn.

Lougheed Shuffles Entire Cabinet

Don Getty was given the major responsibility of overseeing Alberta's energy matters in an expanded portfolio of energy and natural resources. Next to the premier, he has been Alberta's major energy spokesman.

Lou Hyndman takes over Getty's former job as minister of federal and intergovernmental affairs and remains government house leader. Hyndman had been education minister.

Premier Lougheed, in high spirits following an overwhelming victory in the March 26 Alberta general election, told a news conference he intends to shift his attention from energy matters to social areas of government "to the extent practical."

Egypt Seeks Wider Session

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sent messages today to the leaders of Britain, France, Yugoslavia and India stating Egypt's desire that their countries participate in the Geneva Arab-Israeli peace conference, government sources said in Cairo.

The messages were addressed to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, French President Valery Giscar d'Estaing, Yugoslav President Tito and Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, they said.

The sources said Sadat's messages explained that Egypt was anxious to avoid possible U.S.-Soviet polarization at Geneva which could wreck the conference.

Egype has formally requested the United States and the Soviet Union, as co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference, to reconvene it for consideration of a global Arab-Israeli peace settlement following the collapse of the U.S.-sponsored step-by-step approach.

Egyptian foreign minister Ismail Fahmi said Egypt wanted the inclusion in the conference of other powers like Britain and France as well as one non-aligned country at least.

Egypt also feels that Britain and France, as permanent members of the UN Security Council and leaders in Western Europe, could effectively join the United States and the Soviet Union in guaranteeing a final Arab-Israeli settlement if one can be reached, they said.

The sources said Sadat will be writing also to a large number of African, Asian and East European heads of state about Egypt's latest position in the conflict with Israel.

They said Egypt believes the non-aligned group of nations should be represented at Geneva because they represent about two-thirds of the world. Egypt considers India and Yugoslavia as best-suited for this role at Geneva, they said.

50,000 Troops Mass

Opposition to Thieu is growing daily in Saigon, and law and order is threatened by armed military stragglers from the central and northern provinces who are slipping into the city without reporting to the army.

As a result, the local military commander today forbade mass assemblies, demonstrations and the carrying of weapons without a permit.

"Local authorities have orders to shoot and kill on the spot those violators who try to resist or flee," a communique said.

War hysteria continued to mount today, as people besieged banks to withdraw their savings.

The bank rush came in the wake of rumors, already denied by the government, that accounts will be frozen.

Gold dealers said the price of best quality 24-karat gold rose in 24 hours from 210,000 piasters to 240,000 piasters — nearly $240 at the rising black market rate.

Smartly dressed Vietnamese women filled jewellry shops turning their piasters into easily portable 18-karate gold objects — despite the fact that the price of 18-karate gold jumped from 127,000 piasters an ounce on Tuesday to 135,000 piasters Wednesday.

Communist troops threatened Saigon from two sides today and rolled down the coast virtually unchecked, following the path of tens of thousands of fleeing refugees and panic-stricken South Vietnamese soldiers.

Military sources said the troops of the Saigon government were abandoning their positions faster than the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units could capture them.

The sources also disclosed that an entire 10,000-man division of Communist troops had "disappeared" from Tay Ninh Province 50 miles northwest of Saigon.

They said military intelligence officers had no idea whether the troops had gone into neighboring Cambodia or were moving toward the capital.

The Saigon government had fewer than 5,000 troops blocking the Communist march along the South China Sea toward the capital.

Half of them were fighting around Xuan Loc, 38 miles east of Saigon, in an attempt to re-opem vital Highway 1.

The others were concentrated in and around the capital.

The other Communist threat came from troops arrayed in a wide arc from west to north of Saigon.

Meanwhile, the United States government was marking time.

Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said the Ford administration's aid policy would be reviewed when Gen. Fred Weyand, the U.S. Army chief of staff, returns to Washington from Saigon this weekend.

Schlesinger indicated that despite several plane loads of artillery and other military equipment flown to Saigon from the U.S. this week, large-scale replacement of the South Vietnamese army's huge losses in equipment would depend on whether Weyand thinks the Saigon forces can stabilize a defence perimenter north of the city and "how they will perform when and if the test comes."

In San Diego, speaking of serious and dramatic setbacks in Southeast Asia, President Ford said today that despite events in Vietnam "no allies or time-tested friends of the United States should worry or fear that our commitments to them will not be honored."

In an address prepared for a White House-sponsored conference here on energy and the economy, Ford said: "The current confusion and changing situation in Southeast Asia" should not undermine the faith of allies in the United States.

"We stand ready to support ourselves and defend our allies as surely as we always have."

outside workers, but the union strike headquarters said those on duty Wednesday night reported no unusual activity in the yard and claimed no knowledge of the damage.

Regional district chairman Jim Campbell, spokesman for the civic employers group, today spelled out for the first time reasons for the group's refusal to accept a non-binding third-party recommendation for settlement of the CUPE strike.

At the final mediation attempt Wednesday employers "got a clear expression from the union they did not wish to move from their original starting point of a 46 per cent increase because it would prejudice their future position."

Campbell said the union was committed to an arbitrated settlement and because an arbitrator might be expected to split the difference between sides, the greater the difference in respective positions, the greater the award.

In these terms, he said, "I don't think the union has negotiated in good faith at all, ever."

A third party settlement would "produce a position we would find extremely onerous to bear ... not a responsible route to go in these circumstances."

The union could easily reject a non-binding award without having to bear any further responsibility. But the area's public representatives "would have a great deal of difficulty in rejecting it politically — that's the nature of the process. We don't have that comfortable escape route.

"The union knows they can have it or reject it without difficulty. We know that once that report is brought in we're stuck with it. That's a political reality," Campbell said.

Earlier, CUPE bargaining committee chairman Jim Walker and negotiator Tom Smith stressed the employer group's refusal to accept third party intervention whether by a mutually agreed upon outsider or by an industrial inquiry commissioner named by the labor minister.

Smith said the union had made a counter-proposal to the regional group's latest offer—without detailing the amount—prior to the breakup of mediation about 4:30 p.m.

"We indicated we were prepared to reconsider moving, but they showed no interest in it. They're afraid of a third party coming in and finding the union is in a fair position," Smith said.

Victoria Labor Council delegates Wednesday passed a motion condeming Greater Victoria municipalities for refusing to accept the services of an industrial inquiry commission in the civic dispute.

dren that the process will be expedited.

Some people may have been waiting as much as six months to a year for a child from Southeast Asia, said Belknap.

He said there may be one child headed for British Columbia in the current group of orphans waiting in Saigon for immigration to Canada.

Adoption of children is a provincial responsibility and immigration officials have been in discussion with the provinces to ensure they will supervise and take responsibility for any future orphans who come to Canada.

I. G. Preddy, B.C.'s co-ordinator of adoptions, said more than 500 homes in the province have been approved for adoption and another 200-300 are awaiting approval.

Not all those homes are open to Southeast Asian children, she said, but a large number of the prospective parents have expressed a willingness to adopt children from other countries.

"There is a great deal of generosity here," she said.

In Ottawa, Andras said that 22 Cambodian orphans will be brought to Canada as soon as transportation arrangements can be made.

The immigration minister said that his department will give priority to relatives of Canadian citizens or landed immigrants applying to come to Canada from Cambodia or South Vietnam. Priority also willl be given to Canadian families applying to adopt orphans from the war-torn areas.

In addition, Andras said that no Vietnamese or Cambodians now in Canada will be required to leave "for any reason as long as the present situation continues."

The Provisional Revolutionary Government of Vietnam today asked the International Red Cross and the United Nations for emergency aid for six million war refugees now under Communist control, the Red Cross announced. It said two million of the refugees were children and requested top priority for clothes, drugs and fortified foods.

UNICEF said it will launch a new appeal for funds to meet the request.

The B.C. legislature's $2.25 million fund for Vietnamese children has still not been spent and recent hostilities in that country have again left the future of the fund in limbo.

The money was originally put into a trust fund in the spring of 1973 by a motion of the legislature and the fund was to be disbursed to aid children in Vietnam.

A total of $300,000 in interest was taken from the fund the first year and divided among three volunteer agencies in Southeast Asia. The remainder was left in trust for future distribution among similar groups.

Earlier this year, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said the all-party committee, set up to administer the fund, would be able to make its final recommendation to the legislature on disbursement of the money at the start of the spring session.

But that final report has never been tabled in the house and Conservative leader and committee member Scott Wallace said Wednesday he has urged more delays in allotment of the money.

"In light of the complete collapse of the situation in Vietnam," he said, "my feeling is that the decision made about a month ago for dividing the money should be suspended until we see what happens."

Do community resource boards really work?

"It's too early to tell," says Ron Willems, the person hired by the department of human resources to co-ordinate all CRBs in B.C. outside the Lower Mainland.

Working half-time at the job from Victoria's Belmont Bldg., Willems still holds a second job as a consultant to the department. He'll give that up as soon as possible, he says, and work with (boards) full time.

Although he just started March 1, Willems already has three liaison workers in the field, in Nelson, Vancouver's North Shore and on northern Vancouver Island.

More liaison workers are being trained by Willems to go into various B.C. regions and help locals set up resource boards.

Although Vancouver resource boards are handling some statutory social services, Willems confirmed that no boards elsewhere will oversee those kinds of services, which include child protection and financial assistance such as Mincome.

Rather they will handle grant applications, run volunteer services and carry out programs such as Meals on Wheels, he said.

Willems is a native of the Fraser Valley who has lived in Victoria for two years. He acted as a social worker in Dawson Creek for five years.

Central Saanich is growing quickly and demand for its land is increasing; development is one of the major concerns of its citizens today. Some of them met last week with a view to re-activating the CENTRAL SAANICH RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION so residents can influence future change.

William Cunningham of 1049 Mt. Newton X Rd. is chairman of the steering committee to bring the association back to life after its dormant last two years.

Residents will be called to a general meeting later this month.

Homemade vegetable soup will be made from scratch in one of dozens of demonstrations at the spring food festival to be held April 12 by the CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION TO SAVE THE ENVIRONMENT.

Other demonstrations will show the making of bread, butter and whole wheat pastry. Lecturers will talk on the use of nutritional supplements in cooking and the multiple uses of the protein-packed soybean.

There will be displays and talks on organic gardening in this festival scheduled for First United Church from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Charge will be $1 for adults, with discounts for students and children.

Beginning this month the monthly allotment will be $3,684, an increase of $284 per month, according to the office of local MLA Jim Gorst.

The extra money means programs now running on L.I.P. funds will be able to continue when the federal money stops in June, said centre spokesman Pat Griffin.

Everyone who's even just a little bit lonely is welcome at the lounge of the YM-YWCA Saturday night from 7 to 9:30 p.m. It will be the second gathering of the GET-TOGETHER CLUB which was nameless when last announced in this column.

Members agreed on the name last month when more than people came out to sing along and meet each other.

Organizers Steve Durfee and George Pymm said two piano players came out and played all the favorites requested.

"A lot of these lonely people are sitting at home; maybe they've lost a husband or wife . . . but when they get out they really come alive," said Durfee.

The club will meet monthly from now on.

"They all seem to have come out of the woodwork on St. Patrick's Night," said Brenda O'Sullivan, counting members of the new IRISH-CANADIAN CULTURAL ASSOCIATION in Victoria.

She says the club has well over 200 members after only a month's operation. Regular meetings will be planned for the sake of bringin' a little Irish culture to our English-Canadian enclave.

First social evening is planned for next month when members can go to an Irish pub and sing-along night May 10 at Leonardo da Vinci centre.

Persons of Irish heritage who wish to take part by dancing, playing music or reading poetry should write Jim O'Sullivan, P.O. Box 1615, Victoria.

O'Sullivan was elected president at a recent executive meeting. Eleven others were elected to executive positions as well.

These 12 will meet Monday to make further plans for the May social night.

There's a lot happening in the spring program of the JAMES BAY COMMUNITY SCHOOL . . . something to entice almost every resident in the community.

Registrations for the sessions are April 9 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.; April 10, 11 to 4 p.m.; and the same time Friday, April 11.

Registrations tentatively will be at the community school but should the CUPE strike still be in effect, registrations will be taken at the Scout Hall at Dallas and Pilot.

New courses offered include:

- Gardening: land for labor — if a person has gardening space and unable to garden, or if you would like to garden and have no space — registrations will be taken in both situations and the participants brought together.
- Babysitting — the school has a group of trained teenage girls and would also like to establish a co-op babysitting group.
- Recycling — after the strike a recycling depot will be established at the school. To begin with the depot will only be open Saturdays, however it could be open longer should enough people volunteer for sorting.
- The human resources department has granted the school a licence to operate an out-of-school daycare centre to be open from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The program is geared to handle 20 children between the ages of 6 to 8 years of age and target date for this is April 7.

- Kindergarten orientation: On Wednesday, April 9, April 23, May 21, June 4 and June 18 the school is offering an opportunity for children starting kindergarten next September to become acquainted with the school and the program. Parents are welcome to stay for these sessions.
- Canoeing — In co-operation with Camosun College there will be two evenings of basic instruction capped with a day-long trip. This course dates are May 20 and 23 and the day trip the following Sunday.
- Volunteering — Lay counselling is offered as a training program. The eight-week course will be instructed by sociologist Bill Norton and is geared to help lay people develop "empathy, respect and listening skills" in dealing with problems. The course is free and should begin this month.

Ignorant Fiction

The explanation by RCMP brass that only senior members of the force were issued that 39-page manual instructing them to use brainwashing techniques, lies, deceit and other tricks in interrogating suspects was supposedly intended to be reassuring. Only a relatively small number of plain-clothes detectives assigned to serious criminal cases are familiar with its contents, we're told. That isn't good enough.

Even if only one Mountie was using the thing, it should be cause for a serious examination of the RCMP's techniques.

If news reports are correct (and the RCMP hasn't denied anything in the hair-raising accounts that have appeared), this booklet promotes all sorts of extra-legal activity, almost everything short of hot bright lights and lead-filled saps.

The booklet reportedly outlines a number of brainwashing-style interrogation techniques designed to make the subject feel "completely forsaken and forgotten." There's the heaven and hell technique, in which the suspect has "a look at hell" (that sounds like the classical first and second degrees of torture, where the prisoner is told of various fiendish, pain-producing devices, then is shown the instruments.)

Written by Chief Inspector A. R. Roberts of the Calgary city police, the booklet is almost laughable in some respects. The author has trotted out some of the hoariest stereotypes — the jolly fat man who should be humored along to get answers, the emotional woman upon whose feelings of love, jealousy and fear police should play, the tall, slender introverted type (poets, thinkers and writers whose intellects must be appealed to for information) and the short trouble-maker, the little guy who always caused the fight. Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Napoleon are mentioned here.

The booklet might be just a bad joke if it weren't for the other revolting and repulsive things — planting officers in cells with suspects, the "pyramid of lies" technique to confuse a suspect on the details of an alibi, gaining his confidence by suggesting an under-table deal can be made.

It also makes a special point of dealing with sex offenders. RCMP officers are told they should talk to a suspected rapist like this:

"There is no doubt in my mind that she was asking for it . . . nine times out of 10 they are to blame . . . Hell, even I had ideas when I was talking to her. She's just that type that would give anybody ideas."

Many women who have suffered through the indignity and trauma of a police rape investigation and subsequent trial might wonder if some police officers have to pretend to hold such beliefs.

Taken together, the whole "bag of tricks" is repugnant, and Conservative MP David MacDonald is right to call for an inquiry. The booklet is stupid, heavy-handed and promotes the violation of what small civil rights Canadians are allowed in contretemps with the law. The booklet should be relegated to the RCMP archives, under the heading of antiquated fiction.

" . . . now for Pete's sake, stay calm and don't panic . . . I've got guns, rifles, tanks, planes, bombs, rockets . . . just name it . . . "

Quebec Has Real Scandals

It's no justification for the situation here in British Columbia, of course, but even a cursory glance at Quebec politics lately makes the so-called scandals and indiscretions and omissions of the Barrett government shrink into insignificance.

Discovering how bad things are next door is a trite way of minimizing one's own troubles, but things in Quebec aren't just bad, they're terrible, egregiously bad. Prime Minister Trudeau is right to be so gloomy and pessimistic about his native province's future, if we can judge from recent events under Premier Robert Bourassa's stewardship.

A B.C. cabinet minister putting a $200 political donation in his personal bank account, the premier accused of lying in the trivial chicken-and-egg case, his resources minister playing loose with confidential memoranda — all these pale into mild indiscretions when set beside the rot in the Quebec construction industry, the Quebec government, the Quebec Federation of Labor.

The recently-ended Cliche inquiry into the construction industry, which was originally commissioned to investigate after a James Bay hydro construction site was ransacked by construction workers (at a cost of $35 million), turned up all kinds of dirty business, reaching even into the office of the premier of Quebec.

"Disloyal practices and deviant actions have become current practice among unions, contractors, the government and certain politicians," Judge Robert Cliche said. "Proof has been made of violence, threats, blackmail, provocation, intimidation, extortion, discrimination, sabotage, corruption, influence peddling, electoral complicity, bribery, dealings and all sorts of compromises. Underworld criminal practices such as illegal lotteries, loan-sharking, bootlegging, drug peddling, sabotage have infiltrated the (construction) industry."

Some of the items on the bill of particulars:

A goon squad of about 60 men with guns and chains based in Montreal would travel around Quebec supplying muscle wherever needed, beating up rival union members, persuading others to walk off construction sites.

The Quebec public works department paid $60,000 protection money, in effect — to an elevator company, no questions asked, to "buy labor peace" according to a deputy minister. Union officials extracted other payoffs from contractors under threat of work slowdowns. One former business agent admitted earning $50,000 a year in such payoffs.

Bourassa has been called the "Nixon of the north" for his failure to remember that Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette told him four years ago about wiretap recordings involving three senior civil servants in his office allegedly implicated in a $2,000 job-buying scheme.

Never in the NDP's palmiest days as scandal-mongering opposition MLAs, and Social Credit's frenetic attempts nowadays to dig up dirt on the socialists in power in B.C., was there anything remotely similar to the mess in Quebec. British Columbia's only bad boy, former cabinet minister Robert Sommers, looks like a penny-ante piker when compared with some of the villains in the drama being played out now in la belle province.

Infectious Matter

I should like to take issue with the position advanced by Tom Shales in Big Dollars Attracts Stars to Commercials in the Times television guide. It is not likely that Sir Laurence Olivier requires additional income from Polaroid to subsist, and I should be more inclined to question my respect for him than my standards of theatrical legitimacy on this point. God's wrath on Sodom, to quote an old story, was hardly lessened by the argument that "everybody is doing it."

Especially now that the federal government has moved to reduce and eventually eliminate the commercial content on the CBC, we must maintain with increasing vigor our abhorrence of these all-too frequent insults to the human sensibility whose only motive is pecuniary, whosoever sacrifices his image to their cause.

I believe your readers should be given an opportunity to hear a second opinion in this matter, and not be subjected to programming and psychological manipulation from the Washington Post or any other U.S. institutions designed to break down our native resistance to infectious matter from Madison Avenue or anywhere else. — A. L. Bloom, Sooke.

Make Noises

I couldn't agree more with Max Low's article in the Times on March 20. For years the cry here was those dirty so and sos from Vancouver, we always get the dirty end of the stick. I'm talking about Victoria United, O'Keefes and London Boxing Club, etc., who invariably won against the top Pacific Coast League (Vancouver) clubs.

Now VISL (ha, ha) say Island clubs can no longer play in BCSL (Vancouver) matches. That goes for all league teams on Vancouver Island. Now when a BCSL team visits here, they beat the all-stars of the VISL premier division 6 to 2.

That's not so bad as the fact that now we have VISL handing out the same treatment to Nanaimo as they complained about receiving from Vancouver coast league for years and years.

Surely there must be someone in soccer management here who can see beyond the end of his nose. How about some interlocking games between the premier division here and BCSL Vancouver?

Flair for Figures

Soon B.C. Premier Dave Barrett will be at Ottawa's door to grandstand his natural gas issue. Most British Columbians shudder at the thought. We woefully remember his contribution to the Syncrude issue. In Calgary, Mr. Barrett summed up Syncrude as a $2 billion investment and a $30 billion return. He made the subtraction and concluded that a socialist government would give a $28 billion return to the people. A person would have to be either simple-minded or bent on misleading the public to make such a statement. No wonder our provincial budget is a disaster!

The correct figures Syncrude will invest approximately $2 billion and over a 25-year period will receive approximately $4 billion, an average of eight per cent return on investment. The province of Alberta will receive a like amount. In total, the Alberta government will receive approximately 60 per cent of the revenues while Syncrude supplies the risk capital and technology. It appears Mr. Barrett excluded such things as operating costs.

This is the same fellow who now is about to make the federal government the scape goat for the fact that he neglected to provide the municipal governments with adequate revenue. His ploy is to blame Ottawa's restraint on the export price of natural gas for his lack of funds. He won't mention that his wasteful policies have caused his budget to increase 47 per cent over last years' budget, or that over the last two years his expenditures have exceeded his budgets by $718 million. Nor will be mention that his policies have decreased the province's natural resource tax base.

Win or lose, we can expect Mr. Barrett to use his Ottawa confrontation and his flair for figures to build an election issue. — Guy B. Lemieux, Parksville, B.C.

Canada's Shame

On March 15, with many others I attended a meeting of the Society for Fur Bearing Animals, and we were given a demonstration of the traps used for trapping these poor animals.

It is indeed Canada's shame that, in this day and age, leg-hold traps are still being used, after 200 years. The suffering and the way they die is nauseating. The Conibear trap and many other models for a more hmane way of despatching them has been sent to the government for approval, but they are still sitting in some office. Some 30,000 squirrels were killed painfully last year in British Columbia alone, and I see that once again the baby seal hunt is on. It is disgusting. — F. Rundquist, 11 Chown Place.

Lougheed Won 69 Seats But What Will He Do With Them?

By JAMES GRAY

CALGARY — Among the records established in the Alberta provincial election last week, in addition to the unprecedented 63 per cent of the votes the Tories won, was an all-time record for flim flammery. The public relations wizards who mapped Conservative Leader Peter Lougheed's strategy of gulling the public with a non-campaign of non-sequiturs outdid the Trudeau flacks and even rivalled the performance of the copyright owner himself, Richard Nixon.

The election was called, Premier Lougheed told the legislature, to obtain public endorsement of his energy policies and to strengthen his hand for his April confrontation with Ottawa over oil prices. That was the last anybody heard of Lougheed's energy policies as an election issue.

The Conservatives not only avoided contact with opposition at public forums, open line shows and meetings sponsored by citizen groups, they ignored every issue raised during the campaign. Lougheed confined himself to a couple of endlessly repeated set speeches, extolling the glories of a "heritage trust fund" without ever defining it, and promising multi-million-dollar industrialization and public projects.

So if the rest of Canada is wondering what effect the election will have on petroleum prices and energy costs, don't ask anybody in Alberta. Albertans endorsed Lougheed's oil pricing policy by default because they won't discover what it is until the April conference with Ottawa and the provinces.

In this election, the brave Lochinvar who roared out of the west to rescue provincial natural resources income from the Ottawa dragons disappeared in a cloud of public relations. If a knock-down constitutional fight develops on that issue, somebody else will have to start it.

Premier Peter Lougheed puts campaign seal on March 26 election results — all but six seats won by Tories

Top executives of the petroleum industry are becoming convinced Alberta outsmarted itself. When Ottawa decided to disallow royalties paid to provinces as expenses of oil companies, it directly challenged the provinces on a fundamental constitutional question. Instead of meeting the challenge head on, as he seemed to be doing in the beginning, Lougheed opted for cuteness.

Alberta established its own crown corporation to buy and sell all the oil in the province, taking its cut out of the price of oil instead of in royalties. Ottawa simply notified the oil companies that it would deem part of the net price a royalty payment. Under the income tax act, Ottawa can deem almost anything.

Unless Alberta challenges it in the supreme court, the April energy conference will be a polite charade which, one may suspect, has already been orchestrated.

Meanwhile, U.S. demand for Canadian oil is falling sharply because of the high price ordered by Ottawa, pipelines in western Saskatchewan are shutting down and the exodus of oil drilling rigs from Alberta is increasing.

As for the election, it might well have been a forum for threshing out some matters of principle. The star-crossed Socreds tried to make an issue of the socialist tendencies of the Lougheed administration. It demanded to know why a conservative government was buying into an international airline — Pacific Western Airlines which it took over — and Syncrude. By avoiding all contact with the opposition and its issues, the Conservatives easily avoided having to answer.

Nick Taylor, the Liberal leader, posed the most intriguing issue of the campaign. He took industrialization head on. Let Ontario and Quebec have all the industrial plants, with their air, soil and water pollution and mind-numbing jobs. Let Alberta concentrate on becoming an international think tank of energy specialists. Concentrate, he urged, on training Albertans for the high paid jobs as design engineering specialists, processing specialists.

At present Canada has to rely heavily on American engineering for such things as James Bay power and Syncrude, etc. Vast sums are paid annually to American consultants when we should be developing our own specialists. Taylor's entire slate of candiates lost their deposits, as did Taylor himself in a riding that was once a Liberal stronghold.

But what were Alberta voters doing in face of the snow job they got from the $1 million Conservative campaign? For starters, they were enjoying the highest standard of living in history. So for seconds 40 per cent of those eligible never bothered to vote. For thirds, the grab by Ottawa for Alberta's royalty income was still fresh in the public mind. Then there was the persistent sacrifice by Ottawa of the interests of the farmers to the striking grain handlers.

Finally, Albertans simply voted as they have always voted, for the likeliest winner. Albertans are convinced their interests are better off represented by government members than opposition members. In fact, they are.

First, the Liberals won whopping victories in election after election, in the early part of the century, then the U.F.A. followed suit. The Socreds under Manning habitually won 90 per cent of the seats — once took all but two.

In Alberta, policies or principles do not matter. It is who is going to win. With all the other parties starved for funds, with the Socreds in complete disarray, the Liberals unable to shed the Trudeau albatross and the New Democratic Party hopelessly outgunned in every way, Mickey Mouse could have been elected with the Conservative nomination. In fact, he was in several constituencies.

As the landslide was developing the pundits turned quickly to wondering about Lougheed's future. Would his victory become a springboard for a try for the Tory national leadership?

The premier quickly disclaimed any such intentions. But did his retirement as provincial natural resources champion not make sense only if he was keeping federal options open? From a practical standpoint however, even his winning 69 out of 75 seats still leaves him a longshot. So far, flimflammery seems to work only for the party in power — vide Nixon, Trudeau and now Lougheed.

An even greater handicap for any provincial politician is the Conservative party's lamentable record with leaders drafted from provincial premiers. They tried first with Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, tried again with Premier George Drew of Ontario and went down for the third time with Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia.

PARIS — Pegoud, who first looped the loop in an aeroplane, has just had his salary increased to 13 cents a day. This is for the days he does not fly. When he flies all day he will get 70 cents a day. This is the extent of the recompense Pegoud has received for the most brilliant aerial exploit accomplished by any aviator since the beginning of the war. Pegoud attacked and brought to earth three German aviators in one day.

STARK ALTERNATIVES FACE 137 NATIONS AT GENEVA

'World Conflict' Threat Haunts Law of Sea Talks

By GEOFFREY STEVENS

The proposition could scarcely have been stated more starkly than it was in a letter written to President Gerald Ford in January by 22 members of the United states Senate. "Seldom in history," wrote the senators, "has the potential for future conflict on a world-wide scale been so clearly identifiable while there was still an opportunity to head off that conflict . . . We believe the door is rapidly closing on the opportunity to reach an international agreement in this area. It is imperative that the negotiations reach an agreement by the end of 1975."

Future conflict on a world-wide scale? The door rapidly closing? Imperative that agreement be reached by the end of the year? The 22 senators are responsible men, not alarmists, including among their number Warren Magnuson, Edmund Muskie, Clifford Case, George McGovern, Henry Jackson, Edward Kennedy. What are they so worried about? Arab oil? The Middle East? Southeast Asia?

Urgent Necessity

No, they are talking about the Law of the Sea. About the urgent necessity of concluding an international treaty to govern the future of the two-thirds of the earth's surface that is covered by salt water. About the potential for world strife, even war, if treaty is not agreed, and agreed quickly. They wrote the letter to focus President Ford's attention on the importance of the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea in Geneva.

The 137 nations which met last summer in Caracas are reassembled in Geneva for eight weeks, from March 17 to May 10, to continue the work begun in the Venezuelan capital.

The situation — and this is based on first-hand experience in Caracas, plus recent interviews in Ottawa and Washington and at the United Nations — can be set out as follows. Although it was not meant to be so, the 10-week 1974 conference in Caracas proved to be a preliminary session. The 60-odd nations that had not previously been involved in Law of the Sea negotiation were initiated into its mysteries. The background was explored. Issues were defined and clarified. Areas of potential agreement were discussed and a little progress was actually made.

The main progress came on two related questions: territorial seas and the concept of the "economic zone". There was a broad consensus at Caracas that the territorial waters of coastal states should extend 12 miles offshore — and that the economic zone (in which the coastal state would exercise limited sovereignty) would stretch at least a further 188 miles, for a total distance of 200 miles offshore. Three of the great maritime powers, the United States, the Soviet Union and the United Kingdom, had not accepted the 12 plus 188 formula before Caracas, so the consensus represented a significant step forward.

There was no agreement, however, on many vital details — the passage of foreign ships through territorial waters; the powers of coastal states in their economic zones; whether economic zones would stop at 200 miles or would (as Canada and other broad-shelf countries want) stretch out to the edge of the continental margin. Nor was there much discernible progress at Caracas on other key issues, including the structure and powers of the proposed new world authority to control the exploitation of the minerals in the international deep sea bed.

Because every issue involves the rights of sovereign states, none is easy to resolve — and it can be argued that it would be unrealistic to expect Geneva to resolve very many of them. But resolve them it must, because an increasing number of nations (Canada included) are losing patience with negotiations that began with the first Law of the Sea Conference back in 1958. Several are moving toward unilateral actions to assert or protect their national self-interests.

This does not mean Geneva must produce a treaty with every "i" dotted and every "T" crossed. No one dares hope for that much. But — and this point was made repeatedly in interviews in the last few weeks — substantial progress must be demonstratable. If the diplomats can go home from Geneva with a piece of paper showing agreement on Points A, B, and C and a good prospect for early agreement on Points D and E, the negotiating process will continue. If not, the "future conflict" envisaged by the American senators may be unavoidable.

Determination

There are reasons for being both optimistic and pessimistic about the outcome of the conference. There are two main reasons for optimism, the first being that there was, at the conference's first session in Caracas last summer, a very real determination on the part of virtually all of the 137 nations to come up with a comprehensive international treaty. Perhaps some of them were preoccupied with tactics rather than with negotiating. But no one wanted to do anything that would destroy the possibility of eventually reaching an agreement that his government could ratify.

The second reason for optimism is the sense of urgency which, as noted yesterday, surrounds the conference. "We've got to have good results, even if they are only partial results, to show from the conference," says Paul Lapointe, of External Affairs, who will be deputy leader of the Canadian delegation in Geneva. Ambassador John Stevenson, the leader of the United States delegation, emphasized the same point in an interview in New York: "It is very critical that Geneva does produce not only progress but something people can see as progress."

Everyone involved in Law of the Sea discussions knows the negotiations are in imminent danger of being overtaken by events. If Geneva does not produce real and tangible progress, countries like the United States, Norway, Iceland, Japan and, yes, Canada, to mention only a few, will give up on a comprehensive treaty.

Then, one of two things would happen. Either every country would lay claim to as much of the sea as it could, or negotiations would turn to a series of piecemeal treaties covering specific issues. The trouble with a piecemeal approach is that the sum of its parts would not be as great as one comprehensive treaty. Each country would be free to ratify the treaties that benefited it and reject those that benefited someone else.

The awareness of the undesirability of the alternatives — unilateral action or piecemeal treaties — can only spur delegates at Geneva to move quickly to draft a treaty. And that's good.

What's not so good and what gives rise to a certain pessimism is that not very much seems to have happened since the Caracas session adjourned at the end of August. The idea then was the months leading up to Geneva would be devoted to intensive discussions with other countries to narrow existing differences and to set the stage for hard bargaining to begin without delay in Geneva. Instead, a weariness — a sort of diplomatic fatigue — seemed to set in after the 10 hard weeks in Caracas.

As far as Canada is concerned, there have been some bilateral talks with the United States and Japan; representatives from Guinea and Peru have passed through Ottawa; Mr. Lapointe lead a delegation to Senegal, Tunisia and Algeria in January; another External Affairs official went to Tehran; the leader of the Canadian Law of the Sea delegation, Alan Beesley, who doubles as Ambassador to Vienna, flew to New York for meetings at the United nations. But this rather difuse activity does not seem to add up to concentrated pre-conference negotiating and there is no indication that any of it has really advanced Canada's position.

Another cause for concern is talk that is already making the rounds about yet another Law of the Sea Conference in early 1976. This sort of talk is self-defeating. The more likely the delegates think a future conference is, the less they will feel compelled to accomplish in Geneva. The postponing of hard decisions is part of the nature of the diplomatic beast.

Two issues will stand out from the dozens of others in Geneva. They are passage through international straits and exploitation of the international seabed.

They stand out because they are exceptionally difficult to resolve, because they intimately affect the interest of the United States and because the U.S. Congress cannot be counted on to ratify any treaty which fails to satisfy U.S. interest. Without American acceptance, a treaty would be next to worthless.

On the straits issue, the United States (along with the Soviet Union and certain other maritime powers) is clinging to the doctrine of freedom of the high seas at a point in time when most of the coastal states are eagerly dismantling the doctrine by bringing as much of the seas as they can under national jurisdiction. The United States supports the consensus at Caracas last summer that the territorial waters of coastal states should extend 12 miles offshore. The problem is that 112 international straits that are less than 24 miles wide (including Gibraltar and Malacca) would become the territorial waters of the bordering nations.

Unimpeded Transit

This means these nations could impose their own rules, ban certain type of traffic (say, oil supertankers or nuclear submarines) or close the straits entirely to unfriendly nations. This is totally unacceptable to the United States which insists on "unimpeded transit" through straits.

The straits issue can only be resolved through compromise. Vessels planning to pass through could be required to notify the straits states involved. There could be special navigational standards imposed on the transiting countries — traffic separation, vessel construction, emissions of pollutants, and so on. It might be possible to restrict the types of armaments that could be taken through straits. So far, however, the United States has shown no inclination to compromise.

On the seabed issue, it is generally agreed there should be a bicameral international seabed authority on the pattern of the United Nations itself. That's where agreement begins and ends.

The United States wants an authority that would be little more than a traffic policeman — issuing mining and drilling licences to countries and corporations that have the technology to do the job and collecting royalities from them. The developing nations, fearing a rip off, want an authority that would do the exploitation itself.

Again, it's a matter of compromise. Canada and some others propose a mixture of contracting out and direct exploitation. Some African countries suggest starting with a licencing or countracting arrangement and gradually phasing it out in favor of direct exploitation.

An even more difficult problem concerns the structure of the bicameral seabed authority. The United States wants no repetition of the one-nation-one vote problems of the UN General Assembly. It would assign to the larger body (on which every nation would be represented) only the power to recommend to the smaller executive body. The smaller nations naturally want the real power to reside in the larger body. The compromise could be to give most of the power to the executive body and structure its membership in such a way as to guarantee that every interest bloc is represented. But this could prove so awkward as to be impossible.

To sum up, keep one eye peeled for signs of compromise at Geneva on the straits and seabed issues. Keep the other eye on Washington. If the Congress concludes Geneva is not making progress on issues vital to American interests, it can be expected to take unilateral action; there might be enough votes to over-ride a presidential veto.

Fisheries Bill

Senator Warren Magnuson's bill to declare an exclusive 200-mile fishing zone off the coasts of the United States, which passed the Senate by 68 votes to 27 in the dying days of the previous Congress, will be before the Senate again. Similar legislation is planned in the House of Representatives. "If the fisheries bill goes through," predicts a Senate aide who specializes in the Law of the Sea, "it will be followed very shortly by bills dealing with mineral resources, environmental pollution and unimpeded transit."

If that happens in Washington, the debate in Geneva will be rendered largely irrelevant.

Chaotic Army Blind to Class

SAIGON — The 22-year-old son of an upper middle class family sat on a comfortable old sofa at home and talked about what it feels like, at a moment of grave crisis for his nation, to have suddenly been drafted into the army under the new emergency conscription requirements enacted a week ago.

Tall, lean, strikingly handsome and dressed in modish clothes, this young student spoke softly in perfect English as his mother, father, other family members and collegemates sat around the living room. He spoke of how terrible new events have suddenly and dramatically altered the lives and hopes not only of himself but of millions of other Vietnamese.

"I'm going into the army and I know that it means I'll never be able to get out," he said. "I know now that all my dreams and plans for the future are shattered. You know, I wanted to go and study in a good college in the United States, but the government wouldn't let me go.

"I don't want to go into the army. I don't feel good about it, but I feel that I will be fighting for the people and not for some corrupt minority in government. I'm not frightened, just kind of disappointed. My mother is very sorry and she's afraid for me and I understand her feeling.

"You know, in 1953 my father went into the army for just two years, and he ended up staying in most of his life. Now at the end of it we still have nothing and now I follow him."

While he spoke, three of his classmates sat around a nearby dining table studying for exams — their last for a while, because they, too, have been drafted under the new lower age requirements that subject an estimated additional 50,000 persons to the draft.

"My friends are going in with me, that's right," said the young man. He paused and then added, "we are going, I guess, because the war is for everybody, not just the poor people."

An afternoon's conversation with this family disclosed that the notion of paying a bribe to keep the son out of the army was never considered. The father, an old civil servant now retired, feels strongly that such a course of action would be wrong.

The momentous government defeats of the past three weeks, the drafting of their son, and the deteriorating situation that puts their entire future in new and serious doubt is in many ways only a new chapter in an old and familiar story for this family.

"In 1954 we came down from Haiphong by ship," said the father, a fine-featured, intellectual man who speaks English with a French accent. "My wife and our first four children escaped from Hanoi and joined me in Haiphong just three days before the road was closed by the Communists. Our son, who is now being drafted, was with us then and he was just nine months old."

Rioting Saigon students protest draft

"Now I'm afraid," said the mother. "We left Hanoi once to run away from the Communists and now if they come into Saigon I'm afraid they won't leave us safe."

Her lovely 29-year-old daughter, herself a mother of three and who since the offensive began has been trying in vain to send her children to a sister living with an American husband in New York, said, "Yes, we don't know where to run now. My mother always said that if the Communists attack a city you could run away into the countryside. But now the Communists control most of the countryside."

"I'm not really afraid to live with the Communists, they're human beings, too. But life will be hard, and the only thing I'm really afraid of is if the Communists don't allow my children to live with me. That would be the worst thing of all."

Washington Post

THE TWO FACES OF DR. K.

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger is still pursuing his favorite tactic: saying one thing in public, and "passing the word" directly to the contrary in private.

Voice cracking in anguish, he tells cameras that he does not blame either Egypt or Israel for the breakdown in negotiations, that this is not the time for "recriminations."

Then, from the ambush of unquotable background, we read in an accurate dispatch in The New York Times that the Secretary "was reported to have said in private that he was disappointed with Israel for not being able or willing to take a more flexible position."

Another example: With much fanfare, the United States has announced a "reassessment" of Mideast policy which everybody with his head screwed on tightly took to mean exactly what it was meant to mean: that Israel, not having obeyed our orders, had better watch out. There could not have been a clearer or crueler implied threat.

Not so, says Henry Kissinger, wearing his public face again. Gee, reassessments come naturally; we always strike these matches in gas-filled rooms; we did not mean to frighten the Israelis.

A third example of the two-faced technique: Henry briefs a group of twenty Senators on the failure of the mission. He tolerates their fawning attentions like a lost mountain climber discovered by an overly affectionate St. Bernard, and then passes the word to the most prestigious columnist in America that "he found that the reaction was violently anti-Israel."

Senators who were in that room do not agree; indeed, many were astounded that their troubled reaction was characterized by the Secretary of State as "violently anti-Israel." In such ways does Henry — the private Henry, from the ambush — punish the Israelis for not accepting his terms, undermining their public-opinion support.

This analysis of two-facedness will be hotly denounced as an attack on the Secretary's personal honor, but the facts cannot be disputed: Kissinger likes to work on two tracks, often going in opposite directions, and the American press lets him.

Let us credit him with the noblest of intentions for his two faces: We can see how he wants to keep himself on good mediation terms with the Arabs, who are not unsophisticated at this game, and cannot be displeased at the background savaging of the Israeli position.

Presumably, Secretary Kissinger figures he can always win back Israeli friendship, and it is useful to keep a foot in the Arab tent for future dickering. But in so doing, he fundamentally misreads the kind of policy necessary for the United States to follow in order to keep the peace in the Mideast.

With the failure of the latest round of mediation, we must stop being the evenhanded nation in the middle, honestly brokering until the final crunch, when we put our pressure where it can most easily be applied, on Israel.

As we approach Geneva — which we should be in no great hurry to do — we should position ourselves enough off-centre to counter the Soviet bias toward the Arabs. We ought not to berate Arabs, or even privately blame them for the tension; we must make certain, however, that all the world knows that any force applied to Israel will be met with more than sufficient counterforce.

As Mr. Sadat announced "we have the upper hand," he must be made to understand that any war he starts would be followed by defeat, and so the best course is a gradual lessening of tension. Only a credible United States Secretary of State can make him understand that.

The diplomacy of negotiation is not the diplomacy of duplicity. To replace Mr. Kissinger's two faces, we need three faces: one new face as Secretary of State, another new face as national Security Adviser, and a third new face — perhaps an old face — for roving envoy.

The Israelis do not want supporters to call for Henry's scalp, for fear that they will be blamed for an abortive effort; in addition, Mr. Nixon privately and loyally informs friends (in refreshingly strong handwriting) that he is distressed by attacks on Henry by his former colleagues. Sorry, everybody; it's time for a new team and fresh start.

If the route is through Geneva with nations present, we need a man whose assurances will be believed and whose public face will at least nearly match his private face. If the route is low-key two-party negotiations with the United States working the midde, an envoy is needed who will not have to bear the burden of not being Henry.

Dr. Kissinger genuinely wants peace, the highest motive of all, but he also wants to be the man revered as peacemaker. The time has come for him to make the sacrifice of the second in order to help achieve the first.

Beaver Lumber Research Shows Victoria Unique

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Victoria is not like other Canadian cities when it comes to caring for lawns and renovating homes, says John Macdonald, Victoria manager of Vancouver Island's first Beaver Lumber store.

"Victorians put extra effort into their lawns and the exterior of their homes," he said in an interview Wednesday in conjunction with the official opening of the store in the Hillside Mall.

Macdonald said houses were surveyed in a wide area from Oak Bay to Sidney and on average, there was evidence of a higher level of care than in a typical Canadian city.

The survey was conducted for Beaver Lumber by a national research company.

There are several reasons for the extra level of care, Macdonald said.

"The main factor is climate. Victorians can work outdoors for more months of the year than elsewhere in Canada and there is more interest in gardening.

"A second factor is the greater amount of leisure time in this area because it is a retirement community."

Macdonald said it is a fallacy to think people lose interest in do-it-yourself projects when they reach 65.

"Many retired men are busy fixing kitchens for their daughters or granddaughters. Others are improving their own houses."

But the survey also showed that Victoria is becoming a younger city all the time.

The survey quoted census figures showing the 20 to 65 age group growing at the rate of 18 per cent in a five-year period while the total population was growing at a rate of just over 12 per cent.

Macdonald said the Victoria Beaver Lumber store would be emphasizing outdoor goods as a result of the survey. The store also handles lumber and hardware products.

Bedding plants are in high demand, according to the survey, and Macdonald hopes to open a plant section in association with the store within a year.

On hand for the official opening were Beaver Lumber president David Lakie and executive vice president for operations, A. L. Keyworth, both of Toronto.

Lakie said that at 33,000 square feet, the Victoria store is the second largest Beaver store in B.C. The largest, 42,000 square feet, is on Kingsway on the lower mainland.

He said Beaver Lumber was taken over by The Molson Co. Ltd. three years ago. Before the takeover, in 1971, Beaver Lumber's total revenue for the year was $89 million.

Expanded under Molson, Beaver Lumber has grossed $210 million for the fiscal year completed March 31, Lakie said. About $20 million of the total is from a hardware chain owned by the company in Ontario.

He said there are 260 Beaver Lumber stores in Canada plus 25 Saveway Lumber and Building Materials stores. The latter are budget self-serve lumber stores.

A Saveway store and a second Beaver Lumber store are under consideration for the Victoria area, he said.

Macdonald, 25, who was assistant manager of the large Kingsway store, has a staff of 40 at the Victoria outlet.

Oil Firms Pay $8.5M To Calif.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four oil companies paid the state of California nearly $8.5 million Wednesday in settlement of a 1969 federal asphalt anti-trust suit.

The settlement disclosed by Attorney-General Evelle Younger was reached March 19.

The $8,493,873 was paid into an escrow fund by Union, Shell and Gulf Oil companies and Chevron Asphalt Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of California.

The firms were accused of fixing prices from 1955 through 1968 on asphalt sold to public agencies for use in road building. The firms have denied any price fixing or other violations, and the settlement admits no wrongdoing on their part.

GRANDUC REPORTS LOSS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Granduc Mines Ltd. reports a loss of $101,602 or 10 cents a share for 1974 compared with a net profit of $757,998 or 14 cents a share for 1973.

The company's annual report says the Granduc mine will remain in operation on a reduced basis until economic conditions improve. The mine laid off 480 of its 800-man work force and cut production back to 4,000 tons a day in December.

J. H. Parliament, vice president and general manager of the Granduc Operating Co., said the cutbacks are a holding action "to retain a substantial number of our employees and to keep the mine in condition so that full production would again be possible when the situation warrants."

During 1974 63.7 million pounds of copper in concentrates were produced from 2.7 million tons of 1.23 per cent copped produced at the mine, he said.

Mine reserves now stand at 22.3 million tons of average 1.71 per cent copper, down from 32.9 million at the end of 1973.

The company wrote off almost 8.5 million tons of ore in 1974 because it was no longer economic to mine.

The company estimates it will have to pay the provincial government $1.6 million for 1974 under the Mineral Land Tax Act.

Tank Car Hunt Ending

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four companies searching Georgia Strait for four submerged railway tank cars full of liquid chlorine will likely end their hunt by Friday unless they get further funding, the search leader said Wednesday.

Captain Fred Collins, operations manager for Seaspan International Ltd., said in an interview the search now is "a day-to-day thing" and he doubted if it will last past Friday.

The companies began their own search after the federal transport ministry called off its own hunt. Collins said Seaspan approached the ministry for more funds Wednesday but was turned down.

He said the next step is to seek funds from the owners and the insurers of the cars and their contents.

The cars are owned by FMC Chemicals Ltd. and have been valued at $500,000. The 340 tons of chlorine is owned by MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

The chlorine was bound for Powell River when a barge carrying the cars overturned in heavy seas in Malaspina Strait Feb. 19.

H. O. Buchanan, regional director of marine services for the transport ministry, said Wednesday he is satisfied the cars did not sink in shallow water and finding them is not urgent.

MacMillan Bloedel Forecasts 1975 Profits Lower Than 1974

MacMillan Bloedel's profits will be lower this year than in 1974, the company's senior officers say in their annual report to shareholders.

Net income in 1974 was $72.3 million ($3.41 per share) down from $81.7 million ($3.90 per share) a year earlier.

MacMillan Bloedel chairman G. B. Currie and president D. W. Timmis in a joint statement said the major factor in 1975 revenues would be housing construction in the United States. U.S. government policies to stimulate housing and end the recession would be crucial to the company's level of lumber sales.

The company also expects pulp and paper markets to weaken because of a surplus of both products but this would not result in a serious downturn in sales unless the recession deepens.

"Because of the general slowing down of national and international trade, neither the packaging nor the transportation operations of the company will find markets as healthy in 1975 as they did in 1974," the senior officers said.

The forecast did not include any numbers.

While profit was down slightly in 1974, revenues rose to $1.4 billion from $1.2 billion.

Only 40 per cent of this revenue came from lumber sales in 1974, down from 48 per cent the previous year. Newsprint accounted for 22 per cent, up from 19 per cent.

Pulp and paperboard sales brought in 16 per cent of the company's revenue, up from 12 per cent. Corrugated containers accounted for 14 per cent, up from 13 per cent. The other 8 per cent was from miscellaneous activities.

The company relied less upon United States markets in 1974 than in previous years, mainly because of the downturn in lumber demand south of the border.

The largest increase in sales was in continental Europe where 11.9 per cent of the company's revenue was earned, up from 7.9 per cent a year earlier.

Sales in the U.S. accounted for 39 per cent, down from 48.3 per cent. Sales in Japan and other Oriental countries brought in 8.1 per cent, up from 6 per cent.

The sales in the Orient exceeded the total of 6.5 per cent in B.C. during 1974, down from 6.7 per cent. Sales to the rest of Canada totalled 14.6 per cent, up from 14.1 per cent.

Production of lumber, plywood and shingles by MacMillan Bloedel was at its lowest point in the decade.

Total lumber production during 1974 was 988 million board feet, the first time in the seventies that the company's production had been under 1 billion. It had reached a high of 1.3 billion in 1971 and was just under 1.3 billion in 1973.

Plywood production totalled 410 million square feet, down from 521 million and again the lowest level in the seventies.

RECOVERY CLOSE —U.S. EXPERTS

Associated Press

U.S. government economic experts say there now is firm evidence that the deep recession in the United States is nearing an end, but they are not yet sure how strong the economic recovery will be.

The experts say the nation's economy should get a substantial boost from the 1974 income tax rebates the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) will begin mailing May 9. All of the estimated 78 million rebate cheques will be sent by June 30, the IRS said.

But even without the tax rebates, the economy would soon be on the road to recovery, government officials say.

"Every recession carries the seeds of its own recovery, and this one is no exception," Treasury Secretary William Simon said in an interview Tuesday.

The stock market fell Tuesday as the year's second quarter began. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 6.57 to 761.59.

Meanwhile, two business indicators — new orders for manufactured goods and business inventories — reflected Simon's optimism. The commerce department reported the volume of new orders up 1.3 per cent in February, its first rise in six months. And inventories — which must be sold off before industries gear up production and begin rehiring — were reported growing at a slower rate.

James Pate, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs, said he sees "encouraging signs" that the recession is approaching the bottom.

He said the recession in the first quarter has been a little worse than expected and that the upturn could come before mid-year. The drop in the economy for 1975 likely will be closer to 3.5 per cent estimated by the administration earlier, he added.

Simon said he is sticking with his earlier predictions for an end to the recession at midyear, with a resumption of positive economic growth in the fourth quarter.

He said he still estimates that the jobless rate will peak at near nine per cent — up from 8.2 per cent in February — in the months ahead.

Blakeney Unveils Pension Plan

REGINA (CP) — A provincial pension plan and sickness and accident insurance plan were among 150 election campaign promises unveiled today by Premier Allan Blakeney.

In releasing the Saskatchewan NDP platform for the provincial election expected this spring or summer, Premier Blakeney also listed promises for a publicly-owned airline serving northern Saskatchewan, extension of dental care plan benefits to persons up to 18 years old, a landlord-tenant appeal board, and consideration for a farm "veticare" program.

Other promises, many of which consisted of policies already announced, included a commitment to work with the federal government to set up a more accurate weather information service and making dentures available to senior citizens at reduced costs.

The party continued its slogan of the 1971 election campaign — New Deal for People (NDP) — in modified form as New Deal '75.

"Further major program announcements will be forthcoming in the weeks ahead and during the election campaign," the premier said.

KELLY, DOUGLAS NET UP

VANCOUVER (CP) — Net earnings of Kelly, Douglas and Co. Ltd. recovered to $2,967,000 or $1.18 a share in 1974, from $1,346,000 or 51 cents a share the previous year. Sales rose to $486 million from $305 million in 1973.

The company says in its annual report that the latest year's net earnings were only moderately ahead of those in 1972 which were achieved on sales of $280 million.

The acquisition of W. H. Malkin Ltd. during 1974 was the major contributor to increased sales in the year the report says. The Nabob Foods Division, where margins returned to normal, also contributed to improved results.

Power Export Renewal Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cominco Ltd. applied Wednesday to the National Energy Board for the renewal of licences permitting the export of surplus hydro power to the United States.

The company, which operates power plants on the Kootenay and Pend Oreille rivers to meet its own industrial energy needs, is licensed until June 30 to export 601,5 million kilowatt hours annually. The power is supplied on an interruptible basis and goes as far south as San Diego, Calif.

Cominco counsel M. H. Mason told R. F. Brooks of the national board the power is exported only after the company is assured it will not be needed by British Columbia Hydro or Calgary Power Ltd.

He said the power would be wasted if Cominco has denied continued energy sales to the U.S., because the water would spill uselessly over the company's dams.

Cominco is asking that the two licences covering its exports be extended for 30 months until the end of 1977.

In 1973, Cominco applied for export licences to cover a 60-month period expiring June 30, 1978. The B.C. government protested and the company agreed to limit its request.

The board was told Cominco exports its surplus electricity across the United States border to the Bonneville Power Authority, which transmits a similar volume to the Oregon-California border.

The hearing was told that Cominco is restricted in what it can charge for export power to the prevailaing market price in the U.S. for blocks of interruptible energy.

Brooks will report to the board on the application before a decision is made.

City Demands Guarantee Of Pub-Screening Right

Verbal and written guarantees from the Liquor Administration Branch that Victoria will have a say in approving pub licences have not satisfied city council.

In caucus Tuesday, council decided to insist that the Liquor Act be amended giving municipalities the statutory power to approve or reject liquor licence applications—before they go to the provincial liquor authority.

Ald. Mike Young said despite assurances that the city's view would be heeded by provincial liquor officials, only the latter have real jurisdiction as the legislation now stands.

For that reason council should delay passing any resolution, as requested by the Liquor Administration Branch, giving blanket approval to the principle of issuing general liquor licences in the city.

While Victoria outlines its position in letters to branch general manager Vic Woodland, and to Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, non-individual applications for neighborhood pubs, licensed recreation centres or other categories can be processed for Victoria.

Prince Albert Jets Sought

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Air Canada announced Wednesday it will apply to the Ministry of Transport for a licence in order to bring a daily-scheduled jet service to Prince Albert.

Verne Prior, the company's public affairs manager, said at a news conference that a detailed analysis carried out by the airline in the last six months indicates there is sufficient demand in the city to justify a daily jet operation by Air Canada.

The jet service would provide city residents with direct air links to Winnipeg and Edmonton, thereby ending the necessity of travelling through Saskatoon to make connections.

Air Canada will also ask MoT to upgrade the present Prince Albert airport facilities in order to accommodate the airline's DC-7 jets, aircraft which would service the route.

Mayor Frank Dunn, who spearheaded the proposal, said he is "ecstatic" about the airline's decision, adding it is "one of the best things to happen to the city in the last 50 years."

Alta. Hospital Strike Delayed

EDMONTON (CP) — A strike by about 5,000 non-medical employees at 50 Alberta hospitals has been postponed until Monday, but there was no indication Wednesday that the last-minute reprieve spurred progress on contract negotiations.

"There are no signs of a settlement," said Al Cunningham, chief negotiator for the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

"We're still optimistic . . . we hate like the devil to close the door."

The union decided to postpone the strike Wednesday following the appointment of a provincial mediator on Tuesday. About a third of the employees were scheduled to walk off the job at 7 a.m. local time today, followed by additional walkouts Friday and Saturday.

"We feel the extra time will allow the mediator . . . to work out the complex salary and benefit structures still in dispute," Cunningham said in a statement.

"Although both sides are still far apart, we remain hopeful that a settlement can be reached."

Leo Lancaster, a former CUPE representative who now is a negotiator for the hospitals association, said the change in the strike deadline "came out of the clear blue."

Negotiations involving the government-appointed mediator, Dr. Douglas Muir, and representatives of both sides, continued all day Wednesday. Mr. Cunningham said early today there was no sign of a breakdown in discussions.

PICKETS CHARGED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Charges of causing a disturbance and disorderly conduct are pending against a number of individuals detained Wednesday following an incident involving pickets at the University of Manitoba.

Police were called after receiving reports that about 200 pickets were blocking traffic near the university.

Police said one person was taken to hospital but later released after being hit by a car attempting to get through the mass picketing by the Association of Employees Supporting Education Services.

The association has been on strike for about two weeks.

Life Sentence For Slaying

EDMONTON (CP) — Charles Lacorde, 21, was sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment on a charge of murder in the July 1 death of Nancy Mercuria outside a hotel at Fort McMurray.

A jury deliberated for almost three hours, interrupting their stay briefly to return to the courtroom where they asked Mr. Justice Hugh John MacDonald of Alberta Supreme Court to clarify the difference between murder and manslaughter.

A statement given to police, in which Lacorde admitted he and another woman struck their victim on the head with a heavy steel rod, was read to the jury Wednesday morning.

The statement said Lacorde found a steel rod and later a rock with which the other woman, not named in court, struck the victim during a fight after an argument in a bar. The jury made no recommendation concerning parole.

Girl Gets $35,000

WINNIPEG (CP) — A teenage girl whose voice was damaged by injuries suffered in a 1972 automobile accident Wednesday was awarded $35,000 damages by Court of Queen's Bench.

Donna Dunstan of Winnipeg, who was 16 at the time of the accident, had 14 operations on her throat and spent almost four months in hospital.

ORGANIZED CRIME WARNING

TORONTO (CP) — An RCMP official says organized crime in some form has reached all parts of Canada and that the RCMP has listed 355 people it feels can be classified as major organized crime figures, The Globe and Mail reports.

The newspaper quotes Supt. Jack Routledge, head of the RCMP's national crime intelligence branch, as saying "there are certain individuals within Canadian society that do in fact have connections with widely-publicized criminals."

"In the last two to three years, we have developed intelligence which led to the conviction of 51 of these 355 subjects," he is quoted as saying in a recent briefing for some senior employees of the federal government.

Supt. Thomas Flanagan of the Ottawa police said a Montreal criminal organization has tried to move in on illegal gambling in Ottawa and also tried to get interests in entertainment spots there, the paper adds.

Aged Aide Of Mao Dies

HONG KONG (UPI) — Tung Pi-wu, one of the founders of the Chinese Communist party and its acting president, died Wednesday in Peking.

Tung, 90, famed for his wispy white beard which made him resemble one of the 12 immortals of ancient Chinese are, was a key figure in the unsuccessful negotiations by the late U.S. Gen. George Marshall to avert the civil war that gave China to the communists.

China did not disclose the nature of Tung's illness but described him as a "great proletarian revolutionary."

Tung was a member of the party's central committee, standing committee of the party's political bureau, and vice-chairman of the standing committee of the National People's Congress.

A long-time comrade of Mao, he made the long march from South China to Yenan where the Chinese Communist Party made its headquarters until after the fall of the Chiang Kai-shek government in 1949.

Kurd Defectors Guided Iraqis

HALABCHA, Iraq (AP) — Kurdish defectors guided Iraqi columns through their minefields as the Baghad government's troops took control of the last rebel enclaves adjoining Iran.

Field commanders said Wednesday the Iraqi army would withdraw in about two weeks when the Kurdish Autonomous Council establishes its civilian administration in the mountain towns and villages.

The fate of Mullah Mustafa Barzani, the leader of the Kurdish rebellion, remained a mystery. Iraqi officers said he had fled to Iran and that they had captured Haj Omran, his headquarters near the Iranian border.

It appeared that Barzani's 13-year war for autonomy had crumbled without a shot. Most of his Pesh Merga guerrillas were either exiles in Iran or had surrendered to Iraqi authorities during the three-week amnesty period that expired Monday night.

A new Iranian-Iraqi border pact March 6 ended Iran's support for the rebels and with it Kurdish dreams of an independent homeland.

Iraq committed more than 100,000 troops and an equal number of irregulars to what was touted as a final offensive, but tanks and armored cars moved unopposed without air support.

"There is no need for planes. There is no resistance," a British-trained colonel told reporters on the front.

"Not a shot has been fired. Not one drop of blood has been shed. My mission to seize the borders was completely successful."

The colonel said his troops were given a warm welcome in Kurdish towns and villages vacated by the Pesh Merga. But the residents of this small community eight miles from the Iranian border displayed more indifference than enthusiasm.

It was not known how many of Iraq's two million Kurds had chosen exile in Iran rather than submit to Baghdad's rule. Diplomats estimated that 90,000 Kurds surrendered before the amnesty deadline, but thousands more are living in areas swallowed up by the latest Iraqi advance.

Some of the 135,000 Kurds who had been refugees in Iran also have returned, but the government has issued no figures.

Baghdad has promised to repatriate Kurds who surrender peacefully and turn in their arms. The amnesty has been extended by a month to protect returning straggler from Iran.

Returning refugees indicated that while most of Barzani's Pesh Merga fighters had fled to Iran, there still were large numbers of civilian Kurds who wanted to return to their homes in Iraq.

The refugees all said they were well treated by the Iraqi army, which paid $350 for surrendered weapons.

Large crowds of Kurdish mountain tribesmen gathered in Sulaymaniyah, a northern district capital, for processing by Iraqi authorities. All pledged allegiance to the Baath Socialist party regime.

Fire Levels Shed

A small shed in the Canadian National Railway yard at the foot of Tyee was destroyed by fire shortly after 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

As Victoria firemen reached the scene, one of four drums of creosote and tar being stored in the shed exploded sending a flame more than 100 feet into the air.

BRITISH BEAGLES WILL SMOKE ON . . .

LONDON (AP) — Animal lovers failed Wednesday to stop Britain's biggest corporation from using dogs as chain smokers to test a tobacco substitute.

The attempt came from 20 stockholders attending the annual meeting of Imperial Chemical Industries, which is testing a substance called Newsmoking Material. The experiments are aimed at establishing whether the cellulose-based substitute is less likely than tobacco to cause diseases such as cancer.

ICI chairman Sir Jack Callard defended the corporation's research, saying there is no alternative.

The protesters, mostly middle-age women, kept interrupting as Callard said: "Thirty thousand patients die each year from lung cancer. We believe a reduction in this number to be important enough to justify work which seems likely to result in safer smoking materials."

W. Germany Richest Nation

ZURICH (UPI) — West Germany is by far the world's richest nation, with double the monetary reserves of the United States, the Union Bank of Switzerland said today.

The bank, Switzerland's largest, said Saudi Arabia is in third place, with Japan fourth and Switzerland fifth.

The bank listing excluded communist nations.

The Union Bank said the industrial countries at the end of 1974 had monetary reserves totalling $141 billion, or 64.5 per cent of the world's total.

Member nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries had $46.4 billion dollars, or 21.2 per cent of the total, while developing countries without petroleum had $31.2 billion, 14.3 per cent.

West German reserves totalled $32.7 billion at the end of 1974, the bank said. This was 15 per cent of the total and more than double the U.S. reserves of $16.05 billion dollars, 7.3 per cent of the total.

General Ousted

TEGUCIGALPA (Reuter) — The Honduran armed forces council has removed President Oswaldo Lopez Arellano, 53, from his post Tuesday as chief of the Central American republic's armed forces.

Beef Quotas Stay

WASHINGTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan of Canada came out of a meeting with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz here Wednesday and said that livestock quotas between the two countries remain unchanged.

However, Whelan said:

"We decided our officials should get together as quickly as possible and work out a workable program that is satisfactory to both countries.

"I think the situation is one that we want our producers to know where they're going so that they can plan production."

Butz said that so far as the United States quotas on Canadian beef and pork are concerned — placed in retaliation to Canadian quotas on U.S. beef and sheep — they were instituted by the president and "only the president can change them."

"Working technicians" could only make recommendations to send to the president, he said, adding that the Canadian minister had more power in this regard than did the U.S. secretary.

"The important thing is that we agreed to move toward liberalization of trade and away from the severe restrictions that now exist on both sides of the border."

Butz, a former professor, and Whelan, an Ontario farmer, wrangled good-naturedly over the issue of freer trade between their countries.

Butz said free trade is a goal to drive toward but that Whelan probably would say this is a professor's concept.

Whelan retorted: "I told Mr. Butz that I can prove to him that we're the greater free traders in Canada by the tariffs that he has on many commodities going into his country from our country. We have a lot to discuss on that."

Butz came back with: "Now he's done quit preachin' and now he's going' to meddlin'." Asked how soon the working technicians might come up with proposals, Whelan said. "We say 'soon' in Parliament. . . . To a farmer planting a crop it would mean next week. But if it's a professor . . . I don't know . . ."

Lockett Tightens Up Canuck Hold on First

The 27-year-old Toronto native is quickly establishing himself a solid reputation as a qualified National Hockey League goaltender and Wednesday in Oakland he added to his stock.

With regular Gary Smith sitting on the sidelines for the third straight game because of a groin injury, Lockett kicked out 31 drives as the Canucks blanked California Seals 3-0.

It was the second straight night the Canucks shut out the Seals. Tuesday they trimmed the California club 7-0 and Lockett now has a string of 142 minutes and 27 seconds in which he hasn't allowed a goal.

Canucks, who have one game remaining, lead the Smythe Division by four points over St. Louis Blues, who lost 6-2 at home to Los Angeles Kings. The Blues have two games left. Chicago's meeting with Kansas City Scouts was snowed out, leaving the Black Hawks six points behind with three games to do.

The only way Vancouver can be overtaken is for the Hawks to win their final three games and the Canucks lose to Minnesota.

In other NHL action Wednesday, Atlanta Flames downed Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0, Montreal Canadiens whipped Pittsburg Penguins 6-0 and Detroit Red Wings bounced Washington Capitals 8-3.

Paulin Bordeleau, Leon Rochefort and Bobby Lalonde each scored his 17th goal of the season for the Canucks, who have won all four games with the Seals this season—three by shutout.

Flames' win pulled them to within two points of New York Rangers in their bid for the third and final playoff berth in the Patrick Division.

"We have a real good chance at making the playoffs," said Atlanta goalie Dan Bouchard, but he admitted "we have to have some help from Philadelphia," beating the Rangers tonight.

Bouchard came up with a standout performance as he made 45 saves, including 26 in the final period, in earning the shutout.

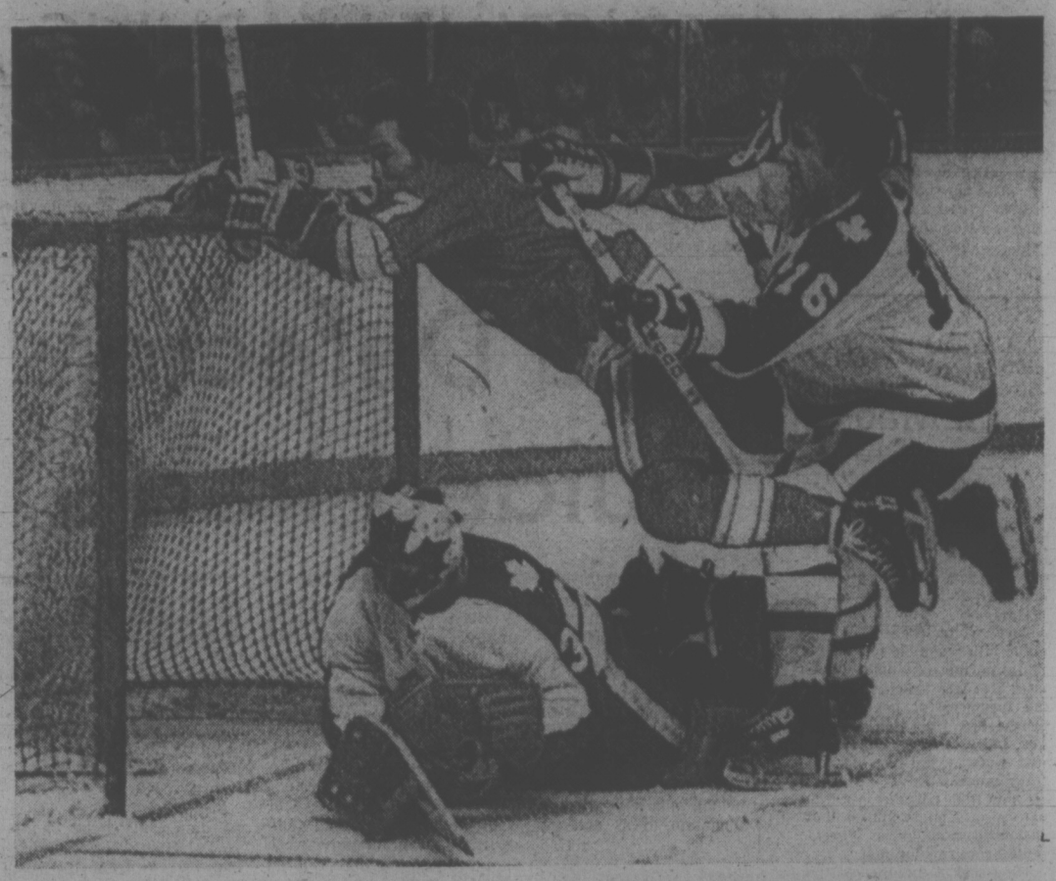
Canadiens exploded for five second-period goals—three in the space of one minute, 52 seconds—in their triumph over the Penguins.

The win enabled Montreal to keep pace with the idle Buffalo Sabres in the race for the Prince of Wales conference title. Both clubs have 109 points with two games left. Philadelphia has 108 points with three games to play.

Frank St. Marseille scored twice and Bob Nevin scored his 30th goal of the season to tie a Los Angeles club record in the win over St. Louis.

Nevin's goal gave him 70 points for the season, tying the Kings' record held by Juha Widing.

Leftwinger Danny Grant led Detroit with his 49th and 50th goals of the season and became only the second Red Wing player to reach the 50 mark. Rightwinger Mickey Redmond scored 51 goals last season for Detroit.



PAINFUL PUNISHMENT for invading territory around Maple Leaf goal is handed out by Rod Seiling (16) to Hilliard Graves (17) of Atlanta Flames during National Hockey League game in Toronto. Goalie Doug Favell smothers puck as Seiling drives Graves into goal piping. Comfort for Graves came later, when Flames wound up with 3-0 triumph. (CP Wirephoto)

Little League Swings In Tune—To Softball

A couple of related items today. A letter-to-the-editor contributor in the New York Times makes a good point regarding the problems of giving equal opportunities to male and female athletes, and the Little League baseball program has taken a funny bounce in the U.S.

The obvious course, Al Hormel of Weston, Conn., wrote "would lie in eliminating segregated teams." There simply could be an announcement that tryouts would be held for say, football, baseball, field hockey, swimming or whatever; and anyone, without regard to sex, could try out with only the very best making each team. The others would be out. No argument.

Of course it may never come to pass but it would be quite legal and in line with the thinking of women's groups who have been pressuring the point. In Little League, for instance, when officials suggested that a separate division for girls be set up, the women countered by saying separate facilities were just not acceptable. So girls were made welcome. Now it appears that the move may have prompted a boon in another direction.

Little League administrator Don Wakelyn, recently returned from the Little League Congress in Chicago, says the issue has taken a strange twist.

"The girls' program is gaining like wildfire, "he said, "and may even surpass the boys."

But wait. This is SOFTBALL. Not baseball. It is administered by Little League and the girls are loving every minute of it, he explained.

Everyone Gets To Play

It makes sense and would probably satisfy most parents too. But not here. The die has been cast otherwise and besides, there already is a good softball program.

And there's nothing really wrong with Little League either. True, in some areas there have been complaints that when tryouts are held, only the very best get to play, but this is the exception, not the rule; and not the case in the city either.

For the uninitiated, what happens is that when players register, they are assigned to teams, even the farm league, and from then on it's up to them. If they show interest, attend workouts regularly, and figuratively keep their noses clean, they'll get their chance to play.

And that's all that really matters. Oh, sure, there are other factors. Every year, for instance, some expert on children's games comes up with the old chestnut that Little League isn't good for anybody. It's too organized, too regimented, there's too much emphasis on winning and pitchers who throw curve balls are likely to suffer permanent arm damage and may never get to the majors. But who really knows? And how many Little Leaguers figure to get to the majors anyway?

Still, there's one fact of Little League that most parents should agree with. And that's the suggestion that 10 and 12-year-old children really shouldn't be exposed to the tremendous emotional strain of national and international competition. Which is why the Little League decision to opt out of the World Series is to be commended.

So Sports Are Healthy?

The injury angle is something else. Because boys will always be boys. Most red-blooded kids are going to play something, touch football, shoot a few baskets after school, join a hockey team, try lacrosse, or even have a good, old-fashioned punch out.

And couldn't they just as easily suffer injury as the pitcher who tries the curve ball? Sure they could. But competitive sports are like that. Just think how great a hockey player Bobby Orr would be if he didn't have a gimpy knee? Or Joe Namath in football? And that's healthy?

Wakelyn made another point regarding the fuss that cost Little League $162,000 in legal fees. "A psychologist who represented Little League in the court case on the question of admitting girls into the program, said he couldn't recall ever having seen a girl stand up in court and say she wanted to play baseball."

To which some might say "amen!" But wait. Several girls did stand up here when the registration call for Little League went out this spring. Wakelyn isn't yet certain of the total number, "but they'll get their chance to play," he said. "And maybe there'll be some surprises too," he added. Spoken like a true administrator. Which Wakelyn is. And mothers, your daughters will be in good hands.

Blazers Push Jets to Brink Of Elimination

DANNY LAWSON . . . checks and scores

By The Canadian Press

When the World Hockey Association started its third season last fall with a new divisional alignment, the new Canadian Division was expected to be the strongest with at least three and perhaps four of its teams qualifying for the playoffs.

With the playoffs a week away, it appears more likely the Canadians will qualify only the minimum two teams — Quebec Nordiques who clinched the division title Wednesday night, and Toronto Toros.

Winnipeg Jets, the only other Canadian squad with a mathematical chance of making it, lost 6-4 Wednesday night to Vancouver Blazers and now face elimination should they lose to the Toros in Toronto on Friday night.

The Nordiques clinched the title with a 5-3 win over Minnesota Fighting Saints while, in Wednesday's only other game, Houston Aeros defeated Cleveland 7-6.

While the Jets' playoff hopes fade, Bobby Hull is also running out of time to extend his season's goal total of 75.

He failed to score again Wednesday with Vancouver's Danny Lawson, Larry Isrealson and Bryan Campbell as the checking line to keep Hull off the scoreboard.

But the Blazers checking line also found time to score five goals—three by Lawson and two by Isrealson.

"We've always played a line against Bobby," said Vancouver coach Joe Crozier. "Naturally I put my best forwards against him because he is the best and we'll see who's going to score the most goals."

Tigers Protesting, Pats Edge Broncos

It was a tough night for referees Wednesday as New Westminster Bruins and Regina Pats opened 2-1 leads in western Canada Hockey League quarter-final playoffs.

The Bruins defeated Medicine Hat Tigers 3-2 and the Tigers immediately launched a protest over a disallowed goal. The Pats used an overtime goal by Jim Minor for a 4-3 triumph over Lethbridge Broncos and eight Lethbridge players drew game misconducts for protesting that the whistle should have been blown to end play.

Referee Murray Harding of Winnipeg was attacked by fans as he left the ice at Medicine Hat after refusing to allow a Medicine Hat goal in the first period while a delayed penalty was being assessed against the Tigers.

A penalty was being assessed against John Hilworth of the Tigers, who swiped at the puck on Smith's stick. Medicine Hat supporters claim he did not touch it. Play stops when a player on the offending team touches the puck during a delayed penalty.

The protest will be ruled upon by league president Ed Chynoweth of Saskatoon.

At Regina, Minor's goal, his second of the game, came at 9:16 of the first sudden-death overtime period. He also scored with 35 seconds remaining in regulation time to force the overtime session.

Meanwhile, hockey interest being what it is, there are no vacancies on a 50-passenger aircraft that will take Victoria fans to Kamloops for tonight's fourth game in that quarter-final series.

With a fifth game assured at Memorial Arena on Saturday, the interest in the series also is reflected in the advance ticket sales. Ticket sales Wednesday indicated the Cougars may draw a crowd in excess of 5,000 on Saturday.

The 4,830 fans who watched Victoria defeat Kamloops 7-2 on Tuesday is the high mark for the team since being admitted to the WCHL.

The ailing Cougars, all expected to play tonight, are Don Cairns (sore knee), Peter Morris (ankle), Tim Williams (shoulder) and Derek Sanderson (bruised nose).

Cougar winger Greg Miazga also didn't make the trip to Kamloops. Upset at sitting out Tuesday's game in favor of Clipper pickup Kim Hilkewich, Miazga failed to show up for a team meeting Wednesday.

NFL PLAYERS' UNION IN RED AFTER STRIKE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 42-day strike by the National Football League Players' Association last summer cost the union from $400,000 to $500,000 and left a deficit of about $200,000 for the fiscal period ended last Nov. 30, Ed Garvey, executive director, said today.

The National Football League against whom the players struck does not make its financial figures available.

The association's annual budget normally approaches about $750,000 but was over $1 million in 1974 because of the strike, Garvey said.

He said the main expenses during the strike were for maintaining picket lines at NFL training camps and travelling to the Hall of Fame football game in Canton, Ohio, and the College All-Star camp.

New Aztec Trio May Play In Friday's Soccer Match

Los Angeles Aztecs, who meet Vancouver Whitecaps at Athletic Park Friday night in an exhibition North American Soccer League game, may have three new players from the English League fourth division in the lineup for the contest.

New coach Terry Fisher of the Aztecs recently signed five English professionals to contracts. They are Bobby Sibald, a 27-year-old defender from Southport; John Taylor, 25, a goalkeeper from Birmingham; Alan Jones, 29, a centre-back from Southport; Alex Russell, 31, a midfielder, also from Southport; and Michael Ferguson, 32, a midfielder from Rochdale. All but Sibbald and Ferguson are reported to be en route to join the Aztecs.

The Whitecaps' lineup has not yet been announced, but it is certain that four of the English professionals on the club — Billy Stevenson, Bobby Lenarduzzi, former-Victorian Bruce Twamley and Rod MacDonald — won't be here for the game due to their commitments in Britain.

Proceeds from the game for the Victoria Cup will be divided between the George Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children (75 per cent) and the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association (25 per cent.)

Aztecs are defending champions of the NASL and play in the Western Division with Whitecaps, Seattle Sounders, San Jose Earthquake and the newly-formed Portland Timbers.

The exhibition tussle will cap a Salute to Soccer program involving teams and players from the juvenile association which starts at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at the Memorial Arena box office and will also go in sale Friday afternoon at the Hillside Mall, where several Whitecap players will be on hand between 1 and 3 p.m. to conduct mini-clinics for juvenile players. Any player interested in attending these sessions is asked to turn up in running shoes and team uniform.

Hitters Beware! Gibson Is Ready

By The Associated Press

National League hitters, be on guard: Bob Gibson says he's ready.

"Yeah, I'm ready for the season," said the veteran right hander, who will pitch the baseball opener for St. Louis Cardinals next Monday.

"I'm always ready," he said. "Sometimes the hitting isn't quite sharp. And, when I lose a few close games, they say I'm not ready."

The Cardinals' winningest pitcher, who says he's retiring after this, his 16th full season in the majors, warmed up for the opener by limiting Houston Astros to six hits in an exhibition game Wednesday. But he gave up two runs in the third inning and was charged with the 2-1 defeat.

"You pitch differently" when the season begins, the 39-year-old Gibson said.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — About $131,000 kept in a North American Hockey League bank account on Long Island is missing, the league commissioner said Wedneseay.

"Misappropriation at this point is the only explanation I have," said Robert Dextraze, head of the two-year-old league, which has eight teams in New York state, Pennsylvania and New England.

He said the money had been held in a dormant interest-bearing escrow account at a bank in Smithtown, N.Y. as a "rainy day" fund for financial emergencies.

It was discovered missing two weeks ago, Dextraze said. The loss was first reported in a Long Island newspaper.

The commissioner said the fund was bonded against loss by an insurance company, which is conducting an investigation.

"It's the bonding company's problem now," Dextraze said.

He said he and league treasurer Gerry Lamoureaux were the only league officials with access to the fund.

"I never have anything to do with that fund," said Dextraze. "I keep the league's operating money in a bank here in Albany league headquarters."

He said there was "no possibility" that someone outside the league was involved.

The commissioner said the loss would not affect NAHL operations.

Ahearn Favors Pro-Am Concept

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, the tough-talking British president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Wednesday he favors an "open world tournament" for national teams composed of professionals as well as amateurs.

Ahearne said he would officially propose opening the world ice hockey competition to pros at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee next July in Lausanne, Switzerland.

"If the Olympic Congress accepts my proposal, then open tournaments can begin," Ahearne said on the eve of the 1975 Group A championships.

Although Ahearne appeared optimistic, observers doubted that the IOC would alter its strict stand on amateurism to accommodate such countries as Canada and Sweden, which want pros in their lineups.

The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, co-favorites in the 16-day tournament, are strongly opposed to allowing Western teams with professionals. Western critics of the Communist teams claim that the Soviet bloc teams are comprised of full-time paid players whose amateur status cannot be officially disproved.

Swedish reporters at the news conference claimed Ahearne had not pressed the "open tournament" issue, but the British president hotly disputed this.

"A certain gentleman in Stockholm is trying to tell the world that he is the man who is going to create the open tournament," Ahearne declared.

Ahearne refused to identify the official, but Stockholm reporters said he could only be referring to Swedish Federation president Ove Rainer.

In a blistering attack on the Swedes, Ahearne also accused them of vetoing his plan to set up a multi-national club league in Western Europe. He said the Swedes refused to go along because they could reap more profits from sending their national team to the Izvestia Cup competition sponsored by the Russians.

Ahearne also blasted journalists who criticized his handling of the Canadian controversy, an issue in the sport for six years. Canada quit the international tournament in 1970 when blocked from using its best professionals.

"All you have done since Canada pulled out is to crucify me, and I'm the only one who has tried to pull them back," he asserted.

Pistons In, Bucks Out

By The Associated Press

Detroit Pistons have qualified for the National Basketball Association playoffs while Milwaukee Bucks have dropped out.

The Pistons beat Chicago Bulls 97-89 Wednesday night to clinch a wild-card berth in the Western Conference while eliminating the Bucks, finalists last season, from playoff contention.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Seattle SuperSonics beat Kansas City - Omaha Kings 99 - 96, Washington Bullets beat Houston Rockets 112 - 85, Boston Celtics defeated Buffalo Braves 95 - 92 and Phoenix Suns beat Los Angeles Lakers 108-106.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky beat Virginia 88-81, New York defeated Memphis 119-97, Utah defeated Indiana 119-113 and St. Louis beat San Diego 134-110.

Detroit used Bob Lanier's 26 points and a balanced attack to defeat Chicago. Curtis Rowe and Howard Porter added 18 points each, with Porter coming off the bench in the first quarter. Lanier grabbed seven rebounds to become Detroit's all-time leading rebounder, surpassing the 4,935 amassed by Walter Dukes in six seasons.

Seattle's Spencer Haywood scored 25 points, including two clinching free throws with 1:13 left to play. The Kings' Nate Archibald also had 25 points. KC-Omaha thus remained two games behind Chicago in the Midwest Division.

Bob McAdoo paced the Braves with 25 points while Cowens and Havlicek shared scoring honors for Boston with 23 points each.

SOCCER
max low

Soccer is just winding down as spring flowers bloom and young men's fancy — and young women's too — turns to thoughts of softball and cricket.

But for one Victoria group of boys and their parents, coach and manager, soccer will continue to be the main concern right through the summer.

The boys are 14-year-olds belonging to Gorge Voyagers, a Gorge Juvenile Soccer Association team now in the third division of the Lower Island Juvenile Association.

Voyagers is a new name, chosen because the boys, together with coach Dunc McCaig, manager Ron McClure and several of the parents, will go on a seven-game, 21-day tour of Britain next year.

The name may be new but the team is an old one. Eleven of the 16 boys making the trip were on the Gorge seventh division team that in 1970 won the league and Vancouver Island titles and played in the Sun Tournament of Champions, B.C. final.

McCaig has coached the same team since 1968 and last year the boys again reached the final of the Sun Tournament. They were beaten by West Point Grey Legion, but the side was named most sportsmanlike in the tourney.

They're still in the running for this year's event, set for the weekend of April 26-27, and manager McClure predicts it will be "third time lucky."

As a warmup to their semi-final playoff on April 13, the Voyagers will meet Burnaby Edmonds in an exhibition game at 2:15 p.m. this Sunday at Spectrum (Community) School.

Each of the boys has been assessed $150 but the club doesn't want parents to pay that.

"We hope the boys will work and earn that themselves," says touring team president Brian Collis.

And the boys and their parents will be working hard on bottle drives and other projects throughout the summer to raise the necessary total of $13,000 to cover the tour. They've reaised $4,500 already so they've still got a fair way to go.

The squad is just a small part of the Gorge organization, which has 15 teams in juvenile soccer, 38 younger boys involved in Little League soccer and one senior team in the Vancouver Island League.

Last year, the boys defeated Newton Grange from Edinburgh 1-0 here but they hope to line up even stronger opposition than that for their tour.

"We've got Brian Hughes lining up a strong game in Swansea," said McClure, "and Jimmy Spencer is arranging something in Glasgow, Bruce Twamley of Victoria, who's in Ipswich in England, is arranging a game and Alan (Fuzzy) Blair, an ex-Gorge player and manager now in B.C. House in London, will also organize a match. It should be a great tour — I don't think the boys can quite believe it yet."

Lakers Nipped

ABBOTSFORD — Point Grey of Vancouver trounced Smithers 10-2 Wednesday and was in first place in the British Columbia midget "A" hockey championships after two days of play.

FOREMAN GETS OKAY FOR FIVE-FOE NIGHT

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Athletics Commission has granted permission for former world heavyweight champ George Foreman to box five consecutive opponents at Maple Leaf Gardens April 26.

Commissioner Merv McKenzie said Wednesday night permission has been granted for Foreman to box three five-minute rounds against each of the five men.

McKenzie said Ontario rules state a boxer could not have more than one contest or exhibition in a day but there was some doubt about the word exhibition. He said lawyers for the promoters argued that the word exhibition could be interpreted in the plural form and the commission's lawyers agreed.

Foreman's opponents were expected to be announced tonight in New York.

Introducing the Sony® with the small behind.

Trimmer. Slimmer. And 4" less in depth.

SONY MODEL KV-1722

As you can see, our new Model KV-1722 has a much slimmer front. It's also much trimmer behind — 4 inches less depth than conventional sets of this screen size.

The KV-1722 has our new, 114° deflection, wide-angle picture tube. It delivers the brightest, sharpest colour picture ever seen on a Sony — and virtually eliminates distortion for people viewing the set from the side seats. But you don't have to take our word for it. An independent consumers research study rates our KV-1722 as follows:

Sharpness	— excellent
Brightness	— very good
Colour accuracy	— superior
Operation of controls	— superior
Weak signal performance	— superior

As in all Sony TV's, it's 100% solid state. So reliable that it's totally guaranteed for two years — picture tube, all parts, all labour.

Visit your nearest Sony dealer, see this new 17" portable with the slimmer, trimmer back and sharper, brighter front. The suggested retail price is $729.95.

Blizzards Blasting East

Times News Services

Winter stormed back through Ontario today, burying some areas in 16 inches of snow, causing chaos on the roads and disrupting airline schedules.

Hardest hit was a "Great Canadian Wagon Train" struggling to reach northern Alberta nearly 3,000 miles away.

The "pioneers" were reported huddled in blankets in frontier-style canvas-topped wagons by the side of a highway. The cavalcade, carrying 50 people to a homesteading life in Alberta's Peace River area, has been plagued by breakdowns and other troubles and has covered only six miles since it hit the road just north of Toronto Tuesday.

A blizzard caught Montreal by surprise today, with four inches of snow whipped by winds up to 40 miles an hour.

Blowing snow conditions are to continue until midnight, the weather office reported, with another six inches by evening.

Blizzard also howled across Chicago Wednesday night, leaving the city streets deserted, shutting down the world's busiest airport and turning the busiest expressway in the U.S. into a ghost road of stalled cars.

When it was over, eight persons were dead, thousands were stranded and a foot of snow had fallen.

Even the weathermen were snowbound. One forecaster was forced to spend the night at the National Weather Service's O'Hare station and at least two others were unable to get home from the weather service's Chicago office.

KIDNAPPERS, VICTIM DIE IN SHOOTOUT

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A kidnapped teenager, a police official and two kidnappers were killed Wednesday in a shootout between police and the outlaws. The boy was abducted after his father had won a lottery.

Police and federal agents stormed a construction site where the child was held but the kidnappers opened fire with submachine guns, killing Col. Hugo Romero Moreno and shooting their hostage, 14-year-old Yezid Manuel Ramirez, "in cold blood."

Tape Played at Bribe Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors in the John Connally bribery trial played a White House tape today showing the former United States treasury secretary pushed hard to get then president Nixon to raise milk price supports in 1971.

Connally is accused of illegally taking two gifts of $5,000 apiece from a big dairy cooperative, Associated Milk Producers Inv., in return for his help in getting milk prices increased.

Connally's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams, told the jury Wednesday that the government's star witness, Jake Jacobsen, is a liar and a thief who actually embezzled the $10,000 for himself and then falsely accused Connelly of taking it.

The tape played by the prosecution today was released in transcript by the House of Representatives judiciary committee last year during its impeachment inquiry.

It records the voices of Nixon, Connally and six other presidential advisers at an Oval Office meeting March 23, 1971, when Nixon decided to raise price supports for the coming year.

Connally dominated the early part of the meeting, telling Nixon he should overrule the agriculture department, which had announced that milk prices would be frozen. Connally said politics and pressure from Congress dictated a price increase.

BOYCOTT EYED OVER JAILING

OTTAWA (CP) — An international women's conference will be asked this weekend in Boston to boycott Canadian goods in protest against the jailing of Dr. Henry Morgentaler.

Sponsored by the National Coalition for Women, the conference is expected to attract 2,000 delegates from around the world.

The organization includes 267 women's groups in the United States and about 100 from other countries.

"The conference will be representative of all groups and there's no reason why it (the boycott) shouldn't be approved," organizer Merle Goldberg of New York said Wednesday.

Dr. Morgentaler, a Montreal physician who has admitted performing thousands of abortions, began an 18-month jail sentence last week.

Ms. Goldberg said in an interview the proposed boycott will include a ban on Canadian vacations and the purchase of "any recognizable Canadian goods." It would remain in force until Dr. Morgentaler is released from jail and abortion is removed from the Canadian Criminal Code.

She said the 367 organizations affiliated with the coalition range in size from eight to 8,000 members with a total membership of about 30,000.

A demonstration may also be staged at the Canadian consulate in Boston and a letter campaign will be started to advise Canadian tourist offices if the boycott is approved, she said.

Meanwhile, the American Humanist Association (AHA) a 5,000-member organization established 35 years ago, has named Dr. Morgantaler humanist of the year along with feminist Betty Friedan.

It sent a telegram Wednesday to a series of Canadian officials asking that Dr. Morgentaler be released from jail to accept the award at a May 24 ceremony in St. Louis, Mo.

A Quebec justice department spokesman said Tuesday it was possible Dr. Morgentaler would be released to receive the award.

Dr. Morgentaler is the second Canadian to win the AHA award. The first was Brock Chisholm in 1958. He was honored for his work with the World Health Organization of the United Nations.

Olympic Security Smashed

MONTREAL (CP) — Known terrorists successfully penetrated the special security screen the federal immigration department set up for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games in Montreal, according to the Gazette.

It has learned from senior immigration and law enforcement officers the handful of individuals, all apparently members of the Palestine Liberation Organization, entered Canada individually and were spotted after entry, a report in today's editions adds.

All were kept under close surveillance once their presence was detected and none took part in any overtly suspicious activities while here, it quotes sources as saying.

However, the newspaper quotes an immigration source as saying the penetration raises disturbing questions about the efficiency of the special immigration screen, part of the over-all security system set up to head off terrorist attacks at the Games.

It says details of the immigration screen, like all Olympic security precautions, are covered by a "classified" label.

The newspaper says the security screen has been in place for several months and is based on a "blacklist" of thousands of names of known and potential terrorists.

It says the origin of this blacklist and its effectiveness are both subjects of contention within the immigration department. The list is based on documentation prepared by Canadian visa control officers — members of the RCMP stationed abroad.

Added to this basic list, it says for the purposes of the Olympics, are names and files provided by virtually all national police forces in the world.

The problem, it quotes internal department critics are saying, is that Canada has no effective way to check out the names provided by the foreign sources.

The newspaper quotes Ron Hutton, a federal immigration official, as saying the way in which the list was compiled is "less than satisfactory."

"But what else were we going to do? Canada doesn't maintain its own security force, its own CIA, overseas. And after all, these police forces are responsible people. If they point to someone, there is a good reason."

Checkpoints Produce Arsenal

SEATTLE (AP) — Security officials at U.S. Pacific Northwest airports confiscated nearly 10,000 potentially-dangerous items from passengers in 1974, the Federal Aviation Administration said Wednesday.

Guns, smoke bombs, straight razors, knives and other possible hijacker weapons were confiscated as a result of tight pre-boarding security at 17 airports in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The FAA said most of the items were gathered at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, but declined to give a breakdown of the weapons found at each facility.

George H. Lewis, the FAA's regional chief of security, said 122 guns, 3,226 knives, 1,382 explosive devices and 5,075 assorted "dangerous articles" were taken from patrons. The fourth category included chains, brass knuckles, clubs, bayonets and straight razors.

Lewis said 111 persons were arrested in the region's airports in 1974.

Impaired Appeal Won

An appeal against an impaired driving charge was allowed Wednesday in county court by Judge E. J. C. Stewart.

Judge Stewart, however, dismissed an appeal by Wannenburg against a conviction for refusing to provide a breath-alcohol sample when stopped by a policeman while driving a pickup truck.

HOUSEHOLD FINANCE SUED FOR DECEPTION

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's director of trade practices has launched a B.C. Supreme Court action against Household Finance Corp. of Canada alleging deceptive practices in retail sales finance contract assignments.

In a writ and statement of claim filed Tuesday, it is alleged such practices occurred between July 6, 1974 and Dec. 31, 1974, and involve sales made by 11 retail firms in B.C. interior and northern cities.

The writ alleges that Household "took assignments of certain sale finance contracts from retailers having agreed not to notify customers of such assignments and actively pursued a course of conduct designed to prevent customers from learning of such assignments."

It seeks declaration that this is deceptive within the terms of the 1974 Trade Practices Act of B.C., and an injunction restraining Household from engaging in the practice.

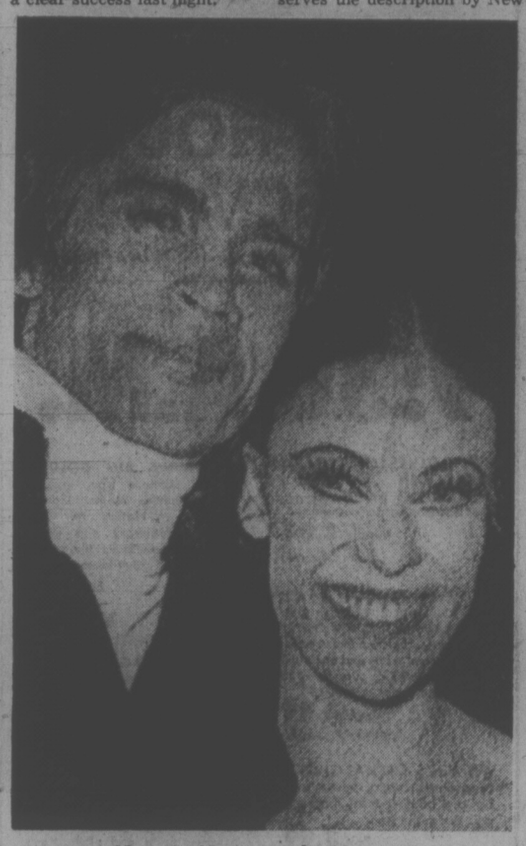
Canadian Dancer a Star

LONDON (FP) — Hamilton-born Karen Kain casts a graceful spell over a discerning audience as the National Ballet of Canada opened with a clear success last night.

Princess Margaret clapped as enthusiastically as everyone else at the gala night opening as Karen Kain proved again and again that she deserves the description by New York Times critic Clive Barnes as . . . "one of the most talented ballerinas in the Western world."



Karen Kain with Nureyev

Rudolf Nureyev, warmly received in his title role of Don Juan, danced with jaunty insolence. Karen Kain and Veronica Tennant drew heavy applause for their roles as Aminta and Dona Ana respectively.

The two girls got the same reception when they danced the Cachuca Galop together later in the evening.

It was the second appearance at the Coliseum for the National Ballet. When the company first visited in 1972, London critics said it had "unlimited potential."

British critics recently visited Toronto to watch the National Ballet at work and Michael Owen of the London Evening Standard said the company "who have promised to highly in the past few years . . . are now beginning to deliver."

"T. S. Ferguson of the Sunday Telegraph said "its capabilities were obvious from what I saw of it in Canada."

Canadians had travelled from all over Britain for last night's opening. Bill Lucas, formerly of Vancouver but now living in Newcastle, said of the evening: "It made me proud to be Canadian watching these very professional young people at work."

The only slip in an otherwise snafu-free production happened during the opening funeral procession of Don Juan. One dancer wearing a voluminous monk's robe was nearly pulled over when the two following monks stepped on the robe. The leading man stopped abruptly then jumped forward to resume his funeral pace.

Paul Martin, Canada's high commissioner, was glowing at a reception afterwards as he received compliments about the National Ballet from blue-ribbon guests.

Bobby Loses Chess Crown

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The International Chess Federation awarded Bobby Fischer's world chess crown to the young Soviet grandmaster Anatoly Kaprov by default today after Fischer failed to send word he would play the Russian challenger under rules voted by the federation.

The action by Federation Internationale des Echecs (FIDE) was expected. Fischer's acceptance or rejection of the rules was due in Amsterdam by midnight Tuesday, but FIDE President Max Euwe of the Netherlands extended the deadline for 24 hours on the slight chance that the eccentric American would not pass up his chance to win $3,175,000.

However, Euwe announced Wednesday that if the second deadline passed and Fischer did not accept, the title would go to Karpov.

U.K. PORT BLOCKADE CALLED OFF

LONDON (UPI) — Fishermen in England and Scotland today called off a weeklong blockade that had closed many of the nation's ports in a protest against cheap imported fish.

Code words radioed to skippers instructed them to withdraw their vessels.

The blockade was called off after fishermen won a pledge from the under-secretary of state at the Scotland office, Hugh Brown, to hold meetings on their demands for a revision of the Common Market fisheries policy.

The fishermen also want an extension of inshore fishing limits from 12 to 50 miles, and Brown said that, too, would be discussed.

Starvation Looming for Indians

FORT WARE (CP) — Indians in this village 250 miles northwest of Prince George face death by starvation within the next few months, the owner of the sole village store says.

Jim Van Somer said today his Fort Ware trading post is rapidly running out of supplies and the Indian population of about 200 faces possible starvation unless government agencies step in.

A poor trapping season and higher freight and food costs have driven the Indians deep into debt and forced the trading post to cut back on supplies, Van Somer said in a written statement mailed to government agencies and the Prince George Citizen.

The village relies about 90 per cent on welfare payments, but the monthly cheques are insufficient to keep food bills paid, he said. Van Somer said he has carried the Indians' debts, but now his accounts receivable have "grown out of all proporttion" and he cannot buy more supplies from wholesalers or arrange a bank loan.

"The end result means the Indians will have to survive on meat and flour alone," he said: "There are several very small children and babies here and I'm afraid we could have some deaths of the very young and very old due to malnutrition soon."

Van Somer said the federal Indian affairs department inspected Fort Ware a month ago and promised to increase payments to band members but has failed to act, despite subsequent repeated requests.

"Unless aid reaches us soon, things could become grim," he said. "At this time we have a supply of flour and sugar, some macaroni, rice, tea, soup, baking powder lard and dried skim milk — and that's all.

In less than a week we'll have nothing but flour and sugar" he said. "We are very isolated here — no road access and only air traffic in the winter, with mail only once a month.

"It is quite difficult to make our plight known to the proper authorities," he added.

Van Somer also said when the ice melts in about two weeks, planes will be unable to land and the village will face a two-month wait before supplies can be brought in safely by boat.

Vern Rhymer, district administrator for the Indian affairs department in Prince George, said today the situation is a complete surprise to him.

Rhymer said he visited the village a month ago and saw that food stocks were low. He said the department then paid freight costs for three flights of food totalling 3,400 pounds to build up stocks in the store.

He said he thought the problem was solved and he had not received further requests for help from the village. He denied promising to increase welfare allotments, saying the payments are fixed by government and beyond his jurisdiction.

However, he agreed that the present payments are not sufficient for the residents of Fort Ware to buy adequate food.

Rhymer said Van Somer's letter had not been sent to him, but the department will now investigate the situation.

My War With The Ants: When Victory Is Hollow

Item: A beautiful Spring day, but darkened for me by the kind of moral or ethical dilemma that reduces me to quivering jello.

I am to burn out the huge ant's nest behind Granpaw's cottage. I have the can of diesel oil, the fateful match, the knowledge that these little creatures are invading the old man's home in vast numbers, that it has come down to this arbitrary choice between "them" and "us." Everything is firm but my backbone.

I gaze for a long while at the ant hill. It is a seething mass of activity, probably the most industrious sight in all the world of nature. Over the long years these ants have built up a tremendous community, have fashioned a mound of straw that, reckoned in man hours of work, is beyond belief. I remind myself that the forefathers of these ants were here long before this land was cleared, that the labor of who knows how many years will be wiped out in five minutes or less by these weapons of destruction I carry. At least a thousand, perhaps more, of God's creatures are about to go up in smoke.

Against all this is the indisputable fact that they are making life miserable for Grandpaw that there is no way of moving them, that there is only one possible solution.

So I did what had to be done in a miasma of guilt and self-contempt that brought no relief whatever. But what can you do? What can you do?

Item: Reading today, in TV Guide, how the Mexican government, in one fell swoop, cut out 37 violence-oriented American television programs, which I feel very strongly is a move that should be duplicated by our own people in Ottawa. The Mexicans' acceptance that there's a very direct link between the portrayal of violent crime on the living room screen and the violent crime in society just doesn't seem to register in this country.

The only question, really, is whether an axing of such programs constitutes censorship or a negation of freedom of speech. "Freedom of speech for whom?" asks Enrique Mendoza, the director-general of information who carried out the purge. "For one director? The producer? A few writers?"

The issue, indeed, is even clearer in Canada than in Mexico. Here we have guide-lines that call for a balanced programming for the common good, yet we let both networks get away with the crudest, most savage American programs week after week.

Item: All sorts of pleasant birthday messages since my notes on reaching 60, many of them from devout religious people who quietly disagree with my conclusion that "it's hard to believe in a Supreme Being who'll wait around until a man's or a woman's defences are down, then Pow! Wham! Ker-Pow!, put them down with the most crippling and degrading diseases known to man . . ."

Robin Terry writes: "The Christian God Himself had to wait until His defences were down and then endure the most agonizing and humiliating death on the cross. Furthermore, He said to us, "He who does not take up his cross daily and follow me is not worthy of me." This, I think, explains the true meaning of sickness, suffering and death, by accepting these hardships we share in the sufferings of Christ and then also in His glorious resurrection."

Several nice poems, too, among them one called "Manana," author unknown, that's sent to me by a Mrs. Holt and goes as follows:

As I grow old, I hope I'll grow more mellow
Less quick to criticize the other fellow.
More generous too, I'll know the joy of giving:
Hand on my treasures, simplify my living.
I'll burn my souvenirs of old romances,
Tie up loose ends of my frayed finances.
I'll write out my will: I'll regulate my diet,
Cut out late hours and lead a life more quiet.
Someday I'll have to face these questions weighty
But not today . . . no rush . . . I'm only eighty!

Item: An interesting report on my desk today concerning the work of a group, funded by the provincial Department of Human Resources, which is looking into the many problems of transition—transition, in this case, meaning the uprooting of a normal life through enforced retirement, divorce, the death of a mate or the perils of loneliness that older people, particularly, find difficult to adjust to.

I like particularly the quote attributed to Dr. John Wood, of La Jolla, who spoke here earlier this year: "The first half of life we spend accumulating and gathering in—in the second half, hopefully, we should be able to give life meaning." "Yet so many older people cannot face up to an upheaval in their lives that, very often, the last chapter can become meaningless or miserable.

This particular group, a part of the Citizen's Counselling Centre of Greater Victoria, concludes that the most difficult adjustment of all is to "the stigma attached to old age—the generalized grouping of one quarter of our population in a discriminating manner by our society." Since there's very little hope that there'll ever be a change in that attitude it rests with the older people to prepare themselves for that eventuality.

Item: Five days later. Eighty-five thousand survivors of The Great Fire are busily rebilding their ant city. I give up.

AFTER 41 DAYS waiting in Royal Roads because of labor dispute, Russian freighter Boctoyhbin came alongside in Victoria today to take on grain and crewman Suerecaugp Nesterenko seems happy to be on the move again. Ship will load main grain cargo in Vancouver. (Bill Halkett photo.)

College Budget Severely Cut By Government

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Drastic cuts in Camosun College's 1975-76 operating budget have been made by the department of education.

The department has cut nearly $2 million of the budget submitted in December by Camosun College council, reducing a $7.8 million budget to $5.9 million.

College councillor Roy Temple said today the cuts are so severe they may force the college to dismiss all part-time faculty and maybe some full-time faculty, cancel as many as eight programs, and stop filling all vacant positions.

"We won't be able to support existing programs," he said.

College principal Dr. Grant Fisher said the cuts "are causing a heck of a mess for us."

"The operating budget that the department has proposed is about 22 per cent above the 1974-75 budget," he said.

"This will cause extreme problems for a growing institution."

The college had asked for a budget 58 per cent higher than last year's.

Fisher said the administration is trying to determine just how severely the college will be affected by the cuts.

"We're trying to determine the proportion of the existing staff that we can afford to keep on."

The entire budget problem will be placed before the college council when it meets Monday evening.

Temple said councillors have already resolved to go back to the department of education to seek more funds.

The $5.9 million approved by the department is less than the $6.6 million the college felt it needed to finance existing programs, he said.

The college had asked the department for $764,000 to expand existing programs and $441,000 to begin new programs as well, he said.

Temple accused the department of "destroying the whole concept of community colleges."

The budget cuts will hit Camosun's evening classes the hardest, he said, and those classes are central to the community college concept.

Fisher said other colleges in the province have got the same budget treatment.

"Any college that's growing . . . will be really hurt," he said.

Fisher pointed out that the provincial government has been saying it supports the expansion of community colleges.

"It (the budget cuts) seems to be contradictory to what we have generally been told, which is that the community colleges were doing an excellent job," he said.

The college council sent its operating budget to the department last December without making one cut in the figures submitted to them by college administrators.

Labor Knocks Rental Firms

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday condemned city council for not outlawing companies that charge a fee for prospective tenants to look at their lists of available accommodation.

United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union representative Elgin Neish said the homefinding companies are making money out of a terrible situation, the housing crisis.

He said the Capital Region Tenants Association had complained to city about such firms, but council had taken no action.

Neish said council refused to take action because there had been no complaints, "but the tenants' association letter is a complaint."

Such companies have apparently been banned in Vancouver and Burnaby and the tenants association had asked to have them outlawed in Victoria.

In other labor council business, delegates approved a motion urging federal and provincial labor organizations to appeal to governments to provide more money for cancer research.

The council also agreed to send a wire to the ministry of Transport, deploring the fact that fishing vessels are not required to meet the ministry's safety regulations, as do other vessels.

B.C. Delays Again On Trail Transfer

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

For the third consecutive year, the B.C. government has postponed turning over the Bamfield - Port Renfrew west coast trail and three Nitinat lakes to Pacific Rim National Park.

A senior government official said Wednesday the turnover scheduled for April 1 was delayed pending discussions on cost-sharing on property acquisitions between the province and the federal government.

Property acquisitions involve private lands, plus compensation to B.C. Forest Products Ltd. for forest lands owned by the province, but under lease to the logging company, he said.

Forest lands leased to the logging company are mainly on the Tsusiat, Squalicum and Hobitan Lakes watershed an area which the provincial and federal governments have agreed to include in the park.

The lakes are the last unlogged low-level lakes on Vancouver Island.

"I'm disappointed," Elton Anderson, a director of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists said today. "I know the government plans to include the area in the park, but no one is going to be happy until it is done."

He recalled that citizen groups from Vancouver Island and the mainland fought for incorporating the lakes and trail into the national park.

Anderson said the government is faced with a major problem because of the archaic system of leasing forest lands to forest companies which literally makes them masters of public lands. This is known as tree farm licences (TFL).

"Under this system we have practically sold our birthright," he said. "The land belongs to the people, but the forest companies control the lakes, rivers and streams. We have to compensate or pay them back for the land.

"TFLs were also awarded without any consideration of other resources — recreation, fisheries and wildlife."

Anderson noted some TFLs are due to come up for renewal within the next two years.

"There has to be some meaningful exchanges."

A senior forestry official said the Forest Act is under review.

Meanwhile, Jack Holyroyd, superintendent of Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach, said crews will continue to improve the west coast trail this spring and summer.

"The land does not really belong to us, but the province has given us the go-ahead," he said.

Dump Fire Fears Unfounded—Chief

Fears that a fire in the Millstream Road dump could turn into a repeat of a fire two years ago which took three months and $70,000 to extinguish, are unfounded, Langford fire chief Al LeQuesne said today.

LeQuesne said the dump site has been checked by the medical health officer and the pollution control board and a burning permit has been issued until May 1.

LeQuesne said commercial garbage is being taken to the site on Millstream because of the civic dispute, but that the garbage is being burned on a safe piece of ground and the owner has been required to post a bond.

The question was raised at Wednesday's Victoria Labor Council meeting when delegates said they feared a repeat of the landfill fire two years ago near the site.

Community Status Given New Wing

The Regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission in a closed meeting Wednesday night settled the role an addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital will have, enabling planning to begin.

A commission spokesman said today that the new wing of 75 acute care beds to be added to the existing 75-bed extended care hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad will serve as a community general hospital.

A consultant's report on the role of the hospital had said that if the commission wanted to build acute care beds on the peninsula nearer the major centre of population at Sidney, possibly fewer than 75 beds would be needed.

But the commission confirmed an earlier decision by the regional hospital board to build the acute beds on the site of the present Central Saanich hospital.

The decision means the hospital administration and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service can now complete the detailed terms of reference needed for architects to prepare plans, the spokesman said.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

Mackenzie, Qu'Appelle, Saskatchewan and Provider at sea, returning May 8; Terra Nova, Restigouche and Kootenay at sea, returning April 19; all other ships in port.

Weatherworn Ship Back

She has just completed seven weeks on her station, 900 miles out in the Pacific, which included 29 days when winds blew at gale force (28 knots) or better.

That's about average weather for this time of year, Capt. Randy Dykes, Quadra's master, said today.

What wasn't average was a big wave which rolled aboard with a thump at 2 o'clock one morning and took a window in the wheelhouse out.

It also snapped the base of a stand mounting a TV scanner which gives the bridge a view to the stern.

It was, however, a routine turn of duty for the Quadra's 90 officers and men, said Dykes.

Seasickness? No problem, said the captain. People who are chronically seasick just don't go to sea.

SPOT INSPECTIONS AT RESTAURANTS

Regional health officer Allan Arneil has begun spot checks of restaurants, work normally done by his health inspectors but suspended during the current civic labor dispute.

Complaints from the public about eating establishments or other food outlets will continue to be investigated, Dr. Arneil said Wednesday.

He is also conducting, as time permits, the sort of unannounced routine inspections of food outlets usually done by the locked-out health inspectors.

In addition Arneil will begin on the same basis checks of the 61 swimming pools in the Capital district, including the many in apartment and condominium buildings, work that is part of the health inspectors' routine. The pool inspections involve taking water samples.

Arneil has been filling in on other fronts as well during the nine-week strike-lockout, including conducting final septic tank inspections for permits required in new housing construction.

He is also doing some preliminary septic tank inspections.

Arneil said that while the community health services being provided are limited by the labor dispute, priorities based on the greatest need of the moment are being followed.

Weather Running Month Behind

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

April came in like a lion this year and, with luck, will go out like a lamb, says Victoria's chief weather forecaster Allan McQuarrie.

Such talk usually applies only to March.

"But everything's a month late this year," McQuarrie said.

"We have been getting January temperatures in February, February temperatures in March."

And March is coming in April.

For example, said McQuarrie, the low on April 1 was 1 and on April 2 it was 2 degrees. Everyone knows it should be 5 or 6 at this time of year.

The problem, says McQuarrie, is an Arctic storm hovering over the area that is keeping out the warm winds from California.

The cold storm was over the Queen Charlottes Wednesday and today is off the west coast of Vancouver Island. It is expected to move down to Washington State and then head inland on Friday.

"By Friday night it should be clearing. I'll go out on a limb a bit and say there should be sunshine for the weekend."

However, the storm is one of those things that makes life very difficult for weather forecasters, McQarrie said.

"It is like a spinning top. While it's spinning fast it will stay in one place. When it starts to slow down it will move. But there is no way of being sure which direction it will take. Hopefully it is heading south and east."

Light snow was reported on the Malahat and in some parts of the Langford-Colwood area Wednesday night, but it didn't stay on the ground.

It's true that it snowed in Victoria — in the spring — but it can all be explained, McQuarrie said.

"All rain starts out as snow, even in the summer time. In the summer it melts very high up and falls as rain. In cold winter days, of course, it doesn't melt until it hits the ground — and that's snow.

"However, on Wednesday the freezing (melting) level was 1,500 feet up. So any snow should have melted at that point and fallen as rain.

"The problem was, the snow was blasted to the ground by the wind before it could melt."

McQuadrie said the freak snowstorm was unlikely to be repeated this spring. It just isn't normal.

But the weather office is beginning to wonder what normal means in terms of weather patterns.

"The world's circulation patterns seem to be changing. How do we explain the droughts in Africa, the unusually heavy rains in India."

And March weather in April in Victoria.

Possibly the weather patterns are changing. Or it is possible that Victoria was experiencing unusually weather patterns for the past 30 years and it now is returning to normal, he said.

Regular Eggs Best Value

NUTRITION BUYLINE

Q: My friend buys fertilized eggs rather than regular ones. She says they have more food value because they contain hormones not found in regular eggs. Fertilized eggs cost more but are they superior?

A: No. Even though fertilized eggs are more expensive they have the same food value as regular eggs and do not contain additional hormones. However, because they are fertile, these eggs have a very limited keeping time. Also, the egg quality is below agricultural standards since the yolk is not as firm as the regular egg and the white is very liquid. Regular eggs provide the best food value for your money.

Q: Can I obtain vitamin E from any particular food or must I buy vitamin E capsules?

A: Vitamin E is so widely distributed in most foods that deficiency is rarely seen. The best food sources of vitamin E are the vegetable oils of cottonseed, soybean, safflower, corn, and wheat germ. Cabbage, spinach, and asparagus are fairly good sources.

Q: I know that I must serve my family foods with a high vitamin C content to keep them healthy but, to save money, could I serve these foods only on alternate days?

A: Unlike the vitamins A and D, vitamin C is stored in the body in only limited amounts. Also, in foods, it is the least stable of all the vitamins and can be lost during storage, preparation, cooking and serving. Foods rich in vitamin C (citrus fruits and their juices, raw cabbage, broccoli, strawberries, tomatoes and tomato juice, vitaminized apple juice) should be eaten every day to provide sufficient amounts for the body's needs and to allow for the losses occurring during meal preparation.

Free For The Asking

The average Canadian consumes 13 pounds of cheese a year. Much of it is imported from European countries.

The 16-page illustrated booklet "Dutch Treats with Holland Imported Cheese" ("Tablez sur les fromages de Hollande") tells you that early in the 13th century farmers in northern Holland discovered that by mixing skimmed and whole milk, they could produce a delightfully mellow cheese. To make their cheese unique, they agreed to produce it only in the shape of a ball and to colour the rind red.

Humble Turnip Souffle The Hit of the Meal

By MARY MOORE

I surprised myself. I made a humble turnip into a souffle and it seemed to be the hit of the meal.

We roasted a medium-sized turkey and to go with it along with other things I made a turnip souffle. After the guests were seated I brought it piping hot to the table and every one commented on it. The Dutch guests we entertained took this recipe back to Holland.

It will give your vegetables a lift.

TURNIP SOUFFLE
(Serves 6)

One 5 inch diameter turnip.
Two eggs — yolks whites divided.

Sauce:
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
1 c. milk

Slice, pare and cut up turnip. Cook in small amount of boiling salted water until very tender. Drain and mash until you have no lumps.

To make the sauce blend butter or margarine, flour and salt, then stir in milk until thick. Add to mashed turnip. Beat in egg yolks. Beat whites until stiff and fold in. Turn into ungreased medium straight-sided souffle or baking dish and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 25 to 30 minutes or until puffed and golden. Serve at once.

This method of making a vegetable souffle could be followed for other root vegetables such as carrots or parsnips or any vegetables which are pureed.

Women Reveal Some Turning Points

elizabeth forbes

"What is it about our educational process, at home and at school, that sometimes locks girls into thinking of themselves as inferior, as second-class citizens."

The Canadian Federation of University Women asked its members that question awhile back, through its standing committee on Status of Women and Human Rights.

The questionnaire also asked members to identify the one crucial event in their educational careers that set the direction or changed the course of their lives.

Report of the committee, in the current issue of The Chronical, CFUW magazine, shows that there were 400 replies from members in 21 clubs (there are 117 clubs in all.)

In some instances respondents admitted that they "wanted medicine but chose nursing," or "were not encouraged as much as their brothers were."

About half answered that one or both parents who were encouraging and supportive made all the difference.

The report quotes from these particular replies:

"I came from an educated family, and it was expected that all of the children would carry their education as far as they could";

"My parents were immigrants and were determined that I should have the opportunities they had not had";

"Higher education was valued in my home and there was never a question of my not going to university."

About one quarter of the answers cited as their crucial experience the receiving of a scholarship or award, being selected from among their peers to attend a conference, winning a competition or achieving the highest marks in a course or an exam.

Encouragement was not necessarily monetary, although many were deterred from their first ambitions by financial strictures.

In some cases it was a teacher or counsellor who provided the stimulus. However, many of the responses revealed "lack of guidance or effective counselling during the critical last two years of high school."

A parent who "didn't believe in educating girls because they only marry anyway"; a total lack of guidance ("nobody ever told me I was capable of university work, I had to discover it myself by working for a summer in a bubble gum factory and realizing that I wasn't trained for any better job"); a teacher who said that "law was no field for a woman, so I went into a secretarial course."

Edmonton's Jean K. Lauber, chairman of CFUW's committee points out in the report that "apparently a large percentage of members earned their degrees late, after family duties, or a period of working at an unexciting job."

Then she adds "one has the overwhelming impression of a tremendous amount of collective drive, and one wonders how many more might have made it, if our system had made it a little easier."

The crucial experience for many involved choice of field rather than whether or not to go to university.

"If our sample is representative, we have a surprising number of frustrated potential medical doctors and lawyers among our membership," Jean Lauber says.

Many drifted or were advised into fields that were known, at the time, to be "good choices for a woman"; nursing, teaching, household economics, librarianship.

Most had not been sorry but a number admitted to having once had other ambitions, frustrated by admission quotas, lack of money, well intentioned advice or peer pressure.

It was surprising, Jean Lauber concluded, how relatively few of the choices were entirely pragmatic.

Many of the members seemed to have had the desire and encouragement to work for their degrees in fields that interested them or that they "did well in."

This was without primary regard for what sort of job they would be prepared for, or how they would use the degree later.

"Undoubtedly," she concludes, "many who worked toward a teaching certificate or a nursing degree had an eye on the wage-earning potential ahead."

In the case of others, however, "post-secondary education has seemed a source of enrichment and broadening horizons, in or out of the work force."

This CFUW report makes it clear young girls have been (and still are, for that matter) identified early with the traditional female role of wife and mother and in the field of work, that their steps have been (and are) turned toward jobs "good for women."

Remembering that in this day and age, marriage is not the exclusive occupation of a woman's life and that the flag of women's rights is waving high, it also rings a warning bell.

Today — in the interests of a more equal partnership between women and men — in the family, at work and in the community — a girl definitely needs an education which will open a wide range of options for her and give her equal status with her brothers.

Cooking 'Greatest Therapy'

EXECUTIVE CHEF of the Chateau Victoria Daniel Rigollet has been chosen Victoria Chef of the Year by members of the city's Academie of Chefs de Cuisine. CRAIG CLAIRBORNE

NEW YORK — A note recently from a favorite correspondent — Feinschmecker — informed us he'd just dined in the home of a Dr. Louis Parrish, a physician and friend "who has taught many of his friends about herb cookery.

"To me," he said, "cooking is the greatest therapy on earth. It gratifies my senses as much as eating. I spend a long day listening and talking to patients and when I get home at night, the first thing I do is rush to the kitchen.

"I never bother to get comfortable until the meal is laid out. I chop the vegetables, slice the meat, get out the pots and pans and when everything is ready to be cooked, I get into something comfortable and relax. Someday I'll do a book on the therapeutic value of cooking."

The New York doctor withdrew the undevoured portion of a cold roast chicken and the remains of a cold rare roast beef from the refrigerator and tore away the flesh of the bird, cut the meat into very thin slices. The chicken would go into a Louisiana gumbo; the beef into a quick saute of leftover meat with soy sauce and ginger.

"It's true," he commented, "I'm a great champion of leftovers and almost invariably I cook in larger quantities than I'll serve at one meal, just to have leftovers. I sometimes think I prefer goods second time round."

Dr. Parrish, who is a general practitioner and psychiatrist and is in the process of writing a book for Reader's Digest Press on the change of life in men and women, told us that he has a constantly simmering stock pot into which he throws all bones, leftover vegetables, scraps of meat and vegetables as well as the leftover liquids from simmering meats and vegetables.

He added that he frequently buys bean sprouts to use in soups and salad and as a vegetable, not only because they are nourishing and taste good but because they are "incredibly inexpensive" and properly refrigerated in a plastic bag, last a long time.

Dr. Parrish has an interesting formula for roasting an eye round of beef. He preheats his oven to 500 degrees or the highest heat it can achieve, salts and peppers the meat, places it on a rack in a pan and puts it in the oven. He lets it roast four to five minutes for each pound, turns off the oven heat and lets the roast rest in the oven without opening the door from one and one-half to two hours. The result is a marvelous rare and tender roast with the juices well distributed.

"I slice what I need for the first meal and after it is in the refrigerator it is still nice and rare and can be reheated or sliced and cooked with other seasonings."

He recently used leftover garlic sausage and chicken in a Southern dish of red beans and rice; leftover cooked sweetbreads and week-old bean sprouts in a delicious soup (see bean sprout and shrimp soup and the beef in a ginger sauce.

Bean Sprout and Shrimp Soup

2 cups chicken broth,
1 cup fresh bean sprouts,
½ cup loosely packed watercress leaves and stems,
1 teaspoon butter,
½ cup chopped cooked shrimp (or leftover sweetbreads),
1 teaspoon curry powder,

Bring the chicken broth to a boil in a saucepan. Add the bean sprouts and watercress and simmer about five minutes.

Meanwhile, heat the butter in a small saucepan and add the chopped shrimp. Sprinkle with the curry powder and cook briefly until thoroughly hot. Add the curry and shrimp mixture to the soup. Pour the mixture into the container of an electric blender and blend until smooth.

Return the mixture to a saucepan and add the cream. Bring to the boil and serve.

RED BEANS AND RICE

The beans:
2 cups dried red or kidney beans,
1½ cups thinly sliced Polish (garlic) sausage,
1½ cups thinly sliced leeks,
1½ cups chopped fennel root, if available,
½ teaspoon thyme,
Salt to taste,
1 small dried hot red pepper, crushed,
1 tablespoon vinegar.
The rice:
1 cup rice,
2¼ cups chicken broth,
½ cup finely chopped parsley,
½ teaspoon lemon juice,
½ teaspoon salt,
1 cup diced, cooked chicken.
The garnish:
Chopped green pepper, optional.

Soak the beans overnight in cold water to cover.

Drain the beans and add enough cold water to cover to a depth of one inch above the top of the beans. Add the sausage, leeks, fennel, thyme, salt, pepper and vinegar. Cover and cook until beans are done and most of the liquid has been absorbed. Add more liquid as necessary or uncover to reduce the amount of liquid.

Meanwhile, combine the rice with the broth, parsley, lemon juice, salt and chicken. Cover and bring to the boil. Cook until all the liquid is absorbed, 12 to 14 minutes.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

HOT PEPPER JELLY

1 cup red or green peppers, cored and ground with the seeds,
½ cup long, hot, red or green peppers, cored and ground (see note),
6½ cups sugar,
1½ cups white vinegar,
¼ teaspoon salt,
1 six-ounce bottle fruit pectin (Certo).
Red or green food coloring.

Combine the green peppers, hot peppers, sugar, vinegar and salt in a saucepan. Simmer about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Strain or not as desired and return it to the saucepan. If strained, the solids are good as a relish. Pour in the pectin and bring to the boil. Stir in the food coloring. Pour into sterilized half-pint jars and seal with paraffin. Store in a cool place.

Yield: Eight to 10 half-pint jars.

Note: If long, hot peppers are not available, drained tinned jalapeno peppers, available in many supermarkets, may be substituted according to taste.

Child's T-Shirt from $3.99 to $4.99

The Marks & Spencer T-Shirt

An unusual T-Shirt. An unusual store.

You might think calling a child's short sleeve, polyester T-Shirt priced in the $3.99 to $4.99 range 'unusual' is a bit of an exaggeration. But you'd be wrong. This little garment is most unusual. And for a number of reasons. Its quality, value, construction, background and exclusive label make it unique to begin with. Then, there's more.

Look for beauty.

Look for it in the colourful motif. In the finishing. And what could be more beautiful than a garment you simply toss in your washing machine to have it snap back like new, consistently!

A garment that won't stretch, or shrink, or lose its motif through fading or chipping or washing (thanks to our own 'sublistatic printing' process). And to a mother what could be more beautiful than a soft, attractive, easy care T-Shirt that's tough?

The torture tests.

Each garment sold in a Marks & Spencer Store has to prove itself in our labs. It is subjected to torture on machines designed for the purpose. It's washed and beaten, it's stretched and rubbed and pulled. It's tested for colour-fastness, stress, washability, resilience, and durability. And then, it's tested for fit, comfort and behaviour by a panel of people who report to us very critically on how the garments perform when worn.

Only when a garment passes all of our tests does it earn a St. Michael label, and only then is it made available in a Marks & Spencer store.

How can we sell it so reasonably?

Because you're buying quality. Not frills. We sell good quality merchandise at reasonable prices. Therefore, we sell a lot of it. Our manufacturers are kept busy and their costs are kept down. And because of our way of operating you're not paying high profit mark-ups. Attractive quality garments are all that you pay for at Marks & Spencer. That's why they're so reasonable.

Our exclusive brand: Your money-back guarantee.

Everything Marks & Spencer sells carries our exclusive St. Michael label. It's your guarantee of total satisfaction and we are glad to accept full responsibility for every garment bearing it. Why? Because we ourselves specify how each St. Michael garment is made; regardless of where it's produced, it's made specially for us. Our St. Michael label is also your receipt in the event you need to exchange or return a garment.

St Michael

We hope our story has helped you decide to experience Marks & Spencer for yourself. You'll find that quality, value and helpful service are not things of the past. They're things we offer all of our friends, every day.

More Variety For Consumers In Beef Cuts

Today's shoppers have more choice when buying beef than ever before. There is more variety in the way cuts are merchandised and there is more than one grade to choose from. Most people are familiar with Canada A beef (red brand) which represents approximately 70 per cent of the graded beef marketed but other grades are also available—Canada B (blue), Canada C (brown) and Canada D (black). There is very little B and C grade beef available—these grades together make up about 10 per cent of graded beef marketed. The lower quality D grade beef represents about 20 per cent of the market, most being used for ground beef, processed meat and a small proportion sold as "economy beef" cuts.

Agriculture Canada's livestock graders assign the grade to the beef carcasses slaughtered in federally inspected plants. They also supervise the ribbon branding of the carcass according to designated grade and color. Three factors are used to assess the grade of each carcass:

—Maturity—the age of the animal affects the quality of the beef—the older the animal, the less likely it will produce tender cuts of beef.

—Quality—factors such as color, texture, firmness of fat and lean, amount of fat covering and marbling (the distribution of fat through the lean) affect the potential cooking and eating satisfaction of the meat.

—Meat Yield—top quality meat will have a good proportion of meat to bone. Since research has shown that there is a relationship between meat yield and amount of fat covering in beef, thickness of the fat is measured on Canada A and B grade beef carcasses.

Canada A grade is from youthful steers and heifers (usually 14-20 months of age). The lean has good bright red color, some marbling and a texture that is firm and fine-grained. The fat is white or slightly tinged with reddish or amber color. Canada A grade is subdivided into four fat levels determined by measurement of external fat at the rib eye between the 11th and 12 ribs. Canada A1 has the minimumn level of fat and Canada A4 the highest.

Some youthful carcasses which fail to meet any one of Canada A standards may be graded Canada B. The lean ranges from bright red to medium-dark red. The texture of the flesh may be somewhat coarse with no minimum marbling standards, the fat may be white to pale yellow. Canada B grade is also subdivided into four fat levels.

Canada C grade is from steers or heifers of youthful to intermediate age (28-40 months) or from carcasses of lower quality than Canada A or B. The lean may range in color from bright red to dark red.

Regardless of the grade, it is important to select the proper cooking method for each particular cut. Cook cuts such as rib or sirloin by dry heat, such as broiling or roasting uncovered in a 325 degree F oven. Cook cuts from the chuck slowly in moist heat such as pot roasting, braising or stewing to soften connective tissue. Pot roasts should be cooked in a little water in a covered pan on top of the stove or in a 325 degree F oven.

You may find that beef from Canada C grade is not quite as tender or as flavorful as Canada A beef. This is not surprising considering the effect of maturity and marbling on tenderness and flavor. Meat from this grade which has been mechanically tenderized, may be quite tender.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the 25-year-old girl who signed herself "Over Protected." She wanted her own apartment, was able to support herself, but her mother said: "Only tramps have their own apartments. Nice girls live at home."

Abby, I had the same problem. Only my problem was my father. I was 23 when I wanted to move out of my parents' home and into my own apartment. I was able to support myself, but my father insisted that I wanted to move so I could have men running in and out of my apartment all hours of the night. In fact, after I moved, he even watched my apartment for weeks, hoping he could say to my mother: "See? I told you so!"

Well, it never happened.

Abby, I was raised in a religious home where I was taught right from wrong, and I never forgot my upbringing. Parents should realize that grown children need to get out on their own, make their own decisions and become self-sufficient. And if they had the proper training and example, they will not be corrupted by temptation.

Your advice to "Over Protected" was great. "Cut the cord — and don't feel guilty."

—"Free, 24 and Respectable"

DEAR FREE: Thanks. I needed that. Some parents wrote to tell me to drop dead with that kind of advice, but the mail is running three to one in my favor.

DEAR ABBY: A reader signed "Made My Plans" wrote that she wanted to leave her eyes and kidneys to medical science to benefit anyone who needed them after her death. Her problem was he daughter, who said: "I am not going to let them cut you up, etc."

I wish "Made My Plans" and her daughter could have been at our house last Sunday when my husband, who desperately needed a kidney transplant, was trying to explain to our five-year-old daughter why he was crying.

He had just received a telephone call informing him that a donor kidney was available, and to please come to the hospital for a possible transplant.

—Mrs. E.

DEAR MRS. E.: Beautiful! Good luck to Mr. E. And God bless that donor.

FOR TIMES READERS

10- Instalment Series

STARTS FRIDAY, APRIL 4th, IN THE TIMES

While such problems as unemployment, housing, pollution, and labor disputes may dominate public thinking from week to week, by far the greatest threat to our security, liberties, and social structure is inflation.

Some economists would argue that we have already passed the point of control to prevent an economic collapse.

In view of the importance of this issue, the Victoria Times has secured serial rights for this controversial new book. While readers may not agree with the outspoken views set forth in this important study, it will certainly challenge the minds of all persons concerned about Canada's present economic position. A condensation of the book will be published in 10 installments by the Victoria Times, commencing Friday, April 4th.

Before The Judge

A 20-year-old man was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Wednesday to eight months in jail definite six months indeterminate after pleading guilty to two counts of possession of stolen goods under $200.

Donald John Campbell, 1239 Park Terrace, was also charged with two counts of theft under $200 but crown withdrew these charges after he pleaded guilty to possession. All charges had arisen after Campbell's wife called police to turn in a watch she said her husband had found Feb. 21 in a shopping cart at Safeway, 1153 Esquimalt Road.

Police investigation revealed the watch had been stolen from the woman's change room at Safeway earlier that evening. $18 was also missing from one of the purses in the room.

Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said Campbell committed the offence while out on bail awaiting sentencing on five counts of breaking and entering and theft.

Birkett also said Campbell had been sentenced to four months imprisonment on a Kamloops charge of possession of stolen property.

Judge Harold Alder ordered that Campbell's eight-month jail term be servec consecutive to any other sentence being served.

Campbell is scheduled to appear before Judge William Ostler later today for sentencing on his breaking an entering and theft charges.

David Edward Bryden, 26, of 502 Craigflower, pleaded guilty to bringing into Canada property obtained by crime and obtaining food and lodgings by fraud.

Police said Bryden cashed about $3,000 in traveller's cheques while in Seattle March 20 to 21. He had stolen the cheques from Yorkshire Trust Company, 737 Fort, March 18. Bryden returned to Victoria March 21 with the $3,000 in cash and an electric oscilioscope valued at $168.43 which was also obtained by means of the stolen cheques.

Police also said he checked into the Executive House, 777 Douglas, Feb. 22 to 25 and neglected to pay a $91.80 bill. He pleaded guilty.

Bryden was remanded to April 15 for presentence report and sentencing.

"To be truthful, I was just gassed up with rum," 64-year-old Charles Orton, 1312 Government, told the court when asked why he stole a Playgirl magazine.

Orton admitted to the March 26 theft at Tunnel News, 644 Yates.

He was given a suspended sentence and placed on six months probation.

Dumas Yvan Serge, 29, of 1328 Esquimalt, was fined $350 and prohibited from driving for six months after pleading guilty to impaired driving.

In the court section of Judge D. K. McAdam, Eugene Mathe, 60, of Duncan, pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property and was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

STRAP VOTED DOWN

VANCOUVER (Staff) — A resolution supporting a return to corporal punishment in schools was soundly defeated Wednesday by delegates to the B.C. Teachers Federation annual meeting.

The resolution asking the provincial government to restore "the kind, firm and judicious use of corporal punishment" came from teachers in Hope and Abbotsford.

"Corporal punishment is a calculated sadism unworthy of this profession . . ." said one teacher.

"We teachers should be leaders in the march away from violence, not toward it."

The federation has a task force working on finding alternatives to corporal punishment.

2 Victorians On Executive

VANCOUVER (Staff) — Victoria teachers took two of six executive positions in the B.C. Teachers Federation in elections Wednesday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Delegates to the BCTF annual general meeting elected Mavis De Girolamo, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, as their second vice-president.

UVic Senate Against Semester System

University of Victoria senate members decided Wednesday that no semester system should be established at UVic in the near future.

The members defeated a motion that students be allowed to register for one-term courses in January.

Defeat of the motion came despite some members' comments that students are coming from colleges and high schools in January, wanting to enrol at UVic.

Many faculty members believe encouragement of one-term courses rather than two-term — stretching the full eight months of the academic year — is detrimental to quality education.

Senate members also passed a motion Wednesday that no new schools or programs for UVic be studied without senate authorization.

The motion was presented along with a letter from philosophy professor Charles Daniels which said programs coming under study conform to no over-all plan for the university's future.

Picket Support Eyed

VANCOUVER (Staff)—The B. C. Teachers' Federation labor liaison committee has been asked to examine possible changes to the Public Schools Act which would allow teachers not to cross picket lines.

A resolution asking teachers to honor picket lines was referred to the committee for study Wednesday by delegates to the BCTF annual meeting.

Delegates were told they can lose their teaching certificates as well as wages if they withdraw their services in support of school strikes.

Under the Public Schools Act, teachers do not have the right to strike and it is a breach of contract to withdraw services in support of another union's strike.

Victoria teachers have been crossing picket lines of striking school board custodians and maintenance men since the workers went on strike Feb. 24.

The labor committee also was asked to draft a new policy on teacher response to The B.C. Teachers Federation strikes.

Current BCTF policy is to let local teacher associations decide what action to take in school strikes.

Arts Dean Supported

Dr. Alfred Fisher, associate dean of arts and sciences at the University of Victoria, has been recommended as the faculty's new dean.

If Fisher's recommendation by a selection committee is approved by the faculty and board of governors, the chemistry professor will succeed retiring dean Jean-Paul Vinay.

"The most impressive car in its class I've ever driven"

BRITISH LEYLAND

2 door Coupe also available

That was the conclusion Brian Hillis, a technical editor of Driving, Touring & Travel Magazine reached after putting the Austin Marina through a gruelling 20,000 mile road test.

"When I started the test on the Austin Marina last April, I decided to subject it to tortures that it may never see in the hands of the average person."

"In 20,000 miles of driving I found the Marina's day-to-day performance steady and sure...and repairs were few and inexpensive."

"In keeping with our extreme weather conditions in Canada, I tried to give the car a fair test through the different seasons. Whether the temperature was a hot humid 95 degrees in downtown Toronto, or minus 20 in Hull, the car started with equal ease."

"The heating and defrosting system is a real world beater in winter. More often than not it is necessary to turn off the heat on all but the coldest days, and the electric rear window defroster keeps visibility at its best."

"And that's just one example of the Marina's standard equipment. It's an easy car to buy, because virtually the only two options are automatic transmission and radio. Standard features include reclining front seats, door-to-door carpeting, radial ply tires, and of course the Marina's 1800 cc MGB type engine, which at 70 mph still gives you power for those quick passing spurts."

"Considering the low price, equipment included as standard, the very usable back seat and a huge trunk, the Marina is possibly the best small car buy on the market."

"It's the most impressive car in its class I've ever driven. I've never hesitated recommending it to anyone."

Italian Red, in the classic Italian tradition.

Italian Red is a full bodied, very dry wine reminiscent of the lively wines of Tuscany in Central Italy. The Italians have a word for such wine . . . "brioso" which means exuberant.

Alberta Group Plans to Lobby For Separation

EDMONTON (CP) Any Canadian province is free to pull out of Confederation as "a matter of right, not of revolution," says a report released Wednesday by the Independent Alberta Association (IAA).

Association officials said the report is part of their continuing effort to establish facts about Alberta's role in Confederation and whether it would be feasible for the province to stand on its own outside the existing federal structure. The report was prepared for the association by Patrick McDonald, an Edmonton lawyer and instructor in constitutional law at the University of Alberta.

Robert Matheson, IAA vice-president and a city alderman, said copies of the report have been sent to the 10 provincial premiers, Justice Minister Otto Lang and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"We are optimistic that the provincial government will accept the fact that we have a good case here, on an economic and legal basis, and that to withdraw from the union Confederation would be a matter of right, not of revolution," Matheson said.

"We have every hope that the province will take whatever steps are necessary to get a better deal for Alberta. We need to do something to improve Alberta's situation and that could be within, or if necessary, without Confederation," he continued.

The thrust of the 84-page report, which is available to the public at $25 per copy, is that the jurisdictional basis on which the federal system was set up has changed substantially over the years, to the point where "the federal system is now founded upon the sovereign will of each of the provinces forming it and unilateral secession of any province from the union is a matter of right, not of revolution."

The IAA has a membership of about 600. Matheson said most of the financial support has come from oil companies with other donations from individuals and other businesses.

Association president J. C. Rudolph said the group is still involved in researching the question of how much it is costing Alberta to be part of Confederation, whether the province could make it on its own and how Alberta would go about separating from the other provinces if that step was deemed necessary.

Evans Renews Warning Of Oil Spill 'Disaster'

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — Warning of the continued threat of a massive oil spill, Governor Dan Evans of Washington said Wednesday his suggestion for a state oil port at or west of here might not be immediately achievable.

But the governor told local townspeople if the idea of a port and single-transfer facility is not followed, other steps must be taken to combat the oil pollution threat.

"Despite the protestations of the oil companies to the contrary, a major oil spill now would be a major disaster," he told a luncheon. "We do not have the capability to handle a major spill and we don't have much time to find solutions."

The governor said he would not back down from his endorsement of a single transfer facility to supply all Puget Sound refineries with oil via a pipeline.

The project would be financed in part through a four-cent tax on each barrel of crude oil landed in the state. Tankers would be banned from travelling into Puget Sound.

"But this may not be immediately achievable in terms of practicality," the governor said. "There may have to be intermediate steps."

Proposals range from the port-pipeline plan to leaving the situation as it is, with tankers permitted in the confined waters of Puget Sound and with four separate transfer facilities in Whatcom and Skagit counties, he said.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When the following deal wqs played in the 1974 Life Masters Men's Pair Championship, a variety of results occurred. This was quite natural, since it was merely a part-score deal, and everybody had to make a decision as to whether to bid or not to bid.

One of the best North-South results was secured by Mark Blumenthal, former member of the Dallas Aces. He made a bushel of tricks by correctly assessing the situation around the table.

East-West vulnerable. South deals.

SOUTH

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Dbl.
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
1NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♦.

West led the diamond four against South's one notrump contract, and Blumenthal, South, played dummy's nine, which won the trick. He correctly interpreted that East was short in diamonds; and, hence, that East's take-out double must have been based on length and strength in the major suits.

Putting thought into action, he led the board's deuce of hearts at trick two, and when East followed with the six, he inserted his nine (his second successful finesse of a nine). Next came a finesse of the diamond queen, after which the board's remaining heart was led, with South's jack winning via a finesse. South's three remaining hearts were now cashed, two spades and a club being discarded from dummy. A diamond was then led to dummy's ace.

Eight tricks had been played up to this point. Dummy had the A-6 of spades remaining, and the K-J-9 of clubs. East possessed the K-Q-9 of spades, and the A-Q of clubs. The board's ace of spades was then cashed, and another spade was led, putting East into the lead. East took his spade king and club ace, but at trick 13 he had to lead the club queen, enabling dummy's king to win the trick. Thus Blumenthal made 10 tricks at his one no-trump contract.

East could have prevented declarer from making his tenth trick. When Blumenthal cashed the spade ace at trick nine, East should have unblocked by tossing away his queen (instead of playing the nine). When the board's remaining spade would be led at trick ten, West would win the trick with his ten-spot and lead a club, thus enabling East to win two club tricks with his ace and queen.

Astaire Seen Only Sure Winner In This Year's Oscar Race

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — This year's Oscar race comes down to the wire Tuesday night with only one horse seemingly a sure winner — Fred Astaire for best supporting actor in "Towering Inferno."

But the three big prizes are more difficult to pick than any Academy Awards competition in recent memory.

Except for Astaire, nostalgia and sentimentality play insignificant roles in the balloting because most of the nominees are relative newcomers.

The Newmans, Streisands, McQueens and Redfords were left in the gate.

The others, Al Pacino (The Godfather Part II), Dustin Hoffman (Lenny), Art Carney (Harry and Tonto) and Albert Finney (Murder on the Orient Express) are dssentially character actors. Pacino stands the best chance to upset.

Favored to win is Ellen Burstyn for her performance in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," followed by Gena Rowlands in "A Woman Under the Influence."

Faye Dunaway (Chinatown), Diahann Carroll (Claudine) and Valerie Perrine (Lenny) are long shots.

It is possible two Paramount pictures, "The Godfather Part II" and "Chinatown, "may knock one another out of the box, leaving the path clear for "Towering Inferno" to win best picture award. The disaster film was easily the most popular at the boxoffice which influences academy voters.

Among supporting actors Astaire is almost a certainty to win. Three of the other nominees — Michael V. Gazzo, Lee Strasberg and Robert Deniro — appeared in "The Godfather Part II." The split vote should eliminate the trio.

Jeff Bridges, son of Lloyd, was nominated for "Thunderbolt & Lightfoot" which was seen by a few academy members, or anyone else.

Ingrid Bergman, who has won the Oscar for best actress twice previously, in 1955 for "Gaslight" and 1956 for "Anastasia," may count on some sentiment to win the best supporting actress award for "Murder on the Orient Express."

Except for Madeline Kahn in "Blazing Saddles," who was nominated last year for "Paper Moon," most of the other best supporitng actresses are strangers to Hollywood — Valentina Cortese (Day for Night), Diane Ladd (Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore and Talia Shire (The Godfather Part II).

Best director awards generally go the man who is in vogue at the time and whose picture succeeds at the boxoffice. This year that rule of thumb would eliminate John Cassavetes (A Woman Under the Influence) and Francois Truffaut (Day for Night).

The top contender is Francis Ford Coppola (The Godfather Part II) whose "The Conversation" also was nominated for best picture.

Bob Fosse won in 1972 for "Cabaret," But his "Lenny" this year didn't impress academy voters nearly as much. And Roman Polanski (Chinatown) is an outsider at best.

Still, it's anybody's race. Fred Astaire is the only nominee who should definitely have an acceptance speech ready.

Peat Moss—What It Is and Does

Seeing a gardener tilling peat moss into his vegetable patch reminded me of a note made last year that 17 complaints about poor growth of vegetables were from gardeners who thought peat moss to be a convenient form of compost or a form of fertilizer.

Peat moss is definitely "humus," but it is not compost nor does it contain any plant food. Its use in the home garden is as a soil acidifier that enables us to grow plants which must have an acid soil.

Vegetables are not acid-soil plants. They will do well in a neutral to slightly acid soil, which is the natural range of our local soils. That is why vegetables grow so well here.

Peat moss classifies under "humus" because it consists of partly decomposed plant material found in ponds and bogs. The presence of water and the lack of air have prevented the last stages of decomposition which normally convert organic material to soil, and made impossible the escape of the acids formed during decomposition.

There are many different kinds of peat and each kind can have a different acidity rating, that coming from the bottom of ponds being the most acid in reaction.

The acidity of bog peat can vary considerably, depending on the amount of water in the bog, whether the water is present all year or the surface dries out in summer, and on the type of vegetation that grows under the existing conditions.

The peat from bogs in Germany is a desirable form that is imported by most countries, testing near neutral on the pH scale and highly recommended in English gardening books. Opposed to this is B.C. peat which is extremely acid, varying from 3.5 to 4.3 on the pH scale.

The only plants that will thrive in straight B.C. peat are the blueberries, a natural bog plant, providing sufficient water is present. No other plant cultivated locally can tolerate the extreme acidity.

In gardening articles, the term "humus" means an organic material that is added to the soil to improve its texture, increase its aeration, hold moisture, supply a small amount of plant nutrients, and increase the populations of soil micro-organisms by providing suitable conditions for reproduction and food. These micro-organisms convert minerals and organic chemicals to forms usable by plants and absorb poisonous gases and liquids that collect in the soil.

Humus is generally considered to mean animal manure and organic wastes from plants which have been predigested, or partially decomposed, in a compost heap. Peat moss is not humus in this sense.

For special garden work, such as the growing of acid-soil plants, peat moss is added to compost in amounts necessary to provide the correct state of acidity. For rhododendrons, azaleas, pierises, camellias, and like plants, 15 to 25 per cent peat moss by bulk is the maximum addition. The actual amount depends on the acidity of the natural soil before peat moss is added.

If a small amount of peat moss, say a layer one-inch thick, has been thoroughly incorporated to a depth of 10 inches with a rototiller, chances are that many vegetables will produce normally and only a few react poorly. In a spaded soil the peat tends to collect in pockets, its presence indicated by spotty growth.

Should the added peat moss constitute 10 per cent of the soil volume, chances of successful vegetable crops are slim; and the same is true when peat moss is used as a surface mulch around vegetables during summer. Cabbage and related crucifers will succumb to cub-foot in an acid soil if the slime-mould should happen to be present.

If quantities of lime are added to offset the undesirable effects of peat moss, the natural soil nutrients will be converted to forms available to plants and carried away in soil water, thus lowering the fertility of the soil. Quantities of humus and some chemical fertilizers will then be needed until the soil regains its normal balance. This may take several years.

Inflation, Recession Problems To Be Aired in Ottawa Talks

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Guidelines for a moderation of increases in prices, profits, salaries and wages are being evolved as the federal government's consensus program is now nearing its final stages government sources said today.

Provincial finance ministers will meet with federal Finance Minister John Turner Friday, April 11, after the first ministers two-day conference on oil, gas and the economy has closed. It is scheduled to take place Wednesday and Thursday next week.

The provincial finance ministers will meet afterwards with the federal minister to hear his progress report on the consensus program. The process of meeting with groups actively concerned, to arrive at a concensus for coping with the twin problems of inflation and recession, is now in its second stage.

The federal-provincial finance ministers will also discuss — behind closed doors — developments within the economy and repercussions flowing from the meetings of the premiers with Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

Meetings with a representative group of businessmen and later with the Canadian Labour Congress took place this week with members of the federal cabinet. Finance Minister Turner refused to disclose today what came out of those talks except to say it was the second stage in tyhe program of developing a consensus.

The 10 premiers accompanied by their provincial treasurers will come to Ottawa next week for the two-day summit meeting. The first day of meetings is expected to be open to the press with the second day closed.

There will be position papers delivered by the 11 first ministers the first day. There are two major items on the agenda for the summit meetings.

1. — Oil and gas pricing and distribution.

2. — The economic situation.

The first day of the conference will try to come up with a compromise on a fair price for energy between consuming and oil producing provinces. It may not succeed in achieving this during the first day and could continue that discussion into the second.

In mid-February Energy Minister Donald Macdonald removed the year-and-a-half-old voluntary price restraints. This permitted oil companies to boost their product prices in keeping with non-crude costs. Prices went up 2.2 cents a gallon with varying retail prices at the pumps.

The summit meeting may arrive at a compromise of a price of $9 or more a barrel. That would translate into consumers paying possibly another 10 cents a gallon for gasoline later in the year.

During the discussion of the economy Turner will outline the progress made in implementing his seven-point program to combat inflation and recession.

Police Grab Three in New York In Airline Ticket Sale Racket

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly $2 million in blank airline tickets have been seized and three men arrested in what police called a billion-dollar international ticket-selling racket.

Police said the men, one armed with a loaded .45 automatic, were arrested after a scuffle Wednesday evening on a busy Manhattan street corner.

The men were members of the "Hispanic arm" of the racket, which specializes in the theft, validation and sale of blank airline tickets, police said.

Authorities said the suspects were carrying some 400 stolen airline tickets, worth an estimated $2,500 each, in brown paper shopping and canvas bags.

The detective said the three men — identified as Curiel Hiciano, 21, Franklin Socorro, 21, and Roberto Lazo, 28, — were all illegal aliens living in New York City.

According to police, the three had been under surveillance "for some time."

"The tickets are stolen from travel agencies all over the country in burglaries and stickups and heisted from shipments to different parts of the world," a police spokesman said.

He said the racket is divided up into several parts which specialize in selling the stolen tickets to different categories of customers. "They sell them on the street, in bars," he said. "The most legitimate people in the world buy these.

"There's the businessman end of it, the east side end of it," the detective said. He said the men arrested Wednesday were members of "the Hispanic end of it."

Coyle said the nearly 400 tickets confiscated were from Pan American Airline Dominican Airlines and Prinair (Puerto Rican International Airlines).

U.S. FIRMS STILL PICK CANADA

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canada is still an attractive place for American business expansion, although forecasts for spending have been trimmed this year, according to the U.S. commerce department.

U.S.-owned companies plan to spend more in Canada this year than any other country in the world, the department says in a report on capital investment.

But a surge of interest in North Sea oil development will lure more new money — an estimated $2 billion — to the U.K.

The report deals only with property, plant and equipment spending by majority-owned U.S. affiliate companies already in business abroad. It does not project figures for new companies.

It says that U.S.-owned firms reported at the end of the year that they had spent about $5.1 billion in Canada in 1974. They plan to spend $5.5 billion this year.

The reduction is mainly because of depressed economic conditions, which have affected investment plans in most other parts of the world, too.

But mining companies expect to spend most of a worldwide $1. billion total in Canada.

The estimate of 1975 spending in Canada is the second lowest in seven years by U.S. companies. It was lower only in 1972, another year of general retrenchment.

But estimated spending in the U.K. is up 34 per cent to a total of $4.2 billion, mainly for North Sea development.

Worldwide, U.S. firms' spending will rise by 17 per cent to a total of just under $30 billion.

Other areas where the increase will be large include the Middle East and Latin America.

COMPUTER TAKES OVER B.C. TEL DIRECTORIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Telephone Co. Ltd. has turned over the job of producing its 2.4 million directories a year to a computer.

The company consumes 3,756 tons of newsprint, 84 tons of cover stock, 27.5 tons of glue and 40 tons of ink in turning out 23 directories, four by its Okanagan Telephone subsidiary.

In all, there are about one million listings to be kept track of and 910,000 of these have already been transferred onto magnetic tape for computer retrieval.

Operators of IBM peripheral equipment work with record cards submitted by the service department.

Seated at cathode ray tube terminals, they can screen a group of listings drawn up from the computer. After punching a keyboard they can check on entry or deletion against information on the screen. Errors are down to two in 10,000 listings.

The task of changeover to the computer system is magnified by the daily volume of 3,000 listing changes, deletions or additions.

In a typical year, the directory department's staff of 50 can expect to add, alter or strike out 60 per cent of the total volume of listings it has on file.

At production time, listings for a directory are retrieved from storage and projected in arranged page format on a screen which is photographed to give a negative for the printers, Evergreen Press of Vancouver.

Yellow page advertising, which makes the directories a financial success, is managed by an affiliate, Dominion Directory Ltd., which does 90 per cent of its business with B.C. Tel.

This year gross advertising sales on directories published by B.C. Tel should amount to $17.5 million. After preparation and production costs, plus overheads and profit payable to Dominion, B.C. Tel should be left with a net take of $7.5 million.

B.C. Tel figures show Dominion made a 1974 profit on dealings with the parent company of $390,000 after deducting associated expenses.

The 1975 budget of B.C. Tel's directory department is $6.2 million. After this and anticipated net income of $7.5 million are deducted from gross advertising revenues garnered by Dominion, some $3.8 million is left to the latter to cover its operating expenses and provide a profit.

Yellow page sections outnumber white-page directories two-to-one. In Greater Vancouver, for instance, there is a common directory, but there are four yellow page sections to cover different districts.

This year, for the first time, B.C. Tel. is splitting its Greater Vancouver directory into two sections. Volume One will contain directory listings and the second book will be devoted to Yellow pages.

Firemen Protest Pact

By The Canadian Press

The 1,800-member trades and crafts component of the British Columbia Government Employees Union has voted 78 per cent in favor of a new 18-month contract, retroactive to April 1, 1974.

Despite the vote, 84 provincial firemen, members of the trades and crafts component, are continuing job action at the University of B.C. Medical Centre, Riverview Hospital and the Tranquille School in Kamloops.

Steve Nordin, a spokesman for the firemen, said the firemen are re-assessing their position in light of the component's ratification of the government offer.

The firemen have said they don't have the same control over their wages and working conditions they had before BCGEU took over bargaining for them.

The firemen have been providing only emergency services.

No details of the 13 components' agreements with the provincial government are being released until after all have voted. The ballots of the last component — the Social Health and Services component — are being counted Friday.

If the 1,500-member Social Health and Services component votes to accept the agreement, it will mean an end to the first round of negotiating since B.C. government employees were granted the right to collective bargaining in 1973.

Extra Month In Jail For Escaper

And today he learned the consequences of his actions — an extra month in jail.

Higgins, 19, pleaded guilty to escaping lawful custody when he appeared before Judge Harold Alder in Victoria provincial court.

The youth, who had served just one week of a three-month sentence for mischief, was reported missing following a 6 a.m. bed check Wednesday.

He was arrested in Victoria at 8 p.m. that night.

Higgins was the first person to escape from the minimum security jail since it was opened last June.

Strike Notice Served By ITU

CAMPBELL RIVER — A small unit of the International Typographical Union has served 72-hour strike notice on E. W. Bickle Co. Ltd., owner of two weekly newspapers here.

ITU president Ed Fairbairn said today from Vancouver that employees of the Campbell River Upper Islander and the Campbell River Courier had voted 90 per cent in favor of strike action.

The union covers about 20 office employees of the two papers, including reporters, advertising salesmen, distribution workers and clerical staff.

The first two-year contract expired in January and negotiations since then have failed to produce a settlement. Union proposals include job classification and adjustments and a one-year-contract instead of two.

The company has asked for the services of a government mediator in the dispute, but it will be up to the labor department whether one is appointed.

The request for the mediator came the same day as the strike notice. Mediators are not normally appointed when strike notice has been served.

The company also owns the Comox District Free Press in Courtenay, several theatres and a cablevision station.

BAIL DEFERRED

A 24-year-old man charged with abducting one girl and attempting to abduct another in Saanich March 20 was remanded in custody for one week following a lengthy bail discussion before Judge Harold Alder in Victoria provincial court Wednesday.

Alder said he needed the time to review both the crown and defence positions in showing cause why Martin John Kellington should not be released.

Four charges against him were read Wednesday — abducting a female, attempted rape, indecent assault on a female and attempted forcible seizure of a female.

POLICE 'TOO COSTLY'

COURTENAY (CP) — The Comox Strathcona Regional District has asked the provincial government to assume responsibility for all policing in the district.

Campbell River Mayor Kenneth Forde, who sponsored the motion, told regional directors Monday the cost of policing is "just too big a burden" for most British Columbia municipalities.

Courtenay Mayor William Moore said policing is obviously a function of the provincial government, "and we just can not keep loading the costs on the taxpayer, or we are going to tax them right out of their homes."

The resolution has been forwarded to the attorney-general's department.

A Courtly Occasion

President Eric Charman and new directors of the Victoria Real Estate Board will be installed in office by Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake at ceremonies Monday noon at The Empress.

Officers of the Victoria Society of Real Estate Salesmen will be installed at the same time.

Postal Workers May See The Light

Victoria postal workers may see the light of day after all.

Earlier this year the Victoria Labor Council wrote to Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey protesting the design of the $8 million mail processing plant to be constructed in Royal Oak.

The design plans called for windows in the lunch and recreation rooms of the building, but none were planned for the huge main processing room where the postal workers will spend most of their time.

A reply from Mackasey, read at Wednesday's labor council meeting, said the lack of windows was "in keeping with good design practice of the building" and contributed to "efficient environmental control."

But, the letter continued, the protest from the labor council and the postal workers will be taken into account and the sun's rays may find their way into the mail room after all.

Teachers Want 45%

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for Metropolitan Toronto's 12,000 elementary school teachers said Wednesday they are seeking average salary increases of 45.8 per cent in a 12-month agreement.

Negotiator Carl Anderson said the average classroom teacher would make $17,300 for the next school year under the proposal.

William Ross, chairman of the Metro Toronto School Board, said later that he will respond to the teachers' proposal at a news conference today.

Anderson, negotiator for the principals, said principals and vice-principals are seeking an average 40-per-cent increase, but would probably settle for 25 per cent and a cost-of-living allowance. The 40-per-cent increase would raise salaries for most principals to $35,800 from $25,550.

Metric Road Signs Next Week

The first metric road signs will go up on B.C. highways next week.

A highways department official said the target date for setting up educational signs was April 8 and the government will likely meet that deadline.

The 26 educational signs will show road distances in kilometres as well as in miles to get people used to the idea of dealing with metric signs.

The official switch to metric highway markers will not take place until September, 1977, when all signs across Canada will be changed.

By 1977, all new cars are expected to have speedometers marked in kilometres and decals should be available to stick on speedometers of older cars.

Murder Bid Alleged In Wife Beating

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police obtained a warrant Wednesday for the arrest of Charles Eichman, 48, on a charge of attempted murder after they were informed the FBI had turned Eichman over to the fugitive squad of Atlanta's city police.

He is wanted in Vancouver in connection with the severe beating Monday of his estranged wife, Cora Patton Eichman, 45.

Two Vancouver homicide detectives flew to Atlanta to talk to the suspect who is being detained on the Vancouver warrant.

Eichman is believed to be a native of Philadelphia, but has been attending university in Tallahassee, Fla., studying for a doctorate degree. He and his wife have been separated about three years.

Mrs. Eichman remained unconscious in hospital Wednesday after surgery Tuesday for a fractured skull.

Police said it is believed she was attacked with a club or metal pipe.

FEED RUNS SHORT

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A federal agrologist says some ranchers may experience problems this year because cool weather is holding back the growth of spring feed.

Bill Hubbard said ranchers operate on a year-to-year basis and rarely have enough surplus feed in storage.

The cost of hay is high and may be unobtainable now because ranchers are holding onto what little they have, he said. The shortage is holding the cost of hay at $80 a ton, $20 higher than prices last year.

LOST TWICE, FOUND TWICE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Search and rescue officials said the owner of a 38-foot powerboat went missing twice after he left on a trip to Crescent Beach.

He was found both times, the first time off Mayne Island, the second, aground in Birch Bay, on the coast south of Blaine.

"It raises the possibility . . . that our work will start to be treated with the same benign respect, and neglect, that is accorded the reports of so many government agencies and commissions."

VANCOUVER — A 65-year-old Vancouver woman was a $15,000 loser when she attempted to make a profit Wednesday on what she thought was stolen money.

She told police two women approached her and said they had $30,000 and an $18,000 bond in a bag they saw thrown from a car being chased by police.

They said they feared police had the serial numbers of the money and offered her the bag for $15,000.

She agreed, withdrew $15,000 from her bank account, then went with the women to an apartment building. The pair left her in the lobby, taking the $15,000 and leaving her the bag. When they didn't return, she opened the bag and discovered only a small amount of money.

$ THE REIGNING ERROR £

No one needs to be told that many parts of the world — certainly including Canada — are in the grip of serious inflationary pressures which threaten the well-being and economic future of most people.

But is there any hope that inflation can be checked? Or is it already too late and are we on a one-way road to economic collapse?

In an important new book — The Reigning Error: The Crisis of World Inflation — William Rees-Mogg, editor of The Times of London, examines in detail the inflationary threat to our social and economic structures.

DIDN'T TAKE OWN ADVICE

LONDON (UPI) — Value Today, a magazine designed to help people beat inflation, is folding after only six issues, a spokesman said today.

"Costs have gone up so much we were losing on every issue," said executive editor David Miller.

Hundreds in Province Want Viet Children

Immigration and child welfare officials in B.C. said today they have been flooded with calls from people wanting to adopt orphans from Cambodia and Vietnam.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday the federal government will take whatever steps are necessary to speed the adoption process for those children already "on-stream" for immigration to Canada.

The minister also expressed a willingness to see more children adopted in Canada and said he has urged child welfare authorities to cut through red tape to ensure homes are found quickly for any orphans who arrive here.

B.C. superintendent of child welfare J. V. Belknap said today the department has received a flurry of calls from people who heard Andras' comments and want to adopt children.

But he said he can give them no commitment that more Southeast Asians orphans will be available for adoption.

Both Belknap and regional director of immigration services in Vancouver Jim Pasman said the thrust of Andras' comments was to assure people waiting for chil-

Panic Hitting Saigon

Times News Services

SAIGON — Military officials issued shoot-to-kill orders today to prevent protests and disturbances in Saigon as up to 50,000 Communist-led forces massed 40 to 50 miles to the northwest and northeast of the capital.

Saigon's 10 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew was extended to 9 p.m.-6 a.m.

Nguyen Van Binh, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Saigon, called for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, joining growing demands that Thieu step down in the wake of battlefield losses that have cost South Vietnam three-quarters of its territory.

City Truck Tires Slashed By Vandals

Public works officials still assessing the extent of the damage were reluctant today to give any preliminary estimates, but city engineer John Sansom said even though many of the tires can be repaired the bill will be substantial.

"These tires cost at least 50 bucks apiece," said Sansom.

The city has a contract with a security firm, Western Home Guard Patrol Ltd., for surveillance of the yard where up to 60 vehicles of all kinds, ranging from light pick-up trucks to earth moving equipment, are stored.

But details of the firm's patrol arrangements were not immediately available, although city officials said they understand the depot is visited frequently throughout the night.

In most cases only one tire on each unit was affected, and traffic engineer Dave Campbell said the damage appears to have been caused by small, barely perceptible nicks in the tire walls.

Units placed temporarily out of action include two smaller garbage trucks which management staff have been using every Wednesday to empty downtown litter containers; the city's only sewer cleaning pump; and two trucks used for asphalt patching of potholes.

Sansom said he was the first to discover the damage, when he called at the yard about 7 a.m. to organize an early shift for road repair jobs.

The vehicles singled out for tire-flattening were parked over a fairly wide area, and the vandalism was apparently done in "random" fashion, said Campbell.

NO CLEAR OSCAR FAVORITES

Predicting Oscar winners will be more difficult than usual this year, according to UPI Hollywood writer Vernon Scott, because there are no clear favorites in the major categories.

Scott, whose assessment of the Oscar race is on page 29 today, says any one of Towering Inferno, Chinatown or Godfather II could be best picture. Lenny and The Conversation merely fill out the field. He says he notes that Towering Inferno has been the most popular at the box office.

The Times and CJVI will award a CP Air weekend for two in Hollywood in a drawing April 9 from among those who have correctly predicted the Oscar winners for best actor, best actress and best picture. Three consolation prizes will also be awarded.

The Academy Awards are announced April 8.

Arbitrator Appointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Peter Donald Seaton of the British Columbia Supreme Court has been appointed arbitrator in the contract dispute involving 4,000 West Coast longshoremen, Labor Minister John Munro said today.

Mr. Justice Seaton will have 60 days in which to bring in an arbitration award to resolve the dispute which led to a three-week strike by the longshoremen in 11 B.C. ports.

Mortgage Limit Jumps $11,000 for Victoria

The maximum loan limit for mortgages insured under the National Housing Act has been increased to $46,000 from $35,000 for the Victoria area.

This will have the effect of reducing the down payment needed to buy homes under NHA, said Raymond Pitt, spokesman for the Victoria branch of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The loans go out in two forms. Direct lending by the government corporation to qualified (low income) purchasers is at an interest rate of a maximum of 10 per cent.

In addition, NHA mortgages are arranged through banks, credit unions and trust companies at conventional rates of about10.5 per cent.

"Our policy continues to be to encourage new construction with direct lending," Pitt said.

Therefore the 10 per cent money will be going to purchase new homes or condominiums. Indirect lending at 10.5 per cent is for new or existing homes.

Pitt said the higher mortgage level would create a more brisk real estate market in Victoria.

"A larger mortgage means a lower down payment which in turn means more people can afford to buy homes."

Announcement of the higher limits was made in Winnipeg by Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson.

Limits vary from city to city with the low being $40,000 and the high — Vancouver and Toronto—set at $48,000.

While the loan limit rose by $11,000 in Victoria (from $35,000) it rose only by $8,000 in Toronto and Vancouver (from $40,000).

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

Two men, one of them an escaped convict, were charged in Victoria provincial court this morning with three of the nine armed robberies in Victoria over the past 12 days.

William Harold Mack, 26, who escaped from William Head federal prison March 16, and William Wallace Woods, 26, of 1249 Rockland, were arrested shortly after a robbery late Wednesday afternoon at Valu-Way Food Market, 101 West Burnside.

Cashier Mrs. Tang Chi-fong said a man entered the store at about 4:30 p.m.

As Mrs. Tang began to ring up the groceries, she said the man placed his hand on her arm and handed her a brown paper bag.

"There was something written on the bag but I can't read English so I wasn't sure what he wanted," said Mrs. Tang.

"Then he said 'Money' and pointed to the till . . . I understood."

She said he pointed to a gun tucked under his belt.

"I opened the till and he grabbed all the money, then ran out of the store."

About $130 was taken.

Mrs. Tang said she ran after the man but lost him around the corner.

But a woman, watching from her apartment across the street, saw the man get into a car and drive south on Qu'Appelle towards Gorge. She became suspicious and took down the licence numer. When police arrived to investigate the robbery, she gave them the number.

Minutes later, Victoria police stopped a car on Garbally, and arrested Woods. Mack was picked up shortly after.

All the money was recovered.

Mack and Woods were jointly charged with the Valu-Way armed robbery.

Mack also was charged with Tuesday's 11 a.m. armed robbery at Niagara Grocery, 579 Niagara, and the noon-hour holdup Wednesday at Hollywood Grocery, 1707 Lillian.

Victoria police said that in both incidences, a man wearing a cowboy hat and dark sunglasses handed the cashiers a bag on which was written: "I have a gun . . . give me the money."

The pair was remanded to Friday for election of trial method and plea, at which time bail for Woods will also be discussed.

Mack is not eligible for bail.

Orphan Airlift Arrives in U.S.

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — The 52 Vietnamese orphans who escaped Saigon because of a defiant pilot arrived late Wednesday night at Oakland International Airport.

They only arrived because Capt. Ken Healy defied orders by Saigon air traffic controllers not to take off.

"Just watch me," Healy said he radioed to the controllers just before gunning his craft.

Capt. William Keating, who also made the flight, explained at a news conference in Oakland: "We were instructed to hold our position by ground control. We ignored that. We taxied down the runway and took off."

Also aboard the World Airways cargo jet were half a dozen Vietnamese adults who scrambled aboard the plane at the last moment without papers.

Healy, who also flew refugees from collapsing cities in mainland China during the Communist advance of the late 1940s, says Vietnam today is worse.

"I don't care if I lose my license," Healy said. "It would be a cheap price to pay to bring these kids from danger."

One orphanage refused to send 400 children, and World Airways said the U.S. embassy had advised the orphanage against the flight.

Adoption officials said in the U.S. that it was hoped 2,000 orphans could be airlifted from Saigon in the next 48 hours.

But a World Airways spokesman said, "We think it may be too late to bring more children out."

For flight attendant Jan Wollett it was a frustrating experience.

"There are tens of thousands of children who want to get out of Vietnam, but the government bureaucracy won't let them," she told reporters.

BATTLE NEARS PHNOM PENH

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Insurgents over-ran a government position at a dike along the capital's defence line today, pushing within five miles of the city.

Military sources said government reinforcements moved into the area but "the position was not clear."

There was heavy fighting north, northwest and south of Phnom Penh, all of it clearly heard in the capital.

Rebel troops Wednesday captured seven positions east, west and south of the besieged capital.

In a statement broadcast by the New China News Agency, Prince Norodom Sihanouk said certain countries are trying to talk the Phnom Penh government into negotiating with the rebels.

"No foreign country has the right to issue orders to the Cambodian people" the nominal leader of the rebels said from his exile in Peking.

On the defence perimeter northwest of Phnom Penh, the attackers advanced about a mile along a one-mile front before they were stopped, field reports said.

The captured positions were about six miles north of the airport and if held would give the Khmer Rouge's guns and rocket launchers new positions from which to fire on the field.

The insurgents' rockets and shells destroyed two more of the government's dwindling fleet of T-28 light bombers and damaged two civilian planes at the airport shortly after dawn.

Lougheed Shuffles Entire Cabinet

Don Getty was given the major responsibility of overseeing Alberta's energy matters in an expanded portfolio of Engery and Natural Resources. Next to the premier, he has been Alberta's major energy spokesman.

Lou Hyndman takes over Getty's former job as Minister of Federal and Intergovernmental Affairs and remains government house leader. Hyndman had been education minister.

Premier Lougheed, in high spirits following an overwhelming victory in the March 26 Alberta general election, told a news conference he intends to shift his attention from energy matters to social areas of government "to the extent practical."

Egypt Seeks Wider Session

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sent messages today to the leaders of Britain, France, Yugoslavia and India stating Egypt's desire that their countries participate in the Geneva Arab-Israeli peace conference, government sources said in Cairo.

The messages were addressed to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, French President Valery Giscar d'Estaing, Yugoslav President Tito and Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, they said.

The sources said Sadat's messages explained that Egypt was anxious to avoid possible U.S.-Soviet polarization at Geneva which could wreck the conference.

Egype has formally requested the United States and the Soviet Union, as co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference, to reconvene it for consideration of a global Arab-Israeli peace settlement following the collapse of the U.S.-sponsored step-by-step approach.

Egyptian foreign minister Ismail Fahmi said Egypt wanted the inclusion in the conference of other powers like Britain and France as well as one non-aligned country at least.

Egypt also feels that Britain and France, as permanent members of the UN Security Council and leaders in Western Europe, could effectively join the United States and the Soviet Union in guaranteeing a final Arab-Israeli settlement if one can be reached, they said.

The sources said Sadat will be writing also to a large number of African, Asian and East European heads of state about Egypt's latest position in the conflict with Israel.

They said Egypt believes the non-aligned group of nations should be represented at Geneva because they represent about two-thirds of the world. Egypt considers India and Yugoslavia as best-suited for this role at Geneva, they said.

My War With The Ants: When Victory Is Hollow

Item: A beautiful Spring day, but darkened for me by the kind of moral or ethical dilemma that reduces me to quivering jello.

I am to burn out the huge ant's nest behind Granpaw's cottage. I have the can of diesel oil, the fateful match, the knowledge that these little creatures are invading the old man's home in vast numbers, that it has come down to this arbitrary choice between "them" and "us." Everything is firm but my backbone.

I gaze for a long while at the ant hill. It is a seething mass of activity, probably the most industrious sight in all the world of nature. Over the long years these ants have built up a tremendous community, have fashioned a mound of straw that, reckoned in man-hours of work, is beyond belief. I remind myself that the forefathers of these ants were here long before this land was cleared, that the labor of who knows how many years will be wiped out in five minutes or less by thess weapons of destruction I carry. At least a thousand, perhaps more, of God's creatures are about to go up in smoke.

Against all this is the indisputable fact that they are making life miserable for Grandpaw that there is no way of moving them, that there is only one possible solution.

So I did what had to be done in a miasma of guilt and self-contempt that brought no relief whatever. But what can you do? What can you do?

Item: Reading today, in TV Guide, how the Mexican government, in one fell swoop, cut out 37 violence-oriented American television programs, which I feel very strongly is a move that should be duplicated by our own people in Ottawa. The Mexicans' acceptance that there's a very direct link between the portrayal of violent crime on the living room screen and the violent crime in society just doesn't seem to register in this country.

The only question, really, is whether an axing of such programs constitutes censorship or a negation of freedom of speech. "Freedom of speech for whom?" asks Enrique Mendoza, the director-general of information who carried out the purge. "For one director? The producer? A few writers?"

The issue, indeed, is even clearer in Canada than in Mexico. Here we have guide-lines that call for a balanced programming for the common good, yet we let both networks get away with the crudest, most savage American programs week after week.

Item: All sorts of pleasant birthday messages since my notes on reaching 60, many of them from devout religious people who quietly disagree with my conclusion that "it's hard to believe in a Supreme Being who'll wait around until a man's or a woman's defences are down, then Pow! Wham! Ker-Pow!, put them down with the most crippling and degrading diseases known to man . . ."

Robin Terry writes: "The Christian God Himself had to wait until His defences were down and then endure the most agonizing and humiliating death on the cross. Furthermore, He said to us, "He who does not take up his cross daily and follow me is not worthy of me." This, I think, explains the true meaning of sickness, suffering and death. by accepting these hardships we share in the sufferings of Christ and then also in His glorious resurrection."

Several nice poems, too, among them one called "Manana," author unknown, that's sent to me by a Mrs. Holt and goes as follows:

As I grow old, I hope I'll grow more mellow
Less quick to criticize the other fellow.
More generous too, I'll know the joy of giving;
Hand on my treasures, simplify my living.
I'll burn my souvenirs of old romances,
Tie up loose ends of my frayed finances.
I'll write out my will: I'll regulate my diet,
Cut out late hours and lead a life more quiet.
Someday I'll have to face these questions weighty
But not today . . . no ruch . . . I'm only eighty!

Item: An interesting report on my desk today concerning the work of a group, funded by the provincial Department of Human Resources, which is looking into the many problems of transition—transition, in this case, meaning the uprooting of a normal life through enforced retirement, divorce, the death of a mate or the perils of loneliness that older people, particularly, find difficult to adjust to.

I like particularly the quote attributed to Dr. John Wood, of La Jolla, who spoke here earlier this year: "The first half of life we spend accumulating and gathering in—in the second half, hopefully, we should be able to give life meaning." "Yet so many older people cannot face up to an upheaval in their lives that, very often, the last chapter can become meaningless or miserable.

This particular group, a part of the Citizen's Counselling Centre of Greater Victoria, concludes that the most difficult adjustment of all is to "the stigma attached to old age—the generalized grouping of one quarter of our population in a discriminating manner by our society." Since there's a very little hope that there'll ever be a change in that attitude it rests with the older people to prepare themselves for that eventuality.

Item: Five days later. Eighty-five thousand survivors of The Great Fire are busily rebilding their ant city. I give up.

AFTER 41 DAYS waiting in Royal Roads because of labor dispute, Russian freighter Boctoyhbin came alongside in Victoria today to take on grain and crewman Suerecaugp Nesterenko seems happy to be on the move again. Ship will load main grain cargo in Vancouver. (Bill Halkett photo.)

College Budget Severely Cut By Government

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Drastic cuts in Camosun College's 1974-76 operating budget have been made by the department of education.

The department has cut nearly $2 million of the budget submitted in November by Camosun College council, reducing a $7.8 million budget to $5.9 million.

College councillor Roy Temple said today the cuts are so severe they may force the college to dismiss all part-time faculty and maybe some full-time faculty, cancel as many as eight programs, and stop filling all vacant positions.

"We won't be able to support existing programs," he said.

College principal Dr. Grant Fisher said the cuts "are causing a heck of a mess for us."

"The operating budget that the department has proposed is about 22 per cent above the 1974-75 budget," he said.

The college had asked for a budget 58 per cent higher than last year's.

Fisher said the administration is trying to determine just how severely the college will be affected by the cuts.

"We're trying to determine the proportion of the existing staff that we can afford to keep on."

The entire budget problem will be placed before the college council when it meets Monday evening.

Temple said councillors have already resolved to go back to the department of education to seek more funds.

The $5.9 million approved by the department is less than the $6.6 million the college felt it needed to finance existing programs, he said.

The college had asked the department for $764,000 to expand existing programs and $441,000 to begin new programs as well, he said.

Temple accused the department of "destroying the whole concept of community colleges."

The budget cuts will hit Camosun's evening classes the hardest, he said, and those classes are central to the community college concept.

Fisher said other colleges in the province have got the same budget treatment.

"Any college that's growing . . . will be really hurt," he said.

Fisher pointed out that the provincial government has been saying it supports the expansion of community colleges.

"It (the budget cuts) seems to be contradictory to what we have generally been told, which is that the community colleges were doing an excellent job," he said.

The college council sent its operating budget to the department last November without making one cut in the figures submitted to them by college administrators.

Labor Knocks Rental Firms

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday condemned city council for not outlawing companies that charge a fee for prospective tenants to look at their lists of available accommodation.

United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union representative Elgin Neish said the homefinding companies are making money out of a terrible situation, the housing crisis.

He said the Capital Region Tenants Association had complained to city about such firms, but council had taken no action.

Neish said council refused to take action because there had been no complaints, "but the tenants' association letter is a complaint."

Such companies have apparently been banned in Vancouver and Burnaby and the tenants association had asked to have them outlawed in Victoria.

In other labor council business, delegates approved a motion urging federal and provincial labor organizations to appeal to governments to provide more money for cancer research.

The council also agreed to send a wire to the ministry of Transport, deploriffg the fact that fishing vessels are not required to meet the ministry's safety regulations, as do other vessels.

B.C. Delays Again On Trail Transfer

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

For the third consecutive year, the B.C. government has postponed turning over the Bamfield - Port Renfrew west coast trail and three Nitinat lakes to Pacific Rim National Park.

A senior government official said Wednesday the turnover scheduled for April 1 was delayed pending discussions on cost-sharing on property acquisitions between the province and the federal government.

Property acquisitions involve private lands, plus compensation to B.C. Forest Products Ltd. for forest lands owned by the province, but under lease to the logging company, he said.

Forest lands leased to the logging company are mainly on the Tsusiat, Squalicum and Hobitan Lakes watershed — an area which the provincial and federal governments have agreed to include in the park.

The lakes are the last unlogged low-level lakes on Vancouver Island.

"I'm disappointed," Elton Anderson, a director of the B.C. Federation of Naturalists said today. "I know the government plans to include the area in the park, but no one is going to be happy until it is done."

He recalled that citizen groups from Vancouver Island and the mainland fought for incorporating the lakes and trail into the national park.

Anderson said the government is faced with a major problem because of the archaic system of leasing forest lands to forest companies which literally makes them masters of public lands. This is known as tree farm licences (TFL).

"Under this system we have practically sold our birthright," he said. "The land belongs to the people, but the forest companies control the lakes, rivers and streams. We have to compensate or pay them back for the land.

"TFLs were also awarded without any consideration of other resources — recreation, fisheries and wildlife."

Anderson noted some TFLs are due to come up for renewal within the next two years.

"There has to be some meaningful exchanges."

A senior forestry official said the Forest Act is under review.

Meanwhile, Jack Holyroyd, superintendent of Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach, said crews will continue to improve the west coast trail this spring and summer.

"The land does not really belong to us, but the province has given us the go-ahead," he said.

Dump Fire Fears Unfounded—Chief

Fears that a fire in the Millstream Road dump could turn into a repeat of a fire two years ago which took three months and $70,000 to extinguish, are unfounded, Langford fire chief Al LeQuesne said today.

LeQuesne said the dump site has been checked by the medical health officer and the pollution control board and a burning permit has been issued until May 1.

LeQuesne said commercial garbage is being taken to the site on Millstream because of the civic dispute, but that the garbage is being burned on a safe piece of ground and the owner has been required to post a bond.

The question was raised at Wednesday's Victoria Labor Council meeting when delegates said they feared a repeat of the landfill fire two years ago near the site.

Community Status Given New Wing

The Regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission in a closed meeting Wednesday night settled the role an addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital will have, enabling planning to begin.

A commission spokesman said today that the new wing of 75 acute care beds to be added to the existing 75-bed extended care hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad will serve as a community general hospital.

A consultant's report on the role of the hospital had said that if the commission wanted to build acute care beds on the peninsula nearer the major centre of population at Sidney, possibly fewer than 75 beds would be needed.

But the commission confirmed an earlier decision by the regional hospital board to build the acute beds on the site of the present Central Saanich hospital.

The decision means the hospital administration and the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service can now complete the detailed terms of reference needed for architects to prepare plans, the spokesman said.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

Mackenzie, Qu'Appelle, Saskatchewan and Provider at sea, returning May 8; Terra Nova, Restigouche and Kootenay at sea, returning April 19; all other ships in port.

Weatherworn Ship Back

She has just completed seven weeks on her station, 900 miles out in the Pacific, which included 29 days when winds blew at gale force (28 knots) or better.

That's about average weather for this time of year, Capt. Randy Dykes, Quadra's master, said today.

What wasn't average was a big wave which rolled aboard with a thump at 2 o'clock one morning and took a window in the wheelhouse out.

It also snapped the base of a stand mounting a TV scanner which gives the bridge a view to the stern.

It was, however, a routine turn of duty for the Quadra's 90 officers and men, said Dykes.

Seasickness? No problem, said the captain. People who are chronically seasick just don't go to sea.

SPOT INSPECTIONS AT RESTAURANTS

Regional health officer Allan Arneil has begun spot checks of restaurants, work normally done by his health inspectors but suspended during the current civic labor dispute.

Complaints from the public about eating establishments or other food outlets will continue to be investigated, Dr. Arneil said Wednesday.

He is also conducting, as time permits, the sort of unannounced routine inspections of food outlets usually done by the locked-out health inspectors.

In addition Arneil will begin on the same basis checks of the 61 swimming pools in the Capital district, including the many in apartment and condominium buildings, work that is part of the health inspectors' routine. The pool inspections involve taking water samples.

Arneil has been filling in on other fronts as well during the nine-week strike-lockout, including conducting final septic tank inspections for permits required in new housing construction.

He is also doing some preliminary septic tank inspections.

Arneil said that while the community health services being provided are limited by the labor dispute, priorities based on the greatest need of the moment are being followed.

Weather Running Month Behind

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

April came in like a lion this year and, with luck, will go out like a lamb, says Victoria's chief weather forecaster Allan McQuarrie.

Such talk usually applies only to March.

"But everything's a month late this year," McQuarrie said.

"We have been getting January temperatures in February, February temperatures in March."

And March is coming in April.

For example, said McQuarrie, the low on April 1 was 1 and on April 2 it was 2 degrees. Everyone knows it should be 5 or 6 at this time of year.

The problem, says McQuarrie, is an Arctic storm hovering over the area that is keeping out the warm winds from California.

The cold storm was over the Queen Charlottes Wednesday and today is off the west coast of Vancouver Island. It is expected to move down to Washington State and then head inland on Friday.

"By Friday night it should be clearing. I'll go out on a limb a bit and say there should be sunshine for the weekend."

However, the storm is one of those things that makes life very difficult for weather forecasters, McQarrie said.

"It is like a spinning top. While it's spinning fast it will stay in one place. When it starts to slow down it will move. But there is no way of being sure which direction it will take. Hopefully it is heading south and east."

Light snow was reported on the Malahat and in some parts of the Langford-Colwood area Wednesday night, but it didn't stay on the ground.

It's true that it snowed in Victoria — in the spring — but it can all be explained, McQuarrie said.

"All rain starts out as snow, even in the summer time. In the summer it melts very high up and falls as rain. In cold winter days, of course, it doesn't melt until it hits the ground — and that's snow.

"However, on Wednesday the freezing (melting) level was 1,500 feet up. So any snow should have melted at that point and fallen as rain.

"The problem was, the snow was blasted to the ground by the wind before it could melt."

McQuadrie said the freak snowstorm was unlikely to be repeated this spring. It just isn't normal.

But the weather office is beginning to wonder what normal means in terms of weather patterns.

"The world's circulation patterns seem to be changing. How do we explain the droughts in Africa, the unusually heavy rains in India."

And March weather in April in Victoria.

Possibly the weather patterns are changing. Or it is possible that Victoria was experiencing unusually weather patterns for the past 30 years and it now is returning to normal, he said.

THE REIGNING ERROR

No one needs to be told that many parts of the world — certainly including Canada — are in the grip of serious inflationary pressures which threaten the well-being and economic future of most people.

But is there any hope that inflation can be checked? Or is it already too late and are we on a one-way road to economic collapse?

In an important new book — The Reigning Error: The Crisis of World Inflation — William Rees-Mogg, editor of The Times of London, examines in detail the inflationary threat to our social and economic structures.

DIDN'T TAKE OWN ADVICE

LONDON (UPI) — Value Today, a magazine designed to help people beat inflation, is folding after only six issues, a spokesman said today.

"Costs have gone up so much we were losing on every issue," said executive editor David Miller.

City Truck Tires Slashed By Vandals

Public works officials, still assessing the extent of the damage, were reluctant today to give any preliminary estimates, but city engineer John Sansom said even though many of the tires can be repaired the bill will be substantial.

"These tires cost at least 50 bucks apiece," said Sansom.

The city has a contract with a security firm, Western Home Guard Patrol Ltd., for surveillance of the yard where up to 60 vehicles of all kinds, ranging from light pick-up trucks to earth moving equipment, are stored.

But details of the firm's patrol arrangements were not immediately available, although city officials said they understand the depot is visited frequently throughout the night.

In most cases only one tire on each unit was affected, and traffic engineer Dave Campbell said the damage appears to have been caused by small, barely perceptible nicks in the tire walls.

Units placed temporarily out of action include two smaller garbage trucks which management staff have been using every Wednesday to empty downtown litter containers; the city's only sewer cleaning pump; and two trucks used for asphalt patching of potholes.

Sansom said he was the first to discover the damage, when he called at the yard about 7 a.m. to organize an early shift for road repair jobs.

"There was a truck with a flat tire which shouldn't have been, and then I started looking around and found a whole lot more."

The vehicles singled out for tire-flattening were parked over a fairly wide area, and the vandalism was apparently done in "random" fashion, said Campbell.

NO CLEAR OSCAR FAVORITES

Predicting Oscar winners will be more difficult than usual this year, according to UPI Hollywood writer Vernon Scott, because there are no clear favorites in the major categories.

Scott, whose assessment of the Oscar race is on page 29 today, says any one of Towering Inferno, Chinatown or Godfather II could be best picture. Lenny and The Conversation merely fill out the field. He says he notes that Towering Inferno has been the most popular at the box office.

The Times and CJVI will award a CP Air weekend for two in Hollywood in a drawing April 9 from among those who have correctly predicted the Oscar winners for best actor, best actress and best picture. Three consolation prizes will also be awarded.

The Academy Awards are announced April 8.

Arbitrator Appointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice Peter Donald Seaton of the British Columbia Supreme Court has been appointed arbitrator in the contract dispute involving 4,000 West Coast longshoremen, Labor Minister John Munro said today.

Mr. Justice Seaton will have 60 days in which to bring in an arbitration award to resolve the dispute which led to a three-week strike by the longshoremen in all B.C. ports.

Lougheed Shuffles Entire Cabinet

Don Getty was given the major responsibility of overseeing Alberta's energy matters in an expanded portfolio of energy and natural resources. Next to the premier, he has been Alberta's major energy spokesman.

Lou Hyndman takes over Getty's former job as minister of federal and intergovernmental affairs and remains government house leader. Hyndman had been education minister.

Premier Lougheed, in high spirits following an overwhelming victory in the March 26 Alberta general election, told a news conference he intends to shift his attention from energy matters to social areas of government "to the extent practical."

Mortgage Limit Jumps $11,000 for Victoria

The maximum loan limit for mortgages insured under the National Housing Act has been increased to $46,000 from $35,000 for the Victoria area.

This will have the effect of reducing the down payment needed to buy homes under NHA, said Raymond Pitt, spokesman for the Victoria branch of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The loans go out in two forms. Direct lending by the government corporation to qualified (low income) purchasers is at an interest rate of a maximum of 10 per cent.

In addition, NHA mortgages are arranged through banks, credit unions and trust companies at conventional rates of about 10.5 per cent.

"Our policy continues to be to encourage new construction with direct lending," Pitt said.

Therefore the 10 per cent money will be going to purchase new homes or condominiums. Indirect lending at 10.5 per cent is for new or existing homes.

Pitt said the higher mortgage level would create a more brisk real estate market in Victoria.

"A larger mortgage means a lower down payment which in turn means more people can afford to buy homes."

Announcement of the higher limits was made in Winnipeg by Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson.

Limits vary from city to city with the low being $40,000 and the high — Vancouver and Toronto—set at $48,000.

While the loan limit rose by $11,000 in Victoria (from $35,000) it rose only by $8,000 in Toronto and Vancouver (from $40,000).

By HOI-YIN DER
Times Staff

Two men, one of them an escaped convict, were charged in Victoria provincial court this morning with three of the nine armed robberies in Victoria over the past 12 days.

William Harold Mack, 26, who escaped from William Head federal prison March 16, and William Wallace Woods, 26, of 1249 Rockland, were arrested shortly after a robbery late Wednesday afternoon at Valu-Way Food Market, 101 West Burnside.

Cashier Mrs. Tang Chi-fong said a man entered the store at about 4:30 p.m.

As Mrs. Tang began to ring up the groceries, she said the man placed his hand on her arm and handed her a brown paper bag.

"There was something written on the bag but I can't read English so I wasn't sure what he wanted," said Mrs. Tang.

"Then he said 'Money' and pointed to the till . . . I understood."

She said he pointed to a gun tucked under his belt.

"I opened the till and he grabbed all the money, then ran out of the store."

About $130 was taken.

Mrs. Tang said she ran after the man but lost him around the corner.

But a woman, watching from her apartment across the street, saw the man get into a car and drive south on Qu'Appelle towards Gorge. She became suspicious and took down the licence numer. When police arrived to investigate the robbery, she gave them the number.

Minutes later, Victoria police stopped a car on Garbally, and arrested Woods. Mack was picked up shortly after.

All the money was recovered.

Mack and Woods were jointly charged with the Valu-Way armed robbery.

Mack also was charged with Tuesday's 11 a.m. armed robbery at Niagara Grocery, 579 Niagara, and the noon-hour holdup Wednesday at Hollywood Grocery, 1707 Lillian.

Victoria police said that in both incidences, a man wearing a cowboy hat and dark sunglasses handed the cashiers a bag on which was written: "I have a gun . . . give me the money."

The pair was remanded to Friday for election of trial method and plea, at which time bail for Woods will also be discussed.

Mack is not eligible for bail.

Egypt Seeks Wider Session

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat sent messages today to the leaders of Britain, France, Yugoslavia and India stating Egypt's desire that their countries participate in the Geneva Arab-Israeli peace conference, government sources said in Cairo.

The messages were addressed to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, French President Valery Giscar d'Estaing, Yugoslav President Tito and Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, they said.

The sources said Sadat's messages explained that Egypt was anxious to avoid possible U.S.-Soviet polarization at Geneva which could wreck the conference.

Egype has formally requested the United States and the Soviet Union, as co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference, to reconvene it for consideration of a global Arab-Israeli peace settlement following the collapse of the U.S.-sponsored step-by-step approach.

Egyptian foreign minister Ismail Fahmi said Egypt wanted the inclusion in the conference of other powers like Britain and France as well as one non-aligned country at least.

Egypt also feels that Britain and France, as permanent members of the UN Security Council and leaders in Western Europe, could effectively join the United States and the Soviet Union in guaranteeing a final Arab-Israeli settlement if one can be reached, they said.

The sources said Sadat will be writing also to a large number of African, Asian and East European heads of state about Egypt's latest position in the conflict with Israel.

They said Egypt believes the non-aligned group of nations should be represented at Geneva because they represent about two-thirds of the world. Egypt considers India and Yugoslavia as best-suited for this role at Geneva, they said.

Panic Hitting Saigon

Times News Services

SAIGON — Military officials issued shoot-to-kill orders today to prevent protests and disturbances in Saigon as up to 50,000 Communist-led forces massed 40 to 50 miles to the northwest and northeast of the capital.

Saigon's 10 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew was extended to 9 p.m.-6 a.m.

Nguyen Van Binh, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Saigon, called for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, joining growing demands that Thieu step down in the wake of battlefield losses that have cost South Vietnam three-quarters of its territory.

Police stopped a demonstration of about 200 people demanding Thieu's resignation, but no shots were fired.

Immigration and child welfare officials in B.C. said today they have been flooded with calls from people wanting to adopt orphans from Cambodia and Vietnam.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday the federal government will take whatever steps are necessary to speed the adoption process for those children already "on-stream" for immigration to Canada.

The minister also expressed a willingness to see more children adopted in Canada and said he has urged child welfare authorities to cut through red tape to ensure homes are found quickly for any orphans who arrive here.

B.C. superintendent of child welfare J. V. Belknap said today the department has received a flurry of calls from people who heard Andras' comments and want to adopt children.

Belknap said those people should contact their local human resources department office and apply for adoption.

But he said he can give them no commitment that more Southeast Asian orphans will be available for adoption.

Both Belknap and regional director of immigration services in Vancouver Jim Pasman said the thrust of Andras' comments was to assure people waiting for chil-

Orphan Airlift Arrives in U.S.

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — The 52 Vietnamese orphans who escaped Saigon because of a defiant pilot arrived late Wednesday night at Oakland International Airport.

They only arrived because Capt. Ken Healy defied orders by Saigon air traffic controllers not to take off.

"Just watch me," Healy said he radioed to the controllers just before gunning his craft.

Capt. William Keating, who also made the flight, explained at a news conference in Oakland: "We were instructed to hold our position by ground control. We ignored that. We taxied down the runway and took off."

Also aboard the World Airways cargo jet were half a dozen Vietnamese adults who scrambled aboard the plane at the last moment without papers.

Healy, who also flew refugees from collapsing cities in mainland China during the Communist advance of the late 1940s, says Vietnam today is worse.

"I don't care if I lose my licence," Healy said. "It would be a cheap price to pay to bring these kids from danger."

One orphanage refused to send 400 children, and World Airways said the U.S. embassy had advised the orphanage against the flight.

Adoption officials said in the U.S. that it was hoped 2,000 orphans could be airlifted from Saigon in the next 48 hours.

But a World Airways spokesman said, "We think it may be too late to bring more children out."

For flight attendant Jan Wollett it was a frustrating experience.

"There are tens of thousands of children who want to get out of Vietnam, but the government bureaucracy won't let them," she told reporters.

BATTLE NEARS PHNOM PENH

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Insurgents over-ran a government position at a dike along the capital's defence line today, pushing within five miles of the city.

Military sources said government reinforcements moved into the area but "the position was not clear."

There was heavy fighting north, northwest and south of Phnom Penh, all of it clearly heard in the capital.

Rebel troops Wednesday captured seven positions east, west and south of the besieged capital.

In a statement broadcast by the New China News Agency, Prince Norodom Sihanouk said certain countries are trying to talk the Phnom Penh government into negotiating with the rebels.

"No foreign country has the right to issue orders to the Cambodian people" the nominal leader of the rebels said from his exile in Peking.

On the defence perimeter northwest of Phnom Penh, the attackers advanced about a mile along a one-mile front before they were stopped, field reports said.

The captured positions were about six miles north of the airport and if held would give the Khmer Rouge's guns and rocket launchers new positions from which to fire on the field.

The insurgents' rockets and shells destroyed two more of the government's dwindling fleet of T-28 light bombers and damaged two civilian planes at the airport shortly after dawn.
